Oakland Takes Step Toward Playoff Spot

Oakland took one large step forward in its attempts to make the final four and thus the Pen-Mar League championship playoffs by sweeping a pair of games from LaVale on Sunday, 6-1 and 11-1, on the losers' diamond.

The victories gave the Oaklanders a 12-10 record and a shot of momentum for a crucial four-game weekend this week, starting with Cumberland at the Bel Air field on Saturday and concluding with a doubleheader at Bruce High School field in Westernport against Tri-Towns on Sunday.

In the first game against LaVale, Matt Hixon starred for Oakland in several capacities, as he tossed a five-hitter, allowed only one run, hit a pair of singles and drove in half of Oakland's runs.

Francis Mouse rapped a double and a homer for Oakland, while brother Tim provided two singles. Dave Bender also scored twice.

Mark Lynn paced LaVale's hitting with two hits and scored their only run. Tom Ellsworth took the loss on the mound.

Mark Rodeheaver and Mike Brady combined to scatter eight hits in the second contest as the local team pounded out a dozen hits.

Mark Tysinger and Ed Wildesen each finished with three hits, Tysinger with two singles and a double and Wildesen with a single, double and triple. Tysinger scored three times and Wildesen, twice.

Tim Mouse and Bender each finished with two hits, one of Bender's being a double. Eight of Oakland's nine starters scored.

Bull Suttmiller and Bob Alexander each rapped a pair of hits for LaVale, while Lynn once again scored his team's only run.

Rodeheaver was credited with the win on the mound over Curt Jennings.

Activities Bus To Be Provided At Northern High

Students at Northern High and Northern Middle Schools will be provided a bus service for after-school activities beginning in September, according to an announcement by the Northern Athletic Boosters.

Bus routes have been established to serve the maximum amount of students in the Accident, Friendsville and Grantsville communities at a cost of $1.25 per student per day. Serving the Grantsville area, the bus will travel via the Accident-Bittinger Road, Rock Lodge Road, Route 495, and Route 40 East to Green Lantern Road. The second bus route will serve the Accident and Friendsville communities via Route 219 to McHenry, Route 42, through Friendsville to Green Gables.

Buses will run on a schedule and will be stopping at designated locations most convenient for students and parents. Students living along the above mentioned routes will be dropped off at their residences. All drivers are Garrett County bus contractors, and the buses are state and county approved with insurance coverage.

"Currently, students and parents are providing transportation for after school activities, causing inconvenience and financial burden for many," a spokesman for the Boosters stated. "Parents have expressed concern for their children driving in inclement weather, and liability while providing transportation for other students. The bus service will provide a greater opportunity for students to pursue and improve their academic and athletic talents and enable them to become more involved in school life."

1.1 billion bushels, a cash land diversion program of not less than 5% must be provided and an acreage reduction program may be provided.

Comments are also requested on the provisions of the grain reserve, appropriate loan and purchase levels, the target price, the national program acreage, whether haying and grazing should be allowed on acreage conservation reserve land, and whether offsetting compliance should be required if an acreage reduction or set-aside program is necessary.

The 1984 feed grain program contained a 10 percent acreage reduction program provision. All farmers with an established base who planted feed grain could participate in the voluntary program. Those who complied with the program provisions were eligible for deficiency payments and price support loans.

Other 1985 program decisions are whether barley should be determined eligible for payment under the program, whether malting barley should be exempt from any acreage reduction provisions, whether program contracts should be binding after signup and whether loans and purchases should be made available to producers who cut their corn for silage.

Comments on the 1985 program should be mailed to Dr. Howard C. Williams, Director, Analysis Division, USDA-ASCS, Room 3741-S, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Loan Rates Set For Corn, Barley, Sorghum, Rye

Maryland loan rates for 1984 corn, barley, sorghum, and rye have been announced by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The rates were decreased by amounts equal to the recently announced national average loan rate decreases, according to Olin S. Davis, Jr., chairman of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The rates are: corn, $2.80 per bushel; barley, $2.02 per bushel; sorghum, $4.34 per hundredweight; and rye, $2.30 per bushel.

"These rates vary from county to county to reflect differences in the value of the crop, production trends, and for some commodities, transportation costs to terminal points," said Davis.

National average loan rates are $2.55 per bushel for corn, 10 cents below the 1983 level; $2.08 per bushel for barley, 8 cents below the 1983 level; $4.32 per hundredweight for sorghum, 18 cents below last year; and $2.17 per bushel for rye, 8 cents below the 1983 rate.

To qualify for the loans, farmers need to comply with farm program provisions. "Commodity loans give farmers an opportunity to obtain operating capital while holding their crop for later sale." He said by holding the crop and spreading marketing over a 9-month period, market gluts, extreme price swings and transportation bottlenecks are to a great extent minimized.

Curran Announces Aids To Streamline Higher Education

J. Joseph Curran, Jr., Lt. Governor of Maryland, has sent a letter to newspapers in the state informing the public of two items of legislation passed by the 1984 General Assembly which will streamline budget and management processes for state institutions of higher education.

As Lt. Governor Curran notes, these changes are expected to encourage private sector support of public higher education; to increase funds available, and to allow colleges to respond quickly to changing demands that rise after the initial budget request has been submitted.

The Lt. Governor was chairman of the Task Force to Study Flexibility for Higher Education, which sponsored Senate Bills 957 and 960.

Specifically, the legislation provides that governing boards of public institutions may budget computing equipment for academic and research purposes without external approvals. "This change will greatly enhance the ability of our public institutions to respond to research grant proposals," Curran stated.

He continued "The boards may carry forward, from one year to the next, unexpended federal and special funds. In this way, a governing board will not feel compelled to expend at the end of the fiscal year funds that are now available, but which had to previously be either spent in that fiscal year or revert to the state treasury."

Curran also pointed out that boards may now earn and retain interest in income on tuitions, fees and other special funds, and within limits, the boards may transfer funds and personnel positions among the various programs within a budget.

Also, private gifts or grants to colleges and universities will be used for the purposes intended and will not result in a loss of state support to these institutions.

Curran feels "These flexible procedures and policies will allow colleges and universities to operate as competitive businesses, allowing rewards of efficiency to accrue to the institutions and thus promote better management and higher quality.

At the present time, a public institution is required, along with other state agencies, to make their initial budget preparation 18 months in advance of the actual ability to spend those funds. During that time frame, changes can occur which would require a different use of funds or personnel and now, with the streamlined procedures suggested above, a university will be able to more quickly respond for better management and efficiency.

In closing Curran promised that "The Task Force will continue to monitor the progress of the changes and to consider further reforms as being appropriate."

Bambacus Statement

In a related matter, Sen. John Bambacus recently attended a meeting of the Community College Funding Task Force. After the meeting he pointed out that this group was able to bring about some modest increases in funding to both Garrett and Allegany Community Colleges this past year.

Bambacus also promised to continue efforts to aid the local colleges, both of which he said have unique programs and needs which are not addressed in general college regulations.

GOD MUST SMILE

There was never a more serious moment in Barbara's life,
Nor any more remarkable in Raggedy Ann's.
Barbara's parents smiled and thought of tomorrow.
So must have God.
For God rejoices in a child's faith,
Knowing that gradually it will grow wiser—
Though it cannot ever be more sincere.
And He smiles lovingly at what we are today,
Knowing, all the while, what we can become tomorrow!
Is your child—are you—growing in the faith of your church?

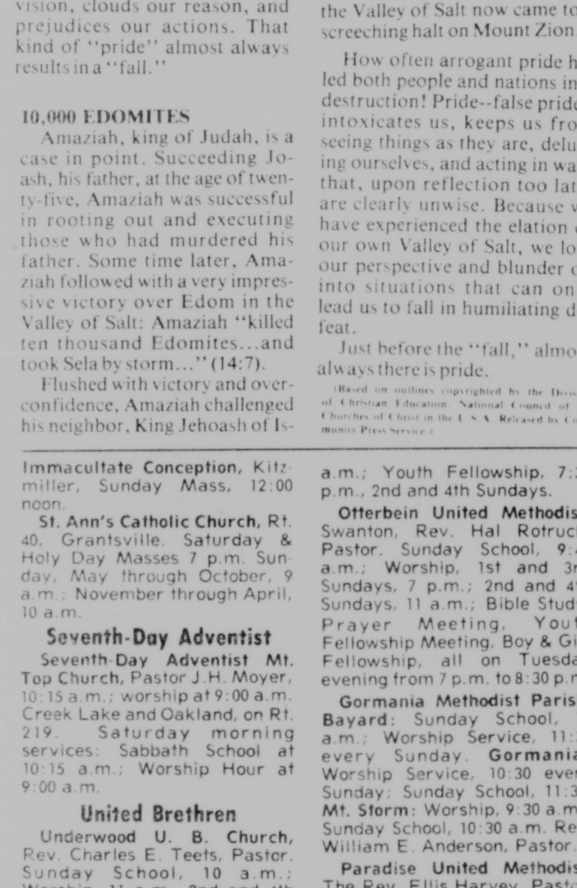
WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE HEAT EXHAUSTION OR SUN-STROKE?

Heat exhaustion and sun-stroke are both caused by the same thing — over exposure to extreme heat. But they are very different and you should know how to tell them apart.



With sun-stroke, the skin is very hot and very dry. It is more serious than heat exhaustion and a doctor should be called at once. A cold water bath or sponging, ice on the head, moving to a shaded area and undressing can help until the doctor arrives. With heat exhaustion, the skin is cold and clammy. Move the person to a shady place, keep head lower than the body and loosen tight clothing while waiting for the doctor.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

July 29, 1984

Background Scripture:
2 Kings 14.

Devotional reading:
Deuteronomy 24:16-22.

You know the old proverb: "Pride goeth before a fall."

While it may be true that one can "fall" without pride, still it seems abundantly clear that pride without a "fall" of some kind is rather unlikely.

Of course, the "pride" of which the sage speaks in this proverb is not a justifiable pride, but an arrogant one. It distorts our vision, clouds our reason, and prejudices our actions. That kind of "pride" almost always results in a "fall."

10,000 EDOMITES

Amaziah, king of Judah, is a case in point. Succeeding Joash, his father, at the age of twenty-five, Amaziah was successful in rooting out and executing those who had murdered his father. Some time later, Amaziah followed with a very impressive victory over Edom in the Valley of Salt: Amaziah "killed ten thousand Edomites...and took Sela by storm..." (14:7).

Flushed with victory and overconfidence, Amaziah challenged his neighbor, King Jehoash of Israel, to do battle. Jehoash's response is interesting:

A thistle on Lebanon sent to a cedar on Lebanon, saying, 'Give your daughter to my son for a wife'; and a wild beast of Lebanon passed by and trampled the thistle. You have indeed smitten Edom, and your heart has lifted you up. Be content with your glory, and stay at home; for why should you provoke trouble so that you fall, you and Judah with you? (14:9,10).

PROVOKING TROUBLE

It was one thing to crush 10,000 Edomites, it would be something else to meet in battle the people of Israel. Why go looking for trouble, asked Jehoash?

"But Amaziah would not listen." His pride blinded him to the good advice given him by Jehoash. Thus, once again, as so many times in human history, arrogant pride was followed by a humiliating fall. Not only was Amaziah roundly defeated by Jehoash and the Israelites, but he was captured, the walls of Jerusalem broken down, and the temple treasures carried away. That which had begun so well in the Valley of Salt now came to a screeching halt on Mount Zion.

How often arrogant pride has led both people and nations into destruction! Pride--false pride--intoxicates us, keeps us from seeing things as they are, deluding ourselves, and acting in ways that, upon reflection too late, are clearly unwise. Because we have experienced the elation of our own Valley of Salt, we lose our perspective and blunder on into situations that can only lead us to fall in humiliating defeat.

Just before the "fall," almost always there is pride.

Rejoice in His love.

Let His eternal love inspire us all to enrich our lives . . . today and always!

Come, worship together

The groups also serve to lobby Congressmen on issues of importance. In the past year Citizens for America has been most noted for its work on the Central America initiative; Line-Item Veto for the President; supporting the Grenada rescue mission and most recently, for work on Urban Enterprise Zone legislation that sent Lehrman to Harlem and to Chicago launching a campaign that included hard-hitting television ads that explained that Enterprise Zones mean "Jobs Now."

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT CHLAMYDIA

By Luella Klein, M.D., President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Ask a group of people what they think chlamydia is and chances are that no one will know. Yet this relatively unknown sexually transmitted disease now occurs more frequently than either gonorrhea or syphilis in the United States. Chlamydia is not as serious as syphilis nor as long-lasting as herpes but it can cause a number of problems in women, men and children.

A bacteria-like organism, chlamydia is somewhat of a chameleon. Some people may harbor the disease for a number of years with no symptoms, but their partner can develop an infection. Chlamydia is now believed to be one cause of a number of infections, including inflammation of the cervix (cervicitis) and pelvic inflammatory disease (PID) which is a catch-all phrase for a number of infections of the pelvic area. In men, chlamydia is believed to be responsible for nearly half of all cases of nongonococcal urethritis, an infection which has symptoms similar to gonorrhea.

Chlamydia is more likely to be found in addition to other sexually transmitted diseases such as gonorrhea. The bug is usually suspected when an infection is diagnosed and treated but refuses to clear up. Unfortunately, chlamydia bacteria do not show up readily on standard tests, and the special test for the disease is time consuming and expensive.

If a woman has a chlamydia infection during pregnancy and passes it along to her infant at birth, the newborn may develop an eye infection, infant pneumonia and other respiratory ailments, as well as some gastrointestinal and ear infections.

The good news about chlamydial infections is that they can be treated successfully by certain antibiotics, such as erythromycin or tetracycline, or sulfa drugs for pregnant women. Penicillin, the old stand-by for certain venereal diseases, is not effective for chlamydia.

It's important that if you are diagnosed as having a chlamydial infection, your partner is also treated. Otherwise, there is a chance of being reinfected.

If you have urinary or cervical infections that reoccur or your partner has recently developed a urinary tract infection, you may be the victim of chlamydia. As with any type of infection, it's important to see your doctor and have the infection diagnosed and treated.

Single, free copies of "Sexually Transmitted Diseases" (p-009) are available by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope along with the name of the booklet to: The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, Resource Center, 600 Maryland Ave., SW, Washington, DC 20024.

June Sales Tax Revenue Second Largest Of Year

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced that retail sales tax revenue for June, 1984 totaled $86,919,897, the second largest monthly collection for Fiscal Year 1984 and 13.6% more than the $76,501,531 collected during June a year ago.

"The June, 1984 revenue reflects retail activity during May and indicates that taxable sales were especially strong during May, 1984," Goldstein said. "Statistics for the first 11 months of Fiscal Year 1984 reveal that only January, 1984 revenue was larger than that collected during June. January is traditionally the largest month for sales tax collections, because it reflects holiday purchases during December."

Goldstein noted that sales tax revenue for the first 11 months of Fiscal Year 1984 continues to show strong gains in construction-related categories of collections. The building and contractors category posted a 26.9% increase, and the closely related furniture, fixtures and appliances category reflected a 22.3% gain over the same period of Fiscal Year 1983.

For the 11 months of Fiscal Year 1984 to date, retail sales and use tax revenue totaled $895,250,325, up 14.1% over the $784,684,404 collected during the same period of the previous fiscal year.

Auto Recycling Industry Claims Energy Savings

Maryland has saved approximately 32.16 trillion BTU's.

This is according to Richard Keller, program manager of Waste Management for the Maryland Energy Office (MEO). Since 1980, when the MEO began a program of promoting auto and truck recycling, the industry has saved the equivalent of the energy required to provide heating oil for approximately 282,000 houses for a one-year period.

Keller said "The savings are a direct result of extending the life of existing vehicles which has the effect of reducing the energy necessary to manufacture new vehicles and new parts."

Keller continued, "These savings can also be attributed to eliminating the need to manufacture new products from virgin materials since recyclable metals are made available through auto and truck recycling.

To provide more information about auto and truck recycling, the Maryland Auto and Truck Recyclers Association, Inc., (MATRA) has prepared a fact sheet and poster available at local libraries and school systems. MATRA has also made a slide show and mobile display unit available to organizations which are used to explain the benefits of using recycled auto parts.

Reader's Corner

How would you like this place?

Prince Edward Island, one of Canada's eastern provinces, with a population of 90,000 has only 13 policemen. There is no unemployment and the problem of divorce has been extremely rare in the past sixty years. Since 1967, there has not been a single case of assault of wife, desertion of family, or neglect of children. There is no penitentiary. In some years it has as few as two motor car accidents for every 1,000 cars. How do they account for this amazing record? In 1900, alcohol was abolished from the island, and it has never been allowed to re-enter. What a blessing!

Any nation who welcomes disgrace and surrender rather than an unshakable stand for their rights and freedoms, is prepared for a Task Master and deserves one.

4-H Club News

Ryans Glade
by Daneille Meeks, reporter

The club met Tuesday, July 17, with 19 members plus several friends and relatives and special guests, Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Montgomery, at the home of Tim and Jeremy Gordon.

The meeting was called to order by Joey Mousch, president. Tim Gordon led the Pledge of Allegiance and the 4-H Pledge was led by Mike Harvey.

We decided to postpone our Bedford Village trip until September. Our leader, Janet Tichnell, read the proposed new and amended by-laws and they were approved.

Demonstrations on Market Lambs, owned by Tim and Jeremy Gordon, were given.

Transportation moved slowly, but the fun moved at a fast pace, when everyone climbed aboard the hay wagon furnished by Herb Wildesen and driven by Larry Gordon. We enjoyed a modern-day type hayride from the Gordon residence to Rt. 560, south on 560 to Chisholm Road, along Chisholm Road to Rt. 560, on southward on 560 to Gorman, at which place new trails were blazed as we toured the residential area of Gorman. We then headed northward on Rt. 560 to Glade Run where we made a left and made our own trail through a hayfield owned by Herb Wildesen. From this point, until we returned to the Gordon residence, we were treated to an old-fashioned hayride.

Our hostess, Mrs. Judy Gordon, started an Indian-style campfire. Rev. Montgomery led us in prayer. Then everyone enjoyed roasting hot dogs and marshmallows.

Assessment Answers & Tax Talk

by James Burley

ON THE JOINT INFLUENCE OF THE INCREASED ASSESSMENTS AND ACTUAL TAX RATES

The understanding of assessments and property taxes is complicated by the fact that the regular assessment notice covers a three-year period and is routinely mailed out in December, preceding the mailing of the property tax bills by several months. Moreover, the tax assessment has been prepared by the Assessments Department, a State agency, whereas the yearly tax bill, which includes both the local and State property tax, has been issued by the county. These facts notwithstanding, the real property tax can be best understood by taking into consideration the joint influence of the increased assessments and the actual tax rates.

The regular property tax year runs from July 1 through the following June. The tax bill is not the result of an isolated process but is instead the culmination of the combined activity of the assessors who periodically produce the estimates of value of which the tangible evidence to the taxpayer is the assessment notice and the local elected officials who decide the tax rates that apply to the assessable portions of these values.

For the current taxable year, all of the counties, including Baltimore City, experienced growth in their assessable base, some more than others. This is registered and taken into account in the formulation of the constant yield tax rate for each. The spread between the constant yield tax rate and the actual tax rate is an indicator of the relative increase in the base.

The meaning of this in practical terms is that if the taxing jurisdiction did not set its tax rate at the same level as its constant yield tax rate, then there has been an increase in the property tax, even though the actual tax rate may have stayed the same. The increase is not measured by comparing the 1983/84 actual rate with the 1984/85 rate but rather by comparing the 1984/85 rate, which is now the current rate, with the constant yield tax rate.

For example, Kent County kept its rate at $2.00, but its constant yield tax rate was $1.90. Thus, though no change in the actual rate, there is an effective increase, due to higher values, of 10 cents.

Prince George's reduced its rate by 11 cents, from $2.54 to $2.43; but its constant yield tax rate was $2.42, meaning the County will realize the equivalent of a one cent increase in the rate, despite the fact that it decreased its actual tax rate.

Baltimore City's constant yield tax rate was 32 cents lower than its actual tax rate. The City, however, raised its actual tax rate one cent. The two together equate to a 33-cent increase per $100 of assessed property value.

Two large counties and two small counties took diametrically opposite directions. Montgomery County reduced its rate 20 cents, from $2.26 to $2.06. Their constant yield tax rate was $2.10, thus the action taken results in a true net tax decrease of four cents. On the other hand, Baltimore County increased its rate by 13½ cents, from $2.99 to $3.125. Their constant yield tax rate was $2.88, or 11 cents lower than the actual tax rate. The two combined equate to an effective tax rate increase of 24½ cents.

Garrett County reduced its rate by 15 cents to a lower level by one cent than its constant yield tax rate, achieving by this action an actual tax reduction. In contrast, Caroline had the largest increase of any county at 15 cents. In addition, its constant yield tax rate was 18 cents less than its actual tax rate. In this instance, adding the two together means there has been an effective increase of 33 cents, or 15.3 percent.

The actual State property tax rate remained at 21 cents per $100, but taking into consideration the increase in the statewide assessable base, the result is an effective increase equal to about two percent.

Statewide, the practical implication of the joint influence of the higher values and newly-adopted actual tax rates equates to a theoretical tax bill for the individual homeowner that is on the average five percent higher than last year.

State Purchases Record Amount Of Recycled Paper

According to the Maryland Energy Office, the Maryland Department of General Services has conserved enough energy to comfortably heat approximately 121 homes for a one-year period.

Richard Keller, manager of Procurement and Waste Management for the Maryland Energy Office, said, "The recent purchase by the Department of General Services of 104,000 reams of recycled bond paper for various State Agencies is the largest purchase of recycled paper in their history. This saved the equivalent of 14 billion BTU's or enough to comfortably heat approximately 121 homes for one year."

The recycled bond paper purchased by DGS was a good quality paper and was cost competitive with virgin bond paper.

Since the passage of the State's recycled paper purchasing law in 1977, state agencies, local governments, schools, colleges, and private organizations have purchased over 13 million dollars worth of recycled paper products such as bond paper, towels, toilet tissue, corrugated boxes, computer paper and envelopes. According to the Maryland Energy Office, the program has conserved approximately 786 billion BTU's, or enough energy to heat 6,893 homes for a year.

The Maryland Energy Office continues to provide technical assistance on buying recycled paper and has assisted many organizations in establishing recycled paper purchasing programs. The Maryland Energy Office can provide further information on Maryland's internationally recognized program.

SAVE TIME, MONEY, ENERGY

If you are a homebuyer, it makes a lot of sense to use the services of a Realtor. Realtors can perform truly "incalculable" services because they save buyers two precious commodities: time and energy. Both are valuable to you!

You save money on gas and oil because we'll be doing the looking in my car. You'll save the time and trouble of trudging from bank to bank looking for financing because I'm the one who helps you arrange that. You'll save the wear and tear of rushing around looking at unsuitable properties because I'll show you only the homes I know are suitable and within your price range.

You'll save money on the actual cost of your new home, too, because I do not take overpriced listings. If you have to sell your present home in order to buy a new one from us, we'll handle that sale for you too, and make sure the two transactions dovetail properly. We have a long list of house-hunters who are ready to buy now. Your home may be just what many of them are looking for.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone one of our offices.

Comptroller's Fuel Testing Lab Claims Success In First Decade

Ten years and ten billion gallons of gasoline after it opened, the Petroleum Testing Laboratory of the Maryland State Comptroller's Office points with pride to the fact that it is finding sub-standard fuel at only about one-tenth the rate as in 1974, proof that the oil companies are providing a better quality product to Maryland consumers, according to State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

"During the first year after it opened in May of 1974, our Jessup facility tested samples representing 370.8 million gallons of gasoline and spotted 35.5 million gallons that failed to meet our quality standards—a failure rate of 9.6%. Year after year, the lab continued to test more and more gasoline while finding fewer and fewer failures," Goldstein said. This year's figures revealed that only 13.3 million gallons of gasoline failed out of a total of 1.2 billion gallons sampled, a failure rate of only 1.1%. "This means that the oil companies are keenly aware of our inspection and testing activities, and our program has been a big success," Goldstein said. "This laboratory is a nationally respected leader in its field, and its staff is widely recognized."

The Comptroller noted that the program is moving ahead to add even greater protection for Maryland consumers. New regulations, effective since May, empower the Comptroller's Office to keep a tighter check on foreign fuel and provide informative labeling of new fuel types for motorists. In addition Goldstein said his office will also be closely checking newly advertised, higher octane fuels being marketed by some major oil companies.

Under the new quarantine program, foreign motor vehicle fuel imported into Maryland may not be sold or distributed until inspectors board the huge tankers and take samples of the product, which will be tested for quality. So far, six foreign vessels carrying a total of nearly 70 million gallons of fuel have been quarantined until lab experts tested and approved the batch for Maryland consumers.

"Since some western states have encountered low quality imported fuel, Maryland's quarantine program promises to be good preventive medicine," Goldstein said.

The inspection and testing program will also be closely watching a recent wrinkle in fuel trends, namely new fuels containing forms of alcohol now being marketed by some major oil companies. These are different from the "gasohol" marketed since 1979. Motorists can expect to see retail pumps carrying new labels identifying the product as containing ethanol, methanol, or a combination of both.

"This is for your protection. In certain instances, your vehicle's warranties may be invalidated by the use of some of these fuels. So our new labels will help you decide which fuel is suitable for your vehicle," Goldstein said. "In addition, Maryland is the first state to establish minimum specifications for alcohol fuels to ensure compliance with the federal Clean Air Act."

But aside from new fuels, the testing experts will also be keeping an eye on changes in customary fuels. "For the first time in several years, some major companies are increasing their octane offerings to as high as 93.5. Previously, most higher octane fuel rated as 91. We'll be double-checking these products to make sure you get what you pay for," the comptroller stated.

Administered by the Motor Fuel Tax Division of the State Comptroller's Office, the 4,800 sq. ft. laboratory is staffed by 12 chemists, technicians and other specialists who analyze the quality of more than 1,000 samples of petroleum products each month taken by division inspectors from all along the supply chain in Maryland—from the pipeline to the retail pump.

The petroleum products, which include gasoline, kerosene, heating oil and other additives, undergo a battery of rigorous evaluations, testing for quality specifications which are re-evaluated year to year.

Lab experts check gasoline for proper blending, contamination and lead content while making sure the fuel meets the minimum octane standards posted on the pump. Diesel fuel is studied for contamination with gasoline and for basic "startability." The tests are designed to detect problems that can affect driving performance or damage engine parts. Kerosene and heating oil are also scrutinized for dangerous contamination and combustion quality to protect Maryland homeowners.

"Maryland took the lead in establishing two separate grades of kerosene to make sure a safe product was available to consumers who own increasingly popular kerosene heaters," the comptroller stated.

Chemical tests at the lab helped to win a first-of-its-kind conviction in a fuel theft case in Dorchester County, matching fuel from the thief's car with fuel from the victimized farmer's storage tank. Lab tests have also debunked advertised claims for some fuel additives that were highly touted during periods of tight gasoline supplies.

The same capability to identify specific products that played a role in the Dorchester County fuel theft case also allows lab experts to protect consumers of alcoholic beverages. The scientists routinely help agents of the Comptroller's Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division by identifying expensive liquor bottles that have been illegally refilled with cheaper products. The chemists carry their findings to local liquor board hearings, where punishment for the offender is determined.

The lab also helps to identify different petroleum products at the request of local fire officials and representatives from the Maryland State Police, Maryland Department of Agriculture, Maryland Water Resources Administration, Baltimore-Washington Airport, U.S. Treasury, the U.S. Coast Guard and others.

Legislation enacted in 1969 by the Maryland General Assembly first empowered the State Comptroller's Office to inspect fuel sold to consumers. The Comptroller's Office began testing petroleum products in 1970 at the University of Maryland facilities in College Park and later moved its operation in May, 1974, to the present Jessup site adjacent to the General Services Administration warehouse on state-owned land, a central location.

FOOD PRESERVATION TIDBITS

To help to update home canners on what's new in the food preservation world, here is some more valuable information:

*Sterlizing Jars

The new USDA recommendations as far as jar sterilization goes are: Jars that will be filled with food and processed in a boiling water bath for less than 15 minutes need to be sterilized. This is done by covering them with hot water and boiling for 15 minutes before they are filled. After this 15 minute time, simply leave the jars in the hot water until you are ready to fill them. Jars that will be filled with food and processed in a boiling water bath for 15 minutes or more do not require sterilizing. Also, jars to be processed in a pressure canner will be adequately sterilized during processing and do not require the boiling water pretreatment.

*Anti-Darkening Solutions

Light colored fruits can darken as they are being prepared for canning. These solutions are recommended to prevent this air-enzyme reaction.

1. Drop the fruit in a solution made from one teaspoon ascorbic acid (Vitamin C) crystals or one 3 gram crushed ascorbic acid tablet in a gallon of water.
2. Use a commercial ascorbic acid mixture available in grocery stores, according to package directions.
3. Immerse the peeled fruit in a sugar syrup. Drain fruit before canning.

*Pressure Canner Lid Testing

Pressure canners are recommended for use in canning all low acid fruits and vegetables (a low acid food is one with a pH greater than 4.6). In order to kill all harmful bacteria in these low acid foods, the pressure canner is needed because its temperature gets above boiling. Most of the bacteria present in low acid foods will not be destroyed at boiling, just above the boiling point, therefore the use of pressure canning is vital.

During the week of July 30-August 3, pressure canner lids will be tested for accuracy at the Extension Office in the Courthouse Annex from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Pressure canner gauges should be tested at least once a year. All home canners are urged to take advantage of this free service. For more information, call 334-2145.

Welcome Home Sunday Slated At Log Church

A special service will be held at Our Father's House (The Log Church), Altamont, on Sunday, August 5, beginning at 11:15 a.m. Termed "Welcome Home Sunday," the service is an outgrowth of the anniversary service marking the founding of the building in 1933.

The celebration will be divided into two parts, according to the Rev. John A. Grant, Vicar. The first part is the worship service and the second will be a luncheon on the lawn of the church following the service. An invitation has been extended by the congregation to all friends and former members of the Log Church.

Our Father's House is a part of the Garrett County Episcopal Missions. The church was built in 1933 under the direction of the Rev. David C. Trimble and is one of the most unique Episcopal churches in the Diocese of Maryland.

New Germany Park Programs Scheduled

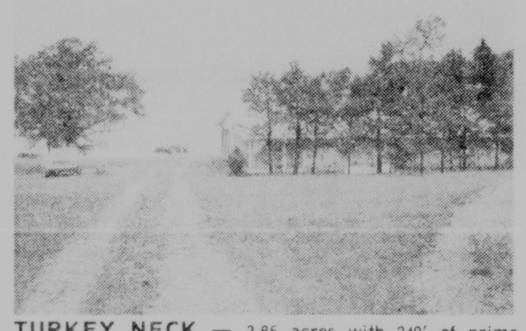
On Wednesday evening, August 1, Ken Pavol, a fisheries biologist, will be the guest speaker. Pavol, from the Mt. Nebo Natural Resources Office, will give a slide presentation on "Fisheries Management In Western Maryland."

Both programs will be held rain or shine. For more information persons may call 895-5453.

Film Showing Set At Mountain Lake Independent Baptist

"God's Prison Gang," a newly released film featuring Al Capone's getaway driver, the last member of Bonnie and Clyde's gang and two other notorious criminals who have become Christians, will be shown at Mt. Lake Independent Baptist Church, 1005 Broad Ford Road, this Sunday, July 29. The showing is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.



The film, shot behind the walls of New York's Attica Prison, is hosted by Art Linkletter. It tells the story of the work of International Prison Ministry.

Telling their stories in the 44-minute film are George Meyer, Al Capone's favorite driver; Floyd Hamilton, (Public Enemy No. 1) the last of the Bonnie and Clyde Gang; Jerry Graham, the "robber king" of California; and Ted Jefferson, convicted of crimes from drugs and robbery to murder.

Pastor John Schrimshire invites the public.

A BIG BENGAL BEAUTY - Sheba, the Bengal tiger, is so friendly to local zoo owners she allows them to pet her as they please. Sheba is only one of the wild animals and birds from around the world corraled at Garrett County's zoo, the M & S Wild Animal Zoo on the Oakland-Sang Run Road. Sheba enjoys a spray of water from the hose when weather is hot, unlike her neighbor the African lion, who dreads water. The zoo owners obtained most of their animals from wild animal parks and ranches along the east coast and from surplus lists from zoos, and welcome visitors from 10 a.m. daily Memorial Day through Labor Day. See feature elsewhere in today's issue for more animal photos.

G-F Residences To Proceed With Home Purchases

The Board of Directors of Garrett-Frederick Residences Inc. voted Tuesday to go ahead with the purchase of two houses in the Mitchell Manor and 11th Street areas of Oakland, despite community opposition to the location of apartment units for the handicapped in the two houses.

According to Charlotte Griffith, spokesman for Garrett-Frederick Residences, the board voted to purchase the properties pending final funding approval from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the federal agency that is providing loan funds for the purchase. She said that the board expects to hear of HUD's decision in the near future.

Griffith said that the board decided to proceed with the purchases after considering the availability and cost of other possible housing, because the two houses in question remained the best alternatives.

The board further voted that a Garrett-Frederick board member will sit on the admissions and review team that screens and selects residents for the apartment program. In addition, the board will have final approval on placements in the program, according to Griffith.

"We felt that it is very important to ensure that the clients accepted into the program are appropriate to live there," Griffith said.

If the purchases go through, Garrett-Frederick Residences plans to lease the properties to Garrett Crossroads, a local agency that operates residential programs for the disabled, including an apartment unit on Alder Street similar to the ones proposed for Mitchell Manor and 11th Street, and a group home on Broadford Road. Crossroads plans to open a second group home in the Weber Road area after construction of the state-funded facility is completed.

Residents of apartment units are higher-functioning than most residents of group homes, according to a Garrett-Frederick spokesman, who said that those selected for apartment living programs are already well on their way to independent living. Three former female residents of the Alder Street apartment unit are now living on their own in the community.

In attendance at Tuesday's meeting were Jennifer Kotulak, representing Garrett Crossroads, and board members Abbott Styles, Kevin Callis, Meg Ellis, and Tom Graybill.

FILL 'ER UP- The official Maryland 350th anniversary balloon visited Garrett County last week to conduct a dry run in preparation for this Saturday's Friendsville Summer Festival. Balloonist Thomas A. Saunder inflated the balloon on the grounds of the Friendsville Elementary School, where most of the festival events will be held. Pictured below is a trial flight of the balloon, which included Friendsville Mayor James Spear, waving, and town council member Spencer Schlosnagle. Saunder is a resident of Glen Burnie, and offers charter flights in the Maryland-Virginia area through his "hobby" business, "Skyline Aerostats". The Maryland balloon has been featured at state-wide celebrations of the state's 350th anniversary.

Summer Festival Attractions Noted For Saturday

Lieutenant Governor Joseph Curren and the Patuxent Mountain Men are among the latest additions to the list of attractions at the Friendsville Summer Festival this Saturday.

The Mountain Men, officially known as the Patuxent Muzzleloading Rifle Club, consists of members from four states who organized a few years ago to keep the spirit of life before 1840 alive. The group, which includes Keith Casteel, a respected gunsmith from the Tri-State area, will march in the parade as well as set up camps on the festival grounds to demonstrate life in hunting and scouting camps of that era.

Milton Proudfoot and members of the Tri-State Mountain Men will portray Meshack Browning, and will bring along their own Browning displays. Friends and relatives of the Browning family have generously contributed memorabilia for the exhibit, which includes the famous hunter's rifle, on loan fromn the Smithsonian Institution.

Lt. Gov. Curren will ride in an antique depot wagon in the parade, which begins at 11 a.m. The depot wagon is on loan from the Thrasher Museum in Midland, and was once used in the Deer Park area. Other antique vehicles expected at the event include a stagecoach that traveled the Cumberland Gap from Baltimore to Wheeling, and an oxcart provided by Morris Whipp, Burlington.

Some members of the Eighth Pennsylvania Regiment of Erie, Pa., are slated to participate in the parade, dressed in Revolutionary War style uniforms.

Uncle Sam is expected to take time out from his busy schedule to march in the parade.

A quarter size mobile steam engine and a replica of the first steam powered sawmill in the United States will be on hand, contributed by Russell Harvey, Deer Park.

Goldstein Tells Local Audience How Religious Freedom Began In Maryland

An estimated 200 persons attended the Maryland Tolerance Day program at Garrett Community College Sunday evening which featured an address by Louis Goldstein, comptroller for the state of Maryland. The event kicked off Garrett County Week, which is part of the celebration of Maryland's 350th anniversary as a state.

A welcome was extended by Father Martin Feild, St. Peter's Catholic Church, who served as master of ceremonies. The invocation was by Rev. William Carlson and the benediction by Rev. Ellis Harvey.

Presenting the colors were members of Company C, 121st Engineering Battalion, Maryland Army National Guard, and the blessing of the flags was conducted by Rev. Manning Smith. Musical selections were presented by the Garrett Highlander Bagpipers and the Southern and Northern high school bands.

Goldstein, who is the overall chairman of local celebrations for the 350th anniversary, centered his talk on historical highlights of Maryland and Garrett County, and noted how Maryland paved the way for some of the basic freedoms that all Americans enjoy today.

"Maryland has long enjoyed a wonderful diversity that gives us the famous nickname, 'America in Miniature,'" he said.

He told how George Calvert, the first Lord Baltimore, rebelled against the Church of

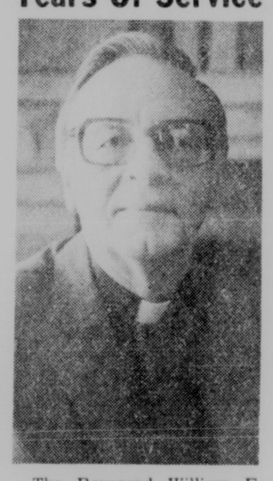
Judge Remands Patterson Case To Zoning Board

Associate Court Judge J. Frederick Sharer of Allegany County ordered July 13 that the appeal case brought by residents in the Patterson Boat Company vicinity be remanded to the Deep Creek Board of Zoning Appeals for reconsideration.



Judge Sharer apparently found that the board was not in compliance with procedures outlined in the ordinance, which require that three members must concur in a decision. In the appeal case, two members affirmed the decision against the appellants and a third gave a negative reply.

In his review of the case, the judge said he found that evidence was ample to support the board decision against Harvey's Peninsula residents who filed the appeal.

The appellants seek repeal of a permit granted in June of 1982 so that Patterson Boat Company could use a lot in the Enterprise Vacation Homes subdivision as a graveled parking area. Patterson Boat was later granted a special exception permit to allow boats on trailers to be parked on the property. The two issues were later combined into one case.

Property owners filing the appeal are Mr. and Mrs. Walter O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Zurinsky, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Whitefield, Wilmer Murphy and Ruth Wilt.

Reverend Carlson Retires After 35 Years Of Service

The Reverend William E. Carlson, pastor of the Accident Evangelical Lutheran Parish for over 35 years, retired on June 30. Pastor Carlson began his ministry in the Accident Parish on March 1, 1949. He was ordained by the Synod of West Virginia on May 17, 1949, and was installed as pastor on June 5, 1949.

Rev. Carlson, son of the late W. Edwin Carlson and Esther Carlson, is a native of Jamestown, N.Y.

On June 6, 1935, he was graduated from Lakewood High School, Lakewood, Ohio, and then attended Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio. He received an AB degree in 1942 from Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio.

He married Eleanor Louise Albers in Lakewood, Ohio, on June 27, 1942. The couple has three children, Mrs. Christine L. Johnson, Richard W. Carlson and Mrs. Barbara E. Chilcote, and four grandchildren.

In December of 1942, Carlson entered the United States Army and received an honorable discharge in January 1946. He attended the University of Dijon, France and Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa. He received his BD degree in May 1949 from the County Receives $170,000 For Housing Rehab

Garrett County's loan pool for the rehabilitation of rental housing for low and middle-income residents has been granted $170,000 by the Appalachian Regional Commission.

The ARC loan will be administered through Garrett County Community Action and will be used for the renovation of 60 Section 8 moderate rehabilitation units and 33 Section 8 existing units.

Proposed funding will be made up of both public and private sources, with the loan pool totalling $845,000. Public funding will be derived from the ARC loan and a $200,000 Community Development Block Grant. Private sources include $250,000 in the form of rehabilitation loans from the state of Maryland and $225,000 is forthcoming from local banks.

The proposed rehabilitation of 65 units will decrease the number of substandard units in Garrett County by 8%, according to Meg Ellis, housing director for Community Action.

A factor in this project's success is the availability of adequate and attractive financing packages for interested property owners. The property owners who receive the loans must make a 15-year commitment to rent to low-income Section 8 eligible households, Ellis said.

The project will directly create and/or maintain 38 permanent private sector jobs with private contractors involved in the rehabilitation of the units.

Tenants will be selected through a screening of the Community Action's existing Section 8 waiting list and also through local media, other county agencies, and programs administered by Community Action.

The rehabilitation will primarily involve repair of roofs, installation of wells and waste discharge systems, plumbing and electrical work, energy conservation measures and siding.

Salt Contamination Problem Is Topic Of Public Meeting

Sen. John N. Bambacus and Del. George Edwards have scheduled a public meeting with State Highway Administration officials August 8 to discuss the problem of salt contamination of water supplies.

The meeting, which will begin at 7 p.m. at the Grantsville Elementary School cafetorium, will provide a forum for alternatives for addressing the problem.

Sharer Remands Railey Rezoning To Commissioners

Associate Circuit Court Judge J. Frederick Sharer, Cumberland, has remanded the Railey rezoning request back to the county commissioners for compliance with a finding of fact ruling.

Judge Sharer released his opinion in the case July 23, after hearing the case in mid-March for Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer of Garrett County. Judge Thayer had asked to be released from the case.

In his statement Judge Sharer said it appeared that the commissioners had properly cnsidered the Railey request for rezoning of their 45 acres north of the Deep Creek Bridge. However, after several public hearings the commissioners unanimously denied the rezoning request without making proper findings of fact for the record, Sharer decreed.

It remains up to Raileys and their attorney Charles Wagaman, Jr. to prove the original zoning contained a mistake or that the nature of the area has substantially changed.

Raileys are requesting a change from lake residential to towncenter.

Judge Sharer also ruled that the commissioners must bear the court costs for the March hearing.

State Jobless Rate Increases, County's Drops

As a result of the seasonal impact that students and summer workers have on unemployment, Maryland's estimated unemployment rate increased slightly from 4.9 percent in May to 5.0 percent in June, according to statistics released by the Maryland Department of Employment and Training.

Garrett County's jobless rate, however, continued to decline as a 10.3 percent figure was recorded for June, compared to 11 percent in May. The June rate was well below the June 1983 figure of 14.6 percent.

Although this is the first increase in the overall state unemployment rate since January 1984, this month's rate is the lowest June rate on record since 1974. Also, the rate's 0.1 percentage point increase during June is smaller than the 0.5 increase

Dale Allen Is Selected As Lake Plant Operator

Dale Allen, Route 1, Frostburg, has been selected by the Garrett County Sanitary Commission as the wastewater treatment plant operator for the Deep Creek Lake system. The selection was finalized at the July 24 regular commission meeting.

Allen, who has been operating the Cresaptown wastewater plant for Allegany County, holds a treatment operator class B license. He had been employed by Allegany County for the past ten years. He has attended numerous training courses and seminars in addition to classes at Allegany Community College.

In addition to his duties as wastewater superintendent, Allen will provide supervision and assistance during construction and startup of the Kitzmiller, Bloomington and Gorman sewer projects.

Allen will assume his duties here August 13.

To Award Contracts

Approval has been received from the Office of Environmental Programs, subject to approval from the Minority Business Enterprise participation for contract 13, to award contracts for the expanded lake sewer system. The sanitary commission expects that as soon as Farmers Home Administration approval is received, contracts will be awarded to the low bidders.

At Tuesday's meeting, the commission signed a request for the FHA funding of the local share of the expanded system, which amounts to $240,700.

FARM QUEEN CONTESTANTS — Four local young women have registered to vie for the title of 1984 Garrett County Farm Queen, according to the Garrett County Farm Bureau. Pictured left to right are Dove Wassell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wassell, Jr., Bittinger; Daina Savage, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William G. Savage, Deep Creek Lake; Criss Kepple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kepple, Oakland; and Amy Margroff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Margroff, Accident. The contestants and their mothers were guests of the Farm Bureau for a dinner at the Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake, on Tuesday evening. The contest is open to single girls at least 16 years of age, but not 20 by the date of the state contest. South Industrial Park Topic Of Recent Meeting

The Southern Garrett Industrial site south of Route 135 and the Bausch and Lomb plant were chief topics of discussion at the June 7 meeting of the Garrett County Development Corporation. Other items included the recent county commissioner decision not to apportion funds to the development corporation but direct monies to the Garrett County Economic Development Department.

Tom Jones, a member of the development corporation, is director of the economic development department. Effective July 1 of this present fiscal year, the development corporation is no longer a line item in the county budget. The change allows Jones to keep his merit system status, however, and will add the two staff members shared by zoning, planning and development.

The sale of the industrial site still has not been completed, Jones explained, due to a hold-up at the state health department lab where tests must be completed on soil samples taken from the site. For many years the B & L plant used the property to discard a combination of detergents, (caustic soda), pine pitch and polishing material in a tank. These materials leeched out into the ground, in combination with water from the lens polishing process, and several trees died. Local tests show that there is no hazardous waste present, and that the trees died from drowning because of the water level as the tank leeched out. State tests must be conducted to confirm this, however, before the property can be given a "clean bill of health."

The state lab has had to postpone tests on the soil samples due to other more life-threatening testing needed elsewhere in the state.

The county has two firm commitments from companies wishing to purchase lots on the 96-acre tract. These are IBMI of Oakland and Power Brake, with headquarters in Wheeling, W. Va. Power Brake proposes to remanufacture heavy truck brake systems. The county also has three other prospects for lots with the industrial site.

Work completed so far at the site include engineering, aerial photography, and topographical maps.

Both the firms which have indicated they wish to purchase sites would be located on the western part of the tract, near the Shady Acres plaza.

The Sanitary Commission has been authorized to proceed with engineering to get water service to the tract. Once the system is complete and approved by the state health department, the town of Oakland would take over the system. Oakland will provide the water, and already has lines to the Shady Acres development.

The town has agreed conceptually to the proposal, according to Jones, and would acquire the tenants as customers at no charge to the town.

In regard to the commissioner decision not to provide funds to the corporation, the group reviewed the Articles of Incorporation and decided that it is an autonomous body, a private, non-profit organization of the same status as the Chamber of Commerce, for instance.

This will be the first time since 1972 that the corporation is not in the county budget, Jones noted.

Elected as new members were Eugene Zumpano and Ralph Burnett. Eleven of the 15 members were present, including Chairman J. Haig Jackson, I. R. Rudy, George Edwards, R. Thomas Thayer, Courtney Tusing, Helmuth Heise, John Braskey, Bernard Guy, Pat Fischetti, Ross Crowe and Eugene Coddington.

The group's next meeting will be August 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the grand jury room of the Courthouse in Oakland.

Final Hearing On HUD Grant Applications Held

The Board of County Commissioners conducted a final hearing on grant applications for the Department of Housing and Urban Development block grants Tuesday. The county is eligible for up to $500,000 in block grant funds, but received applications totaling only $277,288, including a $16,000 application from the Garrett County Firemen's Association which county block grant coordinator Tim Dugan told the commissioners was unfundable under the block grant guidelines.

Other applications include a $34,588 proposal to design and implement a food service training program at the Appalachian Center, and three separate applications by Community Action Agency.

The Community Action applications include $131,000 for renovation of the old Accident Elementary School into apartments and a community center, and $82,500 for a repair loan program for lower income owners of housing in need of repairs. On behalf of the Swanton Community Association, Community Action applied for $13,200 for repairs to the Swanton Community Center.

The commissioners will sign the application next Tuesday and submit it to HUD, with a decision on which projects will be funded expected from the federal agency in about two months.

Work Expected To Start Soon For Kitzmiller Water

A preconstruction conference is scheduled August 3 for the Kitzmiller water system contractors, and the sanitary commission expects to be able to give notices to proceed with the project immediately following the conference.

Total project cost will be $1,417,631.00. Actual construction costs, according to bids received, will be $1,047,805.61. Frank Arnold Contractors bid $417,774.56 for contract one; H. J. Schneider Construction bid $105,750 for contract two, and Schneider bid $524,281.05 for contract three.

Administrative costs, rights of way, interest and contingencies will make up the total cost. Also included is repayment of $110,000 expended in West Virginia to construct a larger water line to Elk Garden. That work was done by the West Virginia Mt. Top Public Service District when the town expected to receive water from Elk Garden but those plans had to be abandoned when rights of way could not be obtained between Kitzmiller and the West Virginia town.

The sanitary commission is preparing to go to bond closing for the local share of the project in the next few weeks. The commission, at its last meeting, had passed a resolution authorizing establishment of a bond issue and at Tuesday's county commissioner meeting the commissioners adopted a resolution in support of the sanitary commission action.

The bond will be in the amount of $180,000 to be repaid to the Farmers Home Administration through collection of ad valorem taxes from the Kitzmiller sanitary district. The remainder of funding will come from a HUD grant of $244,000; ARC and other grants will contribute $310,500; the state is providing $261,150 and a Farmers Home grant will provide the remaining $422,000 needed.

The local share of $180,000 is divided by $10,476.51 (159 users at $65.89) and the FHA is providing the 40-year loan at five percent interest.

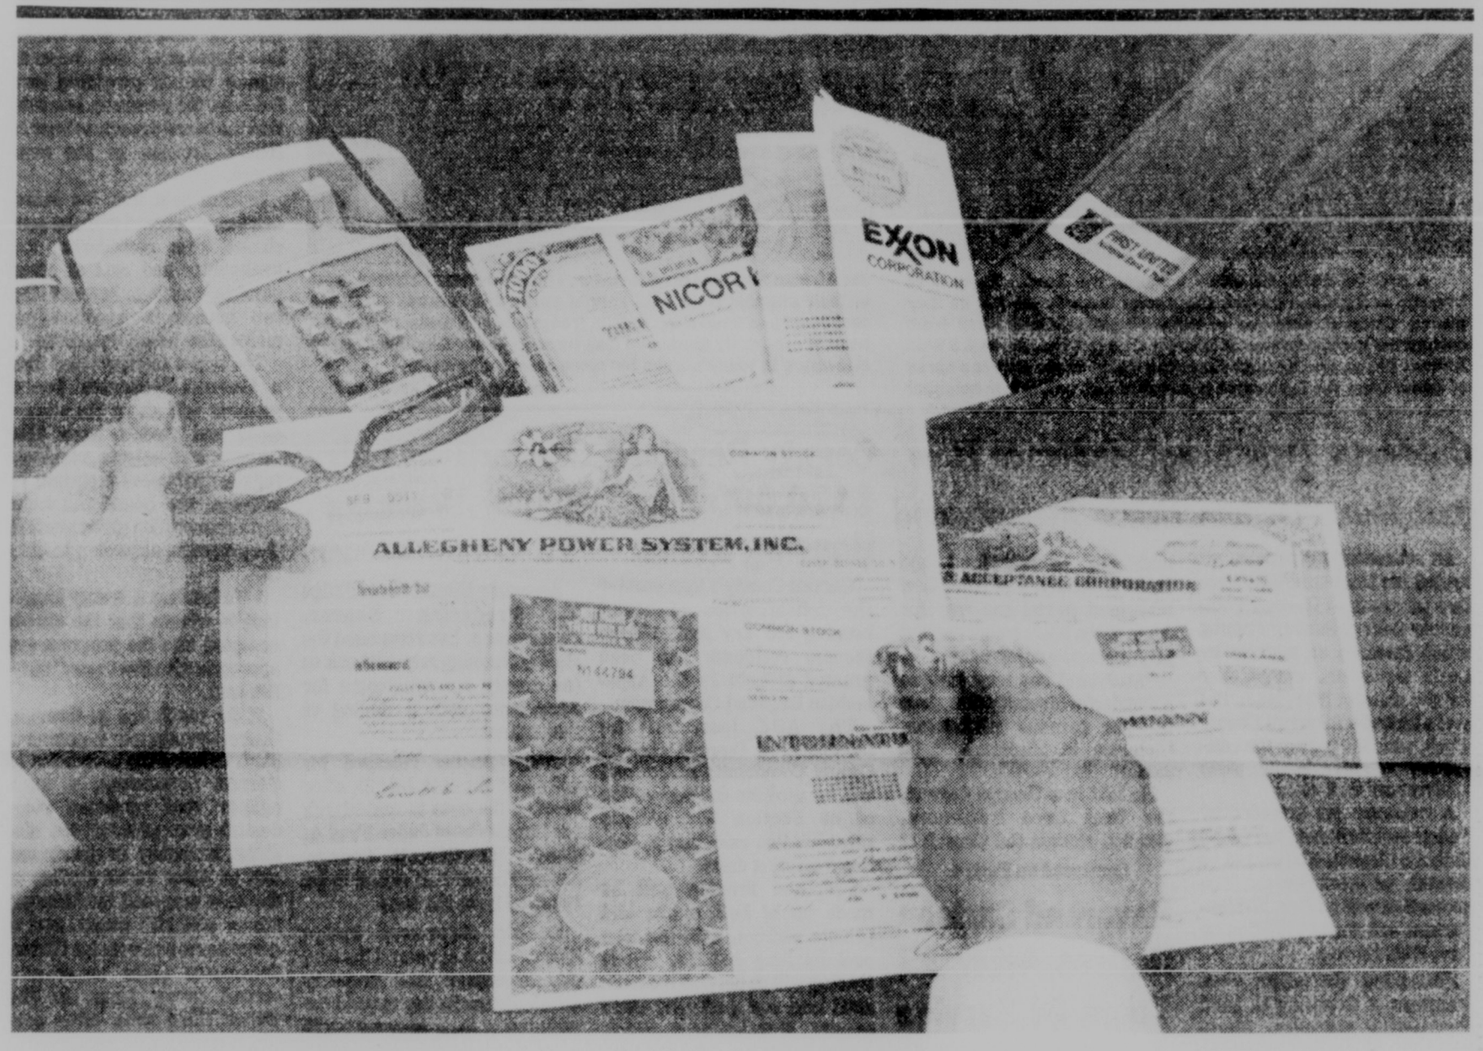
Is every child mentally ill?



Here is what humanistic educators are saying about YOUR children:

"Every child in America entering school at the age of five is mentally ill, because he comes to school with certain allegiances toward our founding fathers, toward our elected officials, toward his parents, toward a belief in a supernatural Being, toward the sovereignty of this nation as a separate entity . . . it's up to you teachers to make all of these sick children well by creating the international children of the future."

(Taken from an address given at a childhood education seminar in 1973 by a professor of educational psychiatry at Harvard University. Reaffirmed in a phone conversation in March 1983).

PAINT CHIPS blew three and four feet away from the wall during the concussion of dynamite blasting for sewer rehabilitation in Grantsville last month. Now 74-year-old Chauncey Saunders wonders if the wall will continue to hold up his home of 23 years until reliable firms can dig up and rebuild the wall. Trimble Contracting of Latrobe, Pa. has assured the couple that their insurance company will see that the work is completed to the satisfaction of the family. Upstairs, the canary continues to sing cheerfully, oblivious to the fact that his world is presently on a shaky foundation.

THE NOSE TEST belies the contractor's and inspectors' assurances that the substance on the ground is rainwater of any type. Since mid-May raw sewerage was draining onto the ground in front of the Luther Beachy home in Grantsville. Sewer rehab work was blamed for the puddles, and for the raw sewerage which twice filled the basement of Beachy's home to a depth of six inches. Crews were expected to track down the problem Wednesday after a great deal of phone conversations with officials from the contracting firm, health department and the county.

plan which would meet with SHA specs, and obtain approval of all facets of their proposal.

The SHA owns 118 feet of right of way on either side of Route 135 between Cee Dee Tavern and Deer Park, and at some future time may install a dual lane highway to meet the traffic needs along the road. Presently the area between Cee Dee and Sand Flat Road is the second heaviest traveled road in the county, surpassed only by Oak Street between the Third Street intersection and where Route 219 turns south.

Brownings presently lease the properties to the tenants at Mid-Towns and would continue this policy when new tenants express interest. The corporation feels that a clear view of the stores available and the high traffic count will prove an inducement to several firms at some time in the future.

The area where the shopping center is located is not governed by any zoning laws as it lies between the towns of Oakland and Mt. Lake Park.

Homeowners Anxious To Resolve Grantsville Sewer Rehab Problems

Problems appear to be well on their way to being solved in two separate situations in Grantsville, good news for two homeowners who have been anxious over the outcome of their individual issues for the past two months during the sewer rehabilitation.

Cries for help were unapparently unanswered to the homeowners' satisfaction until just this week. Mr. and Mrs. Luther Beachy had unexpected backups of sewerage into their home twice, while dynamite blasts put large crcks into and blew paint chips off the basement wall of the home owned by Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Saunders next door.

For the Beachys, the problems of sewerage lying on the ground in front of their home was bad enough, but when the noxious material backed up into their basement twice, it seemed the last straw. At the time, it seemed that inspectors assigned to the job by the state health department, Greenhorne

O'Mara, and other firms turned deaf ears. After the couple waded around and cleaned °eir basement twice, the contractors, Trimble, came in the day the county commissioners were expected to make a visit and did some more site work.

All they were told was that a pipe which was dumping material on top of the ground was a roof drain. Smells belied that deduction, however.

Numerous phone calls to county and state agencies began to have effect this week, however, and Trimble crews were instructed Wednesday to dig up the line which is emptying onto the ground, and follow both i and a nearby sewer line until the problems are discovered and corrected.

For Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Saunders, an elderly retired couple next door, things looked bleak indeed. They did not like the idea of a blasting crew from D. C. Guelich, Friedens, Pa., coming in to blast the eight feet of rockbed, but gave permission. They were later to bitterly regret that decision when 17 shots were fired in a 54-foot span. The closest blast to their house was only 17 feet from the corner of the house, an caused severe cracks in the rear basement wall.

The most visible crack is one inside, in the laundry area, where the wall is about three inches out of alignment at the bottom. Outside, there is a quarter-inch crack in two places at the corner of the foundation.

Because of Mr. Saunders' age and health, he appointed his son-in-law, Harland Upole, to have power of attorney in the matter. Upole called everyone involved, from site inspectors for Trimble and the state health department, to te heads of the the departments but got no satisfaction. He wants not only the wall dug up but he wants it presssure sealed with grout when it is rebuilt. This is the only way, he says, to put it right.

Although Trimble, the prime contractor, first said they would have their insurance firm take care of the matter, Upole was not satisfied with their answers.

A letter written July 27 by Trimble officials, however, should set Upole's mind at rest for the safety of his family. That letter proises to do the work as Upole requests and said Trimble's insurance company will take care of the work.

What do officials say° Naturally, in the midst of renovations such as this, some problems always crop up. William Poole, of the state health department sewerage division, said Wednesday morning that a professional engineer was on the job and he had been in constant touch with both the town officials and inspecting agencies and relies on their first-hand information. His department conducts sot checks because that is all the manpower they have, and in the Saunders case, he said "This takes time and the gentleman is concerned right now about the crack in the foundation."

Edgar Harman, head of the environmental division of the county health department, said Monday he was not aware of the severity of the problem. Tuesday he and staff members visited the Beachy site and conducted tests which resulted in calling in the contractor Wednesday.

Harman did note, however, that "If you want to see and smell sewerage, you should take a walk downstream from Oakland along the Little Yough, where 2,000 sewers deposit raw sewerage daily. This is true in other towns, too, he noted, and credited Grantsville with hurrying plans along for sewer rehab so that raw sewerage will no longer be dumped into the Casselman from that town.

Engineers and inspectors from Greenhorne & O'Mara, hired to inspect the work at Grantsville, first maintained that the pipe discharging on the ground from he Beachy home was from a roof drain and the puddle on the ground was rainwater. Further site inspection Tuesday, after a telephone conversation with a reporter from The Republican, brought another phone call with the information that it appears the assumption that the pipe is a rain gutter was wrong.

Calls to the county commissioners brought a site visit from Commissioner Elwood Groves and personnel manager Paul Shockey. Commissioner Groves noted that it seemed to him proper action to remedy he problems were in the works and that it would be worked out between the property owners and the insurance companies.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg, although he did not personally visit the site, said that the had tried to get some of the people involved together but the county officials have no real authority in such matters but as a matter of courtesy try to act as a catalyst in resolving issues such as the ones in Grantsville which caused a great deal of anguish for two property owners until the matter can be resolved.

Why The Tears? . . .

It is a bit strange that athletic competition between individuals representing scores of nations can evoke such an incredible sense of pride and patriotism, such as that being experienced this week by those of us who are watching the Olympic games.

Why is it that the tears roll down our face when one or more of our young people, who have just proven that they can swim the fastest, jump the highest or achieve the top score in a gymnastics event, stand before the United States flag as our National Anthem is being played? Is it because we admire them so much for having trained their bodies to accomplish feats that the vast majority of persons never dream of accomplishing? Are they tears of joyful triumph because our athletes have just defeated those of all the other nations?

While these thoughts may play a role in our emotional response, we believe that there are deeper feelings behind it.

The Olympic competition, the medals, the playing of the National Anthem and the expert coverage and color by ABC all combine to create a vivid reminder of who we are and what we have as Americans. We are reminded of the greatness of our nation, a thought that is taken for granted so often. When one of our athletes wins a medal, we are reminded of the great freedoms of our society that allow each of us to shoot for the stars in whatever field we choose. We are reminded that we can become among the best through our own efforts and sacrifice, without government subsidies, such as those provided to the athletes of the communist nations. The fear of defection by athletes which is characteristic of the Soviet Union remind us that their system of government does not work. How many of our athletes have ever "defected" to communist nations?

We cry because we identify with these great young people, certainly not in athletic ability, but in the fact that we are all Americans. Their victories are our victories. Their pride and excitement is also ours.

Finally, the Olympics make us feel good because of the love, comradery, courtesy and consideration that can truly be shared by people from all nations and all forms of government. Perhaps it is the warm feeling of hope for mankind created by this unique characteristic of the Olympic games that brings the tears.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

People are always putting down State Troopers, especially if they receive a ticket. Well, if it wasn't for three State Troopers a friend and I may have spent a Wednesday night along the road with some rabies serum going bad.

My daughter had been bitten by a kitten on July 8. The kitten was given away the next day, then ran away. The kitten couldn't be found so a gentleman from the Health Department suggested that my daughter receive the rabies shots.

On July 18 my friend and I drove to the Finan Center in Cumberland to pick up the serum. On our way home the truck broke down. It was after 11 p.m. and no one would stop.

Finally, an off-duty State Trooper stopped. He got us help and stayed with us until the help came. Then two other State Troopers transported us to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

If everyone was as kind, considerate and as helpful as these three men, then the milk of human kindness would be overflowing instead of drying up.

My heartfelt thanks to Troopers Thorp, Dave Brisco and Dale Williams. May God bless you forever.

Respectfully yours,
Beverly McCartin

To the Editor:

Hurray! Hats off to you! I had begun to despair of ever reading anything really substantive against President's Reagan's policies in your paper. "The outrage must be expressed editorial really did it! You made my day!"

I have read of this for years in the Washington Post and heard it elsewhere and nothing to date has been changed! I have written and written to Washington elected officials and no change, so anyone will have trouble convincing me President Reagan is any different from Mondale as far as "special interests" are concerned!

The rich are let off the hook by loopholes, the very poor are more oppressed. Some disabled are being emasculated by being totally removed from social security, while the "true program" rolls merrily on, needy or not in some cases; the normal cadre of "welfare welchers" go cheerfully on with their useless, senseless carefree lives as our nation goes deeper in debt! When will we wake up and act?

Dr. Pope reports an annual audit (once in five years) by an inexperienced new Health Auditor with recommendations for our Health Department and no elaboration or questions on the implementation of the recommendations? No questions or comments by any of the three commissioners representing we taxpayers? How come?

We have an uncontained "salt pile" in Friendsville and have had many in the general areas all over Garrett County for years. How are they affecting our water supply? Why is all this allowed to go on endangering our lives? Where are our elected officials who are supposed to be looking out for us all? Too interested in deer and rabid raccoons for votes? People are not as important as votes? Politics as usual? Help! Elected officials? Taxpayers? Concerned citizens? Now is the time! Think please!

This is my opinion.

McHenry Woman Hospitalized After Auto Mishap

A McHenry woman was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a one-car accident on Lake Shore Drive Sunday night.

According to police reports, Sandra Louise Stewart, 30, was traveling on Lake Shore Drive about one and one-half miles north of U.S. Rt. 219 when she failed to negotiate a curve, ran off the left side of the road and struck a utility pole.

Stewart has been charged with failure to keep to the right of center and driving under the influence of alcohol by Tfc. L.R. Rosage. Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad responded to the scene.

Five persons were treated and released at Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a two-car collision Saturday afternoon at the intersection of Rt. 495 and the Bittinger Road.

Darlene Rae Davis, 33, Oakland, operating a 1971 Pontiac LeMans, was traveling northbound on Rt. 495 when Jerome Zmuda, 25, Brownsville, Pa., who was traveling north on Rt. 495, attempted to make a left turn onto the Bittinger Road, failing to grant right-of-way to the Davis vehicle, and Daniel C. Lyons, 58, McKeesport, was riding in the Lyons car. No one was injured.

Tfc. D.G. Riggleman brought no charges as it could not be determined which party failed to honor the red light.

Approximately 100 door prizes have been donated by the business and professional community to help defray festival expenses.

Ham and chicken dinners will be available in the cafetorium, plus a variety of sandwiches outside. Chesapeake Berry ice cream, the official Maryland 350th anniversary ice cream, will be made available by High's Dairy Store, Oakland.

Other featured attractions include 100 descendants of 12 American Indian tribes, the 350th Hot Air Balloon, the Easy Rock and Roll Band, and a country western band.

O'Mara, gave a project update for the commission, noting that contracts nine and ten are proceeding smoothly. One concern at the treatment plant, however, is the ultraviolet light system. There has been no indication from the contractor on when the manufacturer plans to ship the system.

All of the major buildings and components at the plant are basically complete and ready for the electrical service to be hooked up the first of September.

Contractors for contract four of the basic system, Route 219 south, have been denied their requests for a time extension and thus are now exceeding their deadline. This means the firm may be subject to liquidated damages, according to Wendell Beitzel, sanitary district administrator. The contractor is presently placing the permanent patches over the cuts on Route 219.

Commissioners Appoint Mullich To EMS Board

Gary Mullich, director of general services for the county, was appointed to the Emergency Medical Services Advisory Board by the Board of County Commissioners Tuesday. Mullich is supervisor of emergency management for the county.

In other business Tuesday, the board met with George McLaughlin regarding his proposal to raise the Rt. 219 bridge over Deep Creek to a height of 30 feet, to allow sailboats to pass under the bridge. The commissioners told McLaughlin that such a move would be prohibitively expensive, and suggested that sailboat owners consider purchasing a fold-down mast to allow access to all parts of the lake.

The board toured the Southern Garrett County Industrial Park to familiarize themselves with the physical layout of the park.

They met in executive session for a large part of day, including meetings with Tom Jones, executive director of the county development office, James Sherbin, state's attorney, and John Reckner, of the county soil conservation service.

Investigation Into Theft By Gypsies Is Continuing

An investigation is continuing in the case of a band of gypsies who entered the Hill Top Fruit Market in Grantsville and stole $2,000.

Cpl. G.A. Berkebile of the Maryland State Police received a call on July 20 at 6:30 p.m. from Chester McFarland, owner of the Hill Top Fruit Market, to file a complaint on approximately 15-18 gypsies who entered his establishment to commit theft.

McFarland stated that some of the gypssies began making small purchases when one of the women asked if she could wash some strawberries. He permitted her to go to the rear area of the store while keeping her under observation. In the meantime, one or more of the gypsies forced open McFarland's office door and took $2,000 from his desk.

The band of gypsies left the establishment in seven separate vehicles travelling north. Tfc. C.M. Miller pursued the group but lost sight of them due to a hazardous material spill which had just occurred on Rt. 48.

On July 25, Lillian Lorraine Wilson, Oakland, filed a complaint with the Maryland State Police that her 1980 Ford Station Wagon had been stolen.

Wilson stated that she and the suspect were enroute from Hagerstown to Oakland when her companion asked if she would stop so he could use the bathroom. Upon returning to the car, the suspect claimed he had lost some money on the ground and asked Wilson to get out of the car and help find it. After they searched for a few minutes, the suspect ran to the car and proceeded to leave without Wilson. She ran to the car but he pulled off without her.

Tfc. Dale R. Williams is investigating.

On July 25, Leo LaVern Kapp, 52, Allison Park, Pa., reported that someone stole a yellow Hydroslide from his boat while it was docked at the Pizza Pub on Deep Creek Lake. The value of the stolen item is $135.

Now Is The Time To Seek Economic Stability In Western Maryland

by Senator Charles McC, Mathias, Jr.

The interesting action in the last few weeks has not been in Washington but in the main streets and small towns of America. I have had an opportunity to visit many parts of Maryland during the fourth of July recess and to see exactly how Marylanders are reacting to the improved economic climate. I was particularly pleased to find that in Western Maryland, which has traditionally been one of the hardest hit areas of our Maryland economy, unemployment is down and business activity is up. This does not mean that there are not still hard times in Western Maryland—in fact, the unemployment rate is still substantially above the national, and even the state average. Officials estimate that in addition to those who are listed as unemployed, there may be an equal number of people whose unemployment benefits have expired and who are no longer carried on the rolls as unemployed. So, there is no reason to be euphoric about the situation but we can be glad that the trend is upwards and I have confidence that it can get better.

The situation in Western Maryland has always been troubling because of the roller coaster profile of its economy. When the national economy improves, things get better in Western Maryland. But the reverse also is true. Before the recessionary cycle hits the national economy, Western Maryland begins to feel the effects of the problems. The area experiences an enormous dip earlier and it goes down deeper than the national economy's. It is this roller coaster that we should correct while the economy is on the upswing.

When the nation is in the grip of a recession or a depression then it is hard enough just to survive. During bad times people struggle just to provide the basic necessities of life. We now seem to be entering a period in which the economy will be improved. We should use this respite, this opportunity, to try to rebuild the roller coaster and to take out the deep loops that carry the Western Maryland economy so far down when there is a national recession.

I was glad, when visiting Cumberland, to see that there is a major development effort under way. I toured various parts of Western Maryland and briefly visited a development conference, at which the problem of the wild fluctuations in the economy was under discussion. One method of reducing the ups and downs, the violent swings of the economy, is to bring in a variety, a diversity, of small businesses and small enterprises that would not all be affected by the same swing in the market. To achieve this stability Western Maryland needs new business starts, strong community support, active participation by the State of Maryland and by the federal government. If this activity can be coordinated, the Western Maryland economy ultimately can achieve the kind of stability that we are seeing in the rest of the State. Economic stability should be our goal during the current economic upswing.

Owners Say Clearing Complete At Mid-Towns, But Development Uncertain

Earth-moving work at a much more visible Mid-Towns Plaza along Route 135 east of Oakland is now nearly complete, but owners of the plaza are unsure what future development may be.

That word came Wednesday from Don Browning, a partner in Browning's Inc., which owns Mid-Towns. Many rumors are circulating about what types of stores or restaurants may be going into the center, but Browning says as yet he has no firm commitment from any company to lease space at the center.

All present buildings are occupied by Heck's, Revco, Sandy's, First Federal, Radio Shack, the Mid-Town Theatres, and First United National Bank.

Browning's, Inc. recently hired a market research firm, DSR Marketing Systems, Deerfield, Ill., to conduct a detailed study of the entire marketing area which includes a radius of over 30 miles from Oakland.

Their findings show that increased development at the Mid-Towns center would prove a great shopping draw for the entire Oakland business district.

Because of the amount of dollars available to be spent in the demographic area, DSR reported, large, reputable companies should be interested in locating here.

With the completion of work by Frank Arnold Construction, seeding and mulching of the site can begin. Trees will also be planted at intervals according to a plan approved by the State Highway Administration and the Department of Natural Resources forestry division. In order to remove the trees which once screened the property from the highway, Brownings had to go through procedures to be bonded by the state, hire an engineering firm to design a

England and proclaimed himself a Roman Catholic, thus becoming a target of religious discrimination in England. "From that time on, he dreamed of planting a colony in the New World where men and women of different faiths could worship freely." Based upon that dream, Calvert prepared a charter for the new colony which was approved after Calvert's death.

"The Maryland Charter provided the foundation for two of our most basic American freedoms," Goldstein said, "representative government and the rights and privileges of private property . . . and religious toleration."

He continued, "We take religious freedom for granted today. But it is still only a dream in much of the world . . . Just stop and think about that when you watch today's events on television unfolding in Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Ireland, India, the Phillipines and the far east, all scenes of religious warfare."

Goldstein noted that the first Catholic church in the English speaking colonies, the oldest Episcopal church and the first Presbyterian church in the New World are all in Maryland. "Maryland also proudly claims the title as the birthplace of American Methodism," he said. He mentioned "Our Father's House," the log church at Altamont, stating that it is one of the last log churches in the eastern United States still in use. He spoke of the Sandy Creek church, organized by John Taylor in 1772 as the first Baptist church west of the Appalachians and the first church building of any denominations to serve an area that is now Garrett County.

"Garrett County owes a great deal of its unique religious heritage to the westward migration of the Lutherans, Dunkards and Mennonites," Goldstein said, "who came to Western Maryland during the late 1700s. While many kept moving westward, others liked what they saw, namely virgin forests, clean water, beautiful mountains, plenty of wild game, and they stayed here."

He mentioned the history of the Deer Park Hotel chapel and the first Catholic mission in what is now Garrett County, St. Mary's Mission of Blooming Rose. "In 1831 they built St. Mary's Church and Reverend Henry Meyers arrived as the first resident priest in Garrett County. Folks said that Father Meyers was a good hunter and fisherman and one of his early converts was Maryland's famous frontier hunter, Meshach Browning," Goldstein said.

"As we celebrate Maryland's 350th anniversary, let us look to what we have in common—not our differences—to build on Maryland's already proud religious heritage," he said. He then concluded his talke with a poem called "God's Country—Maryland."

The chairman of the Tolerance Sunday program was Mrs. Lewis R. Jones. Her committee included Tim Dugan, Cindy Kutchman, Phyllis Trickett, James McHenry and Randall Kahl.

Garrett County Week activities continue this evening with a slide presentation and commentary on The Braddock Road, by local historian Robert Ruckert. It will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Garrett Community College auditorium.

The Friendsville Summer Festival on Saturday, which features a wide variety of activities, will conclude the Garrett Week events.

Karen Hamilton Attends Meeting With President

Karen Hamilton, secretary of the Maryland Association of the Future Farmers of America (FFA) and immediate past president of the Oakland chapter of FFA, was one of 100 State FFA Officers who met July 24 with President Ronald Reagan.

The meeting at the White House was a highlight of a week-long State FFA Presidents' Conference in the nation's capital. The conference, sponsored by Chevrolet through the National FFA Foundation, Inc., is designed to help new state officers lead more effectively by expanding their knowledge of the FFA and the nation.

Miss Hamilton, 18, is a daughter of W. Brooks Hamilton, Jr., Oakland. She was elected secretary of the Maryland FFA Association at the State FFA Convention on June 23, 1984.

Reagan told the group, "You represent the best in America. FFA is giving more than a fine start to young people like yourselves. By cultivating traditional values, leadership skills and patriotism, the FFA ensures the strength and vitality of our country."

He praised business and industry for their support of vocational agriculture. "FFA has some 14,000 adult teachers and state advisors who are good caring Americans who are offering a gift of a lifetime, the gift of opportunity and it's all made possible in part by the generosity of the private sector," he said. This year business and industry are expected to give more than $2 million to provide incentive awards to FFA members.

Following Reagan's speech, the National FFA Officers presented him with a plaque commemorating the White House visit.

Earlier in the day, FFA members attended a Congressional Luncheon on Capitol Hill with remarks from Senator Robert Dole and Congressman E. (Kika) de la Garza.

Secretary of Agriculture John Block spoke to the group on Friday.

National FFA President Ron Wineinger said, "This week in Washington is not only an opportunity for FFA officers to grow personally, but also an opportunity for all of us together to tackle the challenges in education and agriculture."

The group toured historic points of interest in Washington, D.C., and attended a theatrical performance at the Lazy Susan Dinner Theatre.

Haylage—Only With Top Management

I see more and more haylage being stored as round bales in plastic bags. This practice can be disastrous if you don't follow proper procedures. the feed will be no better than the quality you put into the plastic bag. For good protein content and digestibility, it is important to harvest hay before it approaches maturity. Haylage should be dried down to at least 65% moisture and no lower than 40% moisture. Below 40% moisture you can get some problems with overheating. It is important that you match your bale to the bag size. There should be very little air space between the bag and the bale. Loosely bagged bales will flex in the wind causing puncture and ruptured seams. Also rodents can puncture the bag, therefore you should bait for rodents. Any air leakage will lead to spoilage. Probably the biggest mistake made is baling more than you can get into the bags in a reasonable time. Finally, the quality of the haylage will only be as good as the seal on the bag. Make sure you have a forage analysis.

Phytophthora Root Rot In Alfalfa

If you have noticed your alfalfa turning yellow and wilting, there is a good chance that the plant has Phytophthora Root Rot. I have seen quite a lot of this disease lately. The disease has been promoted by the wet season that we have had. You can easily identify the disease by digging a suspect plant and examining the root system. This disease causes the roots to rot off. Eventually the main tap roots rot away. Nothing can be done at this time to cure the disease. The two most important management practices are 1) Use adopted, disease resistant varieties; 2) Avoid planting alfalfa in wet, poorly drained areas.

Verticillium Wilt On Tomatoes

This disease is caused by a fungus and is common on tomatoes, potatoes, eggplants, peppers, strawberries and raspberries. The wet weather has caused this disease to be more prevalent this year. Leaf symptoms appear on oldest leaves first and later develop on younger leaves. Leaves turn yellow, dry up and drop prematurely. Shoot tips wilt slightly during the day. As defoliation progresses, tip leaves may curl upward at the margin but usually remain alive. Internal woody stem tissue, particularly at the lower part of the stem, is distinctly darkened. The disease is caused by a soil-borne fungus that can persist for many years. The only thing that you can do is to plant resistant varieties.

Production Of Small Grain Up

If expectations are realized, farmers will harvest a 5,670,000 bushel wheat crop, up six percent from 1983.

Barley production is expected to total 5,510,000 bushels, 11 percent above the 1983 production.

Oat production is expected to total 855,000 bushels, nine percent above the 1983 production.

Rye production is expected to total 203,000 bushels, a decline of 15 percent.

The apple crop is projected to be 72,000,000 pounds, three percent above the 70,000,000 pounds produced in 1983.

The peach crop is expected to total 19,000,000 pounds, 15 percent fewer than in 1983.

Maryland Loses Money In Lottery In Fourth Quarter

State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein has notified Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City that they will not receive any of the $9,000,293.07 in LOTTO revenue for the three months ending June 30, 1984 and that the State will also withhold an additional $1,390,453.94 from the income tax revenue to be distributed to them during August, 1984.

The withholding is necessary because of the winning streak by players in the State Lottery's other numbers games. The high prize payouts meant lower State revenue from the Lottery. The 1983 legislation creating the LOTTO game provided that the first year's LOTTO revenue would go to the 23 counites and Baltimore City unless the State Lottery Agency failed to collect $209,585,000 for the State's General Fund during Fiscal Year 1984.

"State Lottery Director Martin M. Puncke notified our office this week that State General Fund Lottery revenue for Fiscal Year 1984 totaled $199,194,253, or $10,390,747 less than the revenue specified in the legislation creating the LOTTO game, Goldstein said.

The comptroller noted that he must comply with Article 88D, Section 8A (3) (d) of the Annotated Code of Maryland, enacted by the 1983 Session of the General Assembly. The law is specific in its requirement that any General Fund shortfall in lottery revenue must be recovered, first from the subdivisions' share of LOTTO revenue for the three months ending June 30, 1984, and second from other funds distributed to the subdivisions, such as the local income tax.

"The Board of Revenue Estimates called attention to the possibility of this withholding action several times during the past year," Goldstein said, noting that the Maryland Association of Counties had also warned its membership of the revenue recovery earlier in the spring.

While the various State Lottery games did not produce the $209,585,000 estimated earlier, it wasn't for a lack of players. Instead, players have been winning at a record rate and the prize payout rate is higher than would normally be expected.

Fourth quarter LOTTO revenue withheld from Garrett County totals $20,700.67 and income tax revenue to be withheld from the county is $3,198.05.

Men Sentenced In Vandalism Case

Two young area men were sentenced to 18 months at the Maryland Department of Corrections and fined $100 plus court costs after being found guilty of destruction of property at the Crellin Elementary School on April 26. Garrett County District Court Judge Jack R. Turney handed down the sentence during court proceedings on July 24.

Donald Ray Kisner, Jr., 19, and Gordon Ernest Ray Kisner, 19, both of Crellin, were also sentenced to 18 months at the Maryland Department of Corrections for theft at the Crellin School, to run concurrently with the first sentence. Judge Turney suspended the sentences, fined the men an additional $50 plus court costs and ordered them to make restitution to the Garrett County Board of Education in the amount of $696.03. Breaking and entering charges against the pair were declared nolle prosequi.

In another case involving breaking and entering and theft, Angelo K. Sweeney, 19, and David Michael Dorsey, 19, both residents of the Long Stretch Youth Home, near Grantsville, were found guilty of those charges stemming from an incident at the Rt. 40 Elementary School. Sweeney was given a six-month suspended sentence for breaking and entering, an 18-month suspended sentence for theft, and a $50 fine plus court costs. Judge Turney also ordered that Sweeney serve 24 months of supervised probation and remain a resident of the Long Stretch Youth Home until his release.

Dorsey was given a six-month suspended sentence and fined $50 plus court costs for breaking and entering and an 18-month suspended sentence and 24 months of supervised probation for theft. He was also ordered to maintain his residence at the Long Stretch Youth Home until his release.

In a case of destruction of property, Benjamin Neal Wilt, 30, Oakland, was found guilty and given an 18 month suspended sentence and fined $1,000 plus court costs. He was charged for destroying the screen door on the apartment of Tammie L. Wilt in Oakland on June 13. Wilt was also given 36 months of supervised probation on the conditions of his continuing alcoholic counseling, serving 1,000 hours of community service at the local hospital, making restitution for the screen door and having no contact with Ms. Wilt.

Randy L. Adams, 25, Chambersburg, Pa., was found guilty of destruction of property in a May 30 incident in which Adams ran into the side of a vehicle belonging to Sharon K. Hahn, Deer Park, was sentenced to one year at the Maryland Department of Corrections and fined $50 plus court costs. Judge Turney suspended the sentence and ordered 18 months of supervised probation for Adams.

Jeffrey A. Corbell, 21, Mt. Lake Park, was found guilty of destruction of property stemming from an incident on Rt. 135 near Swanton on November 19, 1983 which involved damages done to a motor vehicle owned by Richard G. DeWitt, Swanton. Corbell was fined $15 plus court costs and he must observe 12 months unsupervised probation and must make restitution to DeWitt.

Judge Turney ordered a presentence investigation for Arnold W. Miller, 18, Mt. Lake Park, for use of an unauthorized motor vehicle belonging to Iva N. Miller, Mt. Lake Park, on April 15.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Charles F. Marchinke, 23, Barton, found guilty of theft and impersonating a police officer in an incident which occurred May 19 at Big Run State Park. Marchinke falsely represented himself as a park ranger with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources and fined a tourist $45 for unauthorized use of a pavilion, reduced the fine and told the tourist not to mention his leniency to the other park rangers. The tourist got Marchinke's licence number and reported the theft. Karl E. Christensen, park ranger, brought the charge against Marchinke.

Judge Turney also ordered a pre-sentence investigation for Haven D. Chapman, 30, Shallmar, after being found guilty of a charge of battery upon James E. Walkinger, Kitzmiller, on June 9. Chapman was also ordered to refrain from excessive drinking.

Randy L. Adams, 26, Chambersburg, Pa., was found not guilty of a charge of destruction of property stemming from a May 30 incident in which Adams was charged with defacing the lawn and driveway of Kathleen A. Friend.

Probation before judgement was the decision made by Judge Turney for James A. Schroyer, 23, Baltimore, on six bad check charges. Schroyer wrote a total of 12 bad checks to Randy's Place, an establishment owned by Walter L. Butler, Accident. Six counts of theft were declared nolle prosequi. Schroyer must pay $60 in fines plus court costs on the bad check charges and observe six months unsupervised probation.

Appeals Court To Hear P.J. Case

The Maryland Court of Appeals has agreed to hear a case brought by Oakland area residents who were unhappy over a Garrett Liquor Board decision to grant a special class D beer, wine and liquor license to P.J.'s Discount Liquors adjacent to Browning's Foodland.

The residents had previously appealed the liquor board's decision to the county Circuit Court, where Associate Circuit Court Judge Gary G. Leasure affirmed the decision to grant the license. Sports And Sociability Mingle At Western Maryland Tennis Tourney

THE 63RD ANNUAL WESTERN MARYLAND TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS, in progress this week at the Mountain Lake Park Tennis Club, is the oldest clay court tournament in the state of Maryland. Director of the tournament in its early years was George Sawin, a Westinghouse executive from Pittsburgh, pictured above swinging a racket on the club courts. The tournament weathered a World War, the Depression, bad weather, and other adversities to continue a tradition that brings to mind the days when Mountain Lake Park was a major summer resort where residents pursued a leisurely life filled with tennis, croquet, and other genteel pursuits.

TENNIS CLUB PRINTS by artist Jim Willis will be on sale this week at the 63rd annual Western Maryland Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Mt. Lake Park Tennis Club. The print sale is being conducted as a fundraising activity, with proceeds to be used for improvements to the club facilities. The scene pictured in the prints is little changed from the appearance of the courts and gallery in early photographs of the event in the club's archives. There are over 100 entries in this year's tournament, which include ranked players from the national and Mid-Atlantic Region tennis tours.

by Joan Sussman

The Western Maryland Tennis Championships, a social and sporting event that has been a highlight of the summer season in Mountain Lake Park since 1920, will return to the clay courts at the Mountain Lake Park Tennis Club this week.

The tournament is the oldest clay court tournament held in Maryland, as well as one of the oldest on the eastern seaboard, according to David DeGrafft, president of the sponsoring Mountain Lake Park Tennis Club. The unique surface, which features a few spots that contribute to occasional unexpected bounces of the tennis balls, reportedly had to be saturated with gasoline and set on fire to dry out enough to play on one year, according to former University of Maryland tennis coach Doyle Royal, a long-time tournament competitor.

This year's tournament will feature ranked players from the national and Mid-Atlantic circuits, according to DeGrafft, who said that the number one seed in the Men's Singles Open Division will be Kevin Manning, who plays regularly on the men's pro circuit. Also playing this year will be six out of the top 18 ranked men in the 55 and older division, and two top-ranked men in the 65 and over category from the Mid-Atlantic region.

Although no one is sure when the tennis courts were first constructed at their current location, records of the Women's Civic Club of Mountain Lake Park, which was instrumental in promoting tennis on the mountaintop, as well as sponsoring the early tournaments, show expenditures for improvements on the courts as early as 1908. The club held a tennis tournament which featured tin cups for prizes in 1915, followed by subsequent tournaments with better cups that drew entries from the Clarksburg, Fairmont, and Wheeling areas.

A major source of impetus for the growth of tennis and the tournament on the mountaintop was Miss Kate McLain, Mountain Lake Park. As a member of the Women's Civic Club in the early part of the century, she worked hard for court improvements, and served on the tennis committee through the 1940s.

The July 31, 1919 issue of "The Republican" stated that, "Tennis seems to be reviving in popularity after two years' slumber during the war and the absence from town of those who were engaged in the more serious business of putting balls over not made of rubber."

The 1920 tournament, the first to be sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, included a young man named Jennings Randolph, who later went on to a long career as a U.S. Senator, which continues today. Senator Randolph, now 82 and a regular visitor to the area, will be attending the tournament this weekend. He captured the Senior Men's Doubles title in 1951, partnered with another long-time competitor, Walter Pollard.

Senator Randolph remembers the 1920 winner, John Brown, of Connellsville, Pa., as a talented piano player who intrigued the other competitors with his singing performances at the piano at the old Mt. Lake Park Hotel.

The Senator pointed out this week that the winners of the men's singles competitions over the years include an impressive array of accomplished men from a variety of fields, including the 1922 winner, Wright Hugus, a distinquished West Virginia lawyer who later served in the West Virginia Senate; the 1930 winner, Bob Considine, noted author and sports editor of the Washington, D.C. Times-Herald; and the 1969 and 1970 winner, John Williams, West Virginia State Tennis Champion.

As tennis coach and athletic director at Davis-Elkins College in the years following his graduation from college, Senator Randolph brought three of his students to the tournament in 1929. One of the three was Robert "Red" Brown, who served as basketball coach and later athletic director of West Virginia University. Brown has competed in all but two of the Mountain Lake tournaments since his debut in 1929, and will be competing in the Over 65 division this year.

Another member of the Davis-Elkins delegation in 1929 was James "Jimmy" Allen, who later served as Commissioner of Education for West Virginia, and eventually for the United States.

By the mid 1930s the tournament was drawing entries from Pittsburgh, Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Chicago, Wheeling, Cumberland, Charleston, and other cities of the region, as well as summer residents of the area.

According to a history of the tournament written for its Golden Anniversary in 1971 by Earl Palmer Brown, tournament director, social activities during tournament week came to the fore during the 1930s.

Nelson and Susie Thomasson, co-hosting a corn roast this year with members of the Pollard family on their properties in Mountain Lake Park, held their first tournament corn roast 30 years ago. In recent years, the corn pit has been moved up the hill from its original location, after a cloudburst several years ago left revellers "standing up to their knees" in the mud. Mrs. Thomasson said that about 250 persons are expected at this year's corn roast, which will feature more than 50 dozen ears of corn.

Other social events this week include the President's Reception, held Wednesday evening at the home of David DeGrafft, a buffet dinner at the Will O' the Wisp Thursday, and a courtside chili party at the home of Marianne and Ed Green Saturday evening.

The tournament was dealt a blow by World War II, which halted competition for two years. Around that time the Civic Club turned over the club facilities to the town of Mt. Lake Park, followed by the formation of the Mt. Lake Park Tennis Club, which renewed the tournament, featuring war bonds as prizes, in 1944.

During the fifties the tournament regained its flourishing status, with players from the Washington, D.C. area dominating the play.

The courts were purchased from A. D. Naylor in 1957 by the Allegheny Corporation, which opened the courts to the people of Garrett County.

Tournament director Brown said that the involvement of local residents such as Kathie Smith and Jack Jones has been a definite asset that has resulted in improved facilities at the club. Mrs. Smith serves as tournament secretary, coordinating entries and scheduling matches, as well as attending to a myriad of details. Mr. Jones is a member of the players' committee for the tournament.

Mrs. Smith said that participation in the tournament by local year-round residents continues to grow, with more than half of the women competing this year hailing from Garrett and Allegany Counties. Mrs. Smith, who also coordinates the Mt. Lake Park Ladies' Tennis League, said that 48 women from the area participate in the league, which will be represented by member Denise Helbig in this year's tournament.

The long-time participation of many loyal supporters has made the tournament special, according to members of the sponsoring club. Many people have competed for more than 20 years, moving up from open competition through the ranks to senior division, for those 65 and older. This long-time support, as well as the friendly, social nature of the tournament, should ensure its existence well into the 21st century.

Oakland Sweeps Cumberland Before Dropping A Pair To Tri-Towns

Oakland continues to struggle to make the top four teams in the nine-team Pen-Mar League final standings as the local team split four games this past weekend. Oakland swept Cumberland on Saturday, 12-3 and 12-7; however then dropped a pair to Tri-Towns on Sunday, 8-7 in ten innings and 9-2.

Although Oakland will definitely be playing in the end-of-the-season league tournament, which involves all nine teams, there is also a championship tournament in which only the top four teams participate. Everett, Tri-Towns and Hyndman seem to have three of the spots locked up, while Mt. Savage, Moorefield and Oakland are battling for the final berth. Oakland still has a doubleheader to play against Mt. Savage, but will not face Moorefield again.

The nine-team tournament will be played August 25-26 and the championship event will be September 8-9.

In the first contest against Cumberland on Saturday, Ed Wildesen recorded a pair of singles and a triple, scored three runs and finished with three RBIs to lead Oakland's 12-hit attack. Tim and Francis Mouse each scored twice and Francis rapped two hits. Dean Marsico and Dave Bender each chipped in with doubles.

Brian Gray and Jeff Felker paced the losers with two hits each as Mike Brady held Cumberland to just six hits in gaining the win.

Eight of Oakland's nine starters scored in the first inning of the second game.

Phil Caruso led off with a double, followed by a home run by Francis Mouse. Bender, Mark Tysinger and Marsico all singled in that inning.

Francis Mouse finished with three hits, Bender, Tysinger and Marsico each had two.

Handling the pitching duties were Mark Rodeheaver, Marsico and Tim Mouse, with Rodeheaver getting credit for the win.

Cumberland recorded seven hits, as Jeff Welker and Jeff Sisk each had two. Dave Peer scored twice. Sisk and Joe Litten were the losing pitchers.

Oakland jumped off to a first inning 2-0 lead in the first game against Tri-Towns on Sunday when Mark Tysinger delivered a clutch two-out, two-run single.

Tri-Towns bounced right back, however, in their half of the first with three runs. They scored again in the third when Phil Cook tripled and came home on a sacrifice fly by Ron O'Reilly.

Oakland came up with a run in the fifth when Nesselrodt walked, stole second and came home on Tim Mouse's single. O'Reilly singled for Tri-Towns in the sixth and came home on a bunt by Brian Cueva.

Oakland sent the game into extra innings in the seventh when Dave McLaughlin singled, Nesselrodt doubled and both came home on another Tim Mouse single.

It appeared as though the Oaklanders would gain the victory when they recorded four straight hits good for two runs in the tenth inning. Francis Mouse doubled and Phil Carr, Tysinger and Marsico all singled. However, in the bottom of the tenth, Tri-Towns scored a run on a fielder's choice and picked up to more unearned scores for the win.

Wendell Spitzer gained the win on the mound over Steve Mohr.

Oakland managed to score only two hits in the second contest, while Tri-Towns recorded 13. Oakland could not take advantage of 12 walks.

Jim Lannon and Ron O'Reilly provided the offensive fireworks for the winners as each blasted three home runs. Lannon, Angelo Taylor, Phil Cook and Bill Duckworth each finished with two hits.

Ed Nealis gained the win over Francis Mouse.

Oakland will meet Salisbury this Sunday afternoon on the Southern High School diamond.

THE AMERICAN BURGER CENTER BALL FIELD officially opened on Monday evening with Buddy's Towing taking two games from Mt. Top Paving. Dick Williams spearheaded the ball field project and the following people and businesses handled the task of completing the field: Frank Arnold, contractor, Delmont Corbin, operator, Potomac Engineering and Surveying, Mt. State Wiring and Fence, Oakland Southern States, and Fairfax Sand and Stone Co. Willis Shaffer donated the land for use as a ball field. The field is presently being used by the Mt. Top Softball League and the Mt. Top Over 35 Softball League. Other leagues will be added later and the public is invited to attend any games played at the American Burger Center Ball Field. Pictured above are members of Buddy's Towing and Mt. Top Paving, the first teams to compete on the new field.

THE AWARD OF EXCELLENCE for being selected the best cheerleading squad at a four-day National Cheerleaders' Association camp held recently at Hood College, Frederick, was presented to the Southern High School varsity cheerleaders. The local girls captured not only the top award, but every other award offered at the camp, including a megaphone for being tagged the best spirit squad, spirit sticks on three out of four days, plus a take-home spirit stick. They were also selected by the other squads at the camp as the squad that made the best impression at the camp. The All-American Cheerleader award, presented to just one out of the 350 girls who attended the camp, was awarded to Wendy Bosley of Southern. Sandy Mason was one of six nominees for the award. The Southern squad is advised by Sandi Smith, who received a superior advisor award. The young squad is composed of two freshmen, seven sophomores and just two seniors. They are, left to right, front row, Kim Grimm, Wendy Bosley and Becky Welch; second row, Lori McCain, Robin Damon, Chelle White, and Sandy Mason; third row, Shannon Livengood, Tonya Bray, Mandy Bosley, captain, and Tracy Martin.

PLAYING NOW at the Garrett County Playhouse, Deep Creek Lake, is Roger Hall's "Middle-Age Spread", featuring RoseAnne Armigo and Chris von Eckartsberg, pictured above during a rehearsal. The production, directed by guest Gerry Snelson, of Northern High School, will run through Saturday evening. "Middle-Age Spread" is a somewhat surprising comedy about facing the future, not only whatever future the world might have, but one's own future from the standpoint of what's known as middle-age. All performances at the Playhouse begin at 8:30 p.m. Reservations may be made at any of the three pharmacies in Oakland. Neil Simon's "Come Blow Your Horn" will open next Wednesday.

A BLOB OF MOLTEN FIBERGLAS was about all that remained of this 17-foot Wellcraft boat after it caught fire Sunday afternoon. Denise M. Folz, Rockville, was operating the vessel in the State Park area of the lake when it burst into flames at about 4 p.m., according to a DNR official. Ms. Folz was not injured. Responding to the fire were members of the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Department. The fire apparently originated in the outboard area of the boat, however the cause is still under investigation by Sgt. Ed Waddell, of the DNR.

Arrests Include Abduction, Theft, B&E, Vandalism

Robert Lynn Layton, 23, has been charged in the abduction of an individual under the age of 16. Layton was charged by Deputy Charles P. Nolan on April 7 after he allegedly persuaded an individual under the age of 16 to leave home on March 10 in Oakland. Layton turned himself in to Deputy Kutchman on July 30. He was released from the Garrett County Jail on $250 posted bail. The investigation is being continued.

David Lee Hardesty, 35, Oakland, Steven Allen Hardesty, 21, Deer Park, and Joseph Michael DeWitt, 22, Oakland, were all charged with breaking and entering, theft and destruction of property after a week's investigation. The three area men allegedly broke into Porky's Place, Oakland Drive, on the night of July 12 and removed property valued at more than $300. Steven Hardesty's bond has been set at $2,000, Michael DeWitt's at $1,500 and David Hardesty's, $1,000. The investigating and arresting officers in this case are Deputy David Crossland and Deputy Charles P. Nolan.

Following a chase by car and on foot, Dailey F. Lewis, Jr., 33, Rawlings, was apprehended and incarerated in the Garrett County Jail. Deputy Charles P. Nolan, in attempting to stop Lewis on a speeding charge on Rt. 39, pursued Lewis to Sterling Processing when Lewis finally stopped. After being ordered to stay in his car, Lewis fled on foot toward Bradley Manor. Officer Ronald Beeghly, OPD, and Deputies Larry Gnegy and P.K. Buckel arrived on the scene and the four officers finally apprehended Lewis at Apt. 210, Bradley Manor.

Lewis is charged with speeding, DWI, driving on a revoked license, fleeing a police officer, unregistered motor vehicle, no registration card in possession and improper tags. Lewis has been released on bail and is awaiting trial.

Deputy Charles P. Nolan arrested Francis G. Niner, Oakland, on July 25 on charges of theft. Niner allegedly stole $820 from Rose Marie Fales, Oakland. Niner is presently being held in the Garrett County Jail on $250 bond.

Ronald R. Thrasher, Deer Park, reported that someone destroyed the windshield of his Ford one-ton truck while it was parked at his place of business, Diamond Welding, on July 26. Estimated damage is $400. Deputy D.W. Tucker is investigating the case.

Deputy Kutchman is investigating a case in which Shirley Lucas, Kitzmiller, reported that unknown person(s) slashed the rear tires on her truck while it was parked in her driveway.

On July 21, Deputy P.K. Buckel recovered a canvas boat top found on Deep Creek Drive. The owner, upon making positive identification, may claim the boat top at the Garrett County Sheriff's Department.

ENORMOUS CONTRIBUTIONS of time, energy, enthusiasm and ability, along with material and financial contributions, have enabled Garrett County Habitat for Humanity to reach the halfway mark on the construction of its first house. The new residence of William and Catherine Teter at Table Rock is rapidly becoming a reality as volunteers from various churches and organizations lend a hand in the construction, which is under the supervision of Jake Powles. Volunteer help is being coordinated by Dorothy Morris. Habitat is an ecumenical housing ministry dedicated to eliminating sub-standard housing. For more information, persons may call 334-1731.

DECD Providing 11.5 Percent Home Mortgages

Department of Economic and Community Development Secretary Frank J. De Francis announced this week that $54 million is available in home mortgage loans to first-time homebuyers in Maryland through a network of 21 participating lenders statewide. The 30-year fixed-rate mortgages will be made at 11.5 percent.

"I am pleased that DECD can offer a mortgage rate over three percent below the conventional lending rates in an effective partnership with mortgage lenders in every county," said De Francis in making the announcement. "We expect that over 1,000 mortgage loans will be made through this offering."

In this mortgage loan program, participating lenders will make below-market interest rate loans to eligible applicants who would not qualify for conventional home financing at the current average rate of 14 percent. The state, through DECD's Community Development Administration, then purchases the mortgages from the participating lending institutions.

To qualify for this home financing, single individuals must have a maximum of $28,000 or less and families of two or more must have a maximum combined income of $33,000 or less.

Newly constructed or existing single-family residences, including townhouses, detached or semi-detached homes and condominum units are eligible for financing. Modular homes qualify for financing if they carry the state seal of approval for code compliance.

The maximum purchase price in Garrett County is $66,000.

Persons in Garrett County interested in securing a loan should apply directly to the participating lending institutions, including the Guaranty Mortgage Corporation. Dale Sweitzer, Oakland, is a representative for this firm and may be contacted at 387-5931. Also participating in the program are First Federal Savings Bank of Western Maryland (724-3363) and the First National Bank of Maryland (787-6003.)

This loan program, the Mortgage Purchase Program, has provided financing for 4,503 homes for mortgages totaling $186,307,010. The program was established in 1980.

Animals From Around The World Are Adopted At M & S Zoo

MUNCHING LUNCH - This local llama is unperturbed by the camera lens as he chews hay for lunch. He and cagemates three pygmy goats are part of the local zoo maintained by M & S Wild Animal Zoo along the Oakland-Sang Run Road.

by Carol Canan

Strange sounds and cries fill the air surrounding a 24-acre tract along the Oakland-Sang Run Road. If a visitor closed his or her eyes, they might imagine that they are in the deepest wilds of Africa.

They could imagine, for instance, a cougar whose purr sounds like a generator without a muffler, exotic birds with colorful plumage and even more exotic calls, an emu with a deep-throated call unlike any other, as well as roars from lions, a tiger, bobcats; and bleats of sheep, pygmy goats and deer, a yak and a llama.

This is the site of the area's only zoo. It is owned and operated by Ralph Strausser, of West Virginia, and his "silent" partner, Ed Moore. The M and S Wild Animal Zoo has been in operation for three years, each year adding more animals.

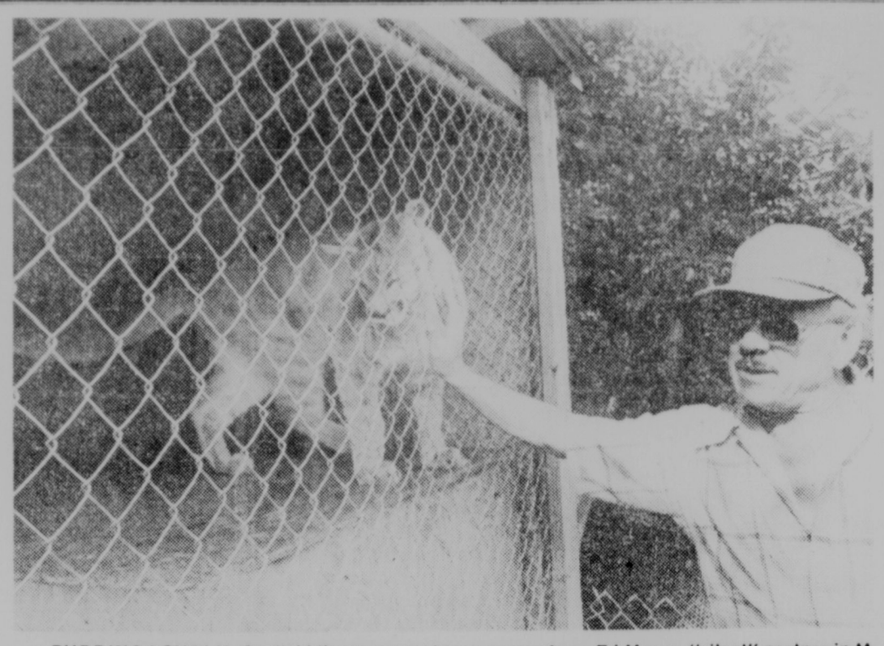
The zoo is operated by both men, who take part in feeding chores and cage cleaning, as well as the more gratifying visitor tours. Because of rapid expansion of the facility, not all the cages are as large as the owners would like. Future plans, according to Moore, are to fence the entire property and turn the tame deer loose to roam as they please. Also to be included will be a petting park, a new entrance for visitors, and bags of feed which can be purchased and fed to the animals.

Right now there are numerous fawns and young deer at the zoo, brought in at various times by the Department of Natural Resources personnel when the animals are known to have been orphaned. These bottle-fed babies are entrancing with their big eyes and delicately spotted coats. White and black fallow deer are also among the animals on display.

Moore, who showed a total familiarity with nearly all the animals (a first-name basis in most cases) said that nearly all the remainder of the animals come from animal and wildlife parks and ranches along the east coast. Interesting facts about many of the animals are brought out during the visitor tour, such as that bobcats cost $500 at age five weeks, but the price decreases to $125 after the animals mature. This is because they become unmanageable as house pets as they get older and so people are anxious to get rid of them.

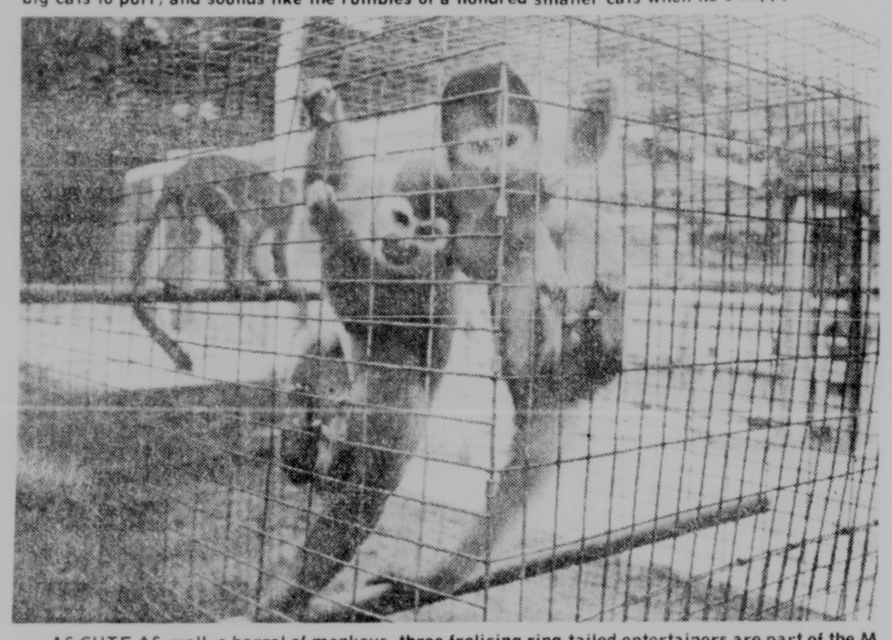
More and more visitors are finding their way to see the zoo, despite the fact that the facility has been denied permission to erect signs along Route 219.

Visitors may follow the Oakland-Sang Run road past the Country Club if coming from the Oakland area, or the Mayhew Inn Road to the Oakland–Sang Run Road if coming from Route 219.



Feeding time, a highlight of the day for the animals and birds, takes about one and a half hours twice a day. The cats are fed their ration of raw chicken during the late evening.

Each of the larger cats eats about 60 pounds of chicken a day, obtained from a place in Pennsylvania 1,000 pounds at a time.



Annual cost of feed, Moore estimated, is approximately $3,000 a year, including the 600 bales of hay needed for the deer, yak, goats, and four–horned sheep. The diets are supplemented with fresh greens from local markets, dog pellets from farm supply stores, and other stock feeds.

Albino raccoons, complete with pink eyes and light coats, are one of the unusual animals on view. These two are from a farm in Ohio which raises four colors of raccoons and foxes.

For a nominal fee of $1.50 for adults and $1 for children under 10, local residents and visitors need not travel to Washington, D. C., Pittsburgh or Cleveland to view wildlife from other countries. Many unusual animals are now right in their backyard, so to speak.

PURRING LOUDLY, Garfield the cougar enjoys a caress from Ed Moore, "silent" partner in M & S Wild Animal Zoo not far from Oakland. Garfield is a hand-raised and litter trained pet obtained when a cub from Bechtel's Animal Farm in Pennsylvania. Although declawed, he still has fangs he shows often in a cat grin as he enjoys showing off for the zoo visitors. The cougar is the only one of the big cats to purr, and sounds like the rumbles of a hundred smaller cats when he's happy.

AS CUTE AS, well, a barrel of monkeys, three frolicing ring-tailed entertainers are part of the M & S Zoo in this county. The bright-eyed trio are a sure hit with children who fined them irresistible. Other inmates at the zoo include Terry, the four-year-old African lion and his mate; Big Red the cinnamon bear and Gertrude the black bear; and Sheba, the friendly Bengal tiger; a yak, and an Emu from Australia, which lays an egg weighing 2½ pounds.

Grain Requires

grain under loan to make room for their 1984 grain must make arrangements in advance to do so.

"Farmers who plan to commingle their 1984 and 1983 harvests and request a loan, also need to make arrangements with our office," Davis said.

He said grain under regular or reserve loan is mortgaged and if it is removed before repayment of the loan or receipt of release authorization, it is considered unauthorized removal and subject to penalty. The penalty consists of immediate repayment of the loan, plus interest, plus early redemption, if applicable, denial of further loans and possible investigation by the Office of the Inspector General.

To help maintain the quality of grain under loan, farmers may rotate their farm-stored grain as new crops are harvested.

One rotating method is for the farmer with sufficient storage capacity to store his most recent harvest on his farm, and then obtain authorization from the county ASC committee to release the older crops from other bins.

If a farmer does not have sufficient storage space, upon approval of the county ASC committee, grain under loan can be released to the farmer up to 30 days before he or she expects to have the new grain harvested. The grain can then be removed from the bin and sold or fed.

A third method is for the producer to get permission from the county ASC committee about 90 days before harvest to release the grain under loan which is then placed in a licensed warehouse. "We will hold the warehouse receipt until 30 days before harvest," Davis stated.

The ASCS official also reminds farmers that careful and regular inspections of their farm-stored crops at this time are particularly important. Producers with price support loans are responsible for the quality of the grain through the loan's maturity date.

Deputy Attorney General Speaks At Democrat Fete

The "Kick-off to Victory" covered dish picnic held July 24 by the Garrett County Democratic Club at the Garrett County Fairgrounds featured an address by Deputy Attorney General Eleanor Carey, and musical entertainment by "Southpaw", a country music group.

Chefs Frank Finch and Dave Beard prepared hot dogs and hamburgers to add to the variety of foods available at the picnic, which was well attended by county Democrats.

During the evening voter registration was conducted for those not registered for the November national election.

Beverly Byron will also be seeking re-election as 6th District Congresswoman.

William Goldsborough, club president, introduced Ms. Carey, a candidate for Attorney General in the 1986 election. She was accompanied by her campaign coordinator, Mimi Waxter, and Linda Golden, Allegany County Commissioner, and member of a Cumberland law firm.

Although she has not yet officially filed, Ms. Carey said that she plans to do so by the summer of 1986, and was quoted as saying, "I have served as second in command and feel I have the judgment and experience to be in the leadership position. It is one of the most fascinating jobs in the state. We touch base on almost every department and aspect of the government." Beginning her career as a clerk to Judge Thomas Hunter Lowe, she was later in private law practice with a Baltimore firm. She ran Sach's campaign in 1978 and was named associate deputy attorney general in 1979 and deputy attorney general in 1982. Carey said her main responsibilities have been setting the policy for the office and the hiring and supervision of the 213 assistant attorneys general.

When Sachs decided to run for governor, Ms. Carey said, "It seemed the right time" to put herself in the running for attorney general. She said she would not have run against Sachs, had he chosen to run again.

Carey cited an experience she had had some years ago when she and some of her friends had become lost along the Youghiogheny River and ended up in the town of Friendsville, and that she will never forget the kindness extended to them by the people of the town.

James Combs, an Allegany Countian who recently returned from the Democratic Convention and who served as an Alternate representing the state of Maryland, spoke briefly to the group. Combs plans to speak before the local Democratic Club in the near future at which time he will show pictures of San Francisco and will provide a video tape which contains speeches, scenes of the Convention floor, etc.

Also attending and recognized were Nina Conway, representative of U.S. Senator Paul S. Sarbanes; Margaret Barkman, representative of 6th Dist. U.S. Congresswoman Beverly Byron; Sheriff Frank Finch; County Commissioner John Braskey; George Meese, member of the Garrett County Liquor Control Board; and, representing the Garrett County Central Committee, Chairman Donald H. Fratz, and Doris Goldsborough.

Numerous Firms Contacted To Spur Business Growth

Garrett County's Economic Development Department is presently directing streams of mailings to specific markets in attempts to lure additional business to the area.

According to a news release from Director Tom Jones this week, his staff has mailed between 250 and 300 brochures about the possibilities of Sterling Processing Plant to meat packing, frozen food, and wholesale food firms. Included are personal letters to the chief officers of each firm. In this way, Jones is hopeful to find a tenant for the site which has been idle for nearly a year, since Cargill stopped production of poultry.

Jones is also sending letters to lumber manufacturers, such as pallet makers, who could make use of the lower grade lumber generated in production here of furniture and other top-quality lumber products.

Although several responses have been received in both markets, nothing definite has evolved, Jones noted.

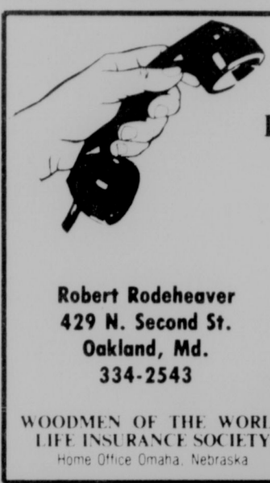
FEATURED AT FAIR — "Life", a vocal and instrumental music group whose performances are a combination of music, humor, and a message, will perform at the Garrett County Fair on Wednesday, August 15. Shows are scheduled for 7 and 9 p.m. Featured last year at over 60 county, state,and district fairs,"Life" has shared stages with acts such as Rick Nelson, Anita Bryant, Pat Boone, and Jim Nabors. The musical selections of "Life" encompass a wide variety of styles and eras, including big band sounds, early rock and roll, Broadway show tunes, contemporary pop, and country rock. Tuesday evening's entertainment will be the local country rock band, "Southpaw". Thursday evening the country band "Judge and Jury" will perform, with "The Vicksburg Quartet" as Friday evening's entertainment. Saturday evening "Daybreak" will be featured.



AN ANNUAL FUNDRAISER by the Southern High School Band Boosters is the operation of a chicken barbecue for seven straight weekends along U.S. Rt. 219 beside the Information Booth, Deep Creek Lake. A spokesman for the organization stated that the goal of the project is $8,000, which is then used for transportation of band students, insurance, uniforms and other expenses. In the photo, left to right, are Boosters Paul Wampler, John Michaels, who is chairman of the barbecue project, and Wayne Wilt. Photo by Judy Wilt.

POA Praises DNR Police Activities

Members of the Property Owners' Association of Deep Creek Lake sent a letter July 22 to Dr. Torrey Brown, Secretary of the Department of Natural Resources, praising efforts of DNR police on the lake this season.

The letter noted that a number of members spoke from the audience at the July membership meeting to express appreciation of police action to educate boaters and to enforce safety regulations. The membership also was favorably impressed by presentations made by Capt. Ray Thoms and Sgt. Robert Buckley. One of the results of their presentation is a proposal for a boat inspection sticker system on the lake.

The letter was signed by Ed Starr for Richard Barnes, president, and copies were sent to Sen. John Bambacus, Del. George Edwards and Michael Gregory, lake manager for DNR.

Legal Assistance Offered Free To County's Elderly

The Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., provides legal assistance to the elderly of Garrett County at no charge. Through the Maryland Office on Aging the Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., has hired a part-time senior aide, Geraldine Gilbert, Cumberland, who works as a legal assistant to increase the amount of help which the regular staff can provide to senior citizens in Garrett County.

Among the types of cases with which the Legal Aid Bureau can provide advice and representation to Garrett County senior citizens are: Social Security and SSI, Veterans matters, Black Lung, Medicaid and Medicare (including nursing home payments), guardianships (representing the person for whom guardianship is sought), simple wills, problems with landlords, consumer matters (including contracts, debt collections and problems with public utilities), food stamps and general public assistance. In addition, the staff of the Legal Aid Bureau can provide speakers for groups of senior citizens.

To find out if the legal problem is one with which the Legal Aid Bureau staff would be able to assist, Garrett County residents age 60 and over may call 344-8832. In addition they may come to one of the regular outreach days in Garrett County: in Oakland on the first and third Tuesday of each month from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Garrett Community College, Oakland Center, and in Grantsville at the Health Center, Basement Floor, on the second Tuesday of each month from 10 a.m. to noon. The Legal Aid Bureau staff will make home visits as well as visits to hospitals and nursing homes to interview prospective clients who because of a physical disability are unable to come to an outreach day.

There is no charge for this service and Garrett County residents age 60 and older are urged by Bureau officials to call the Legal Aid Bureau if they believe they have a legal problem.

Genius on the way up!

Maybe—and maybe not. Millions of us build our castles only in the sand.

The talents and skills which become evident as we grow up are gifts from God. What we are able to do with them depends on many human factors such as education, opportunity, attitude, aim and perseverance.

God is very much involved in the development of our talents. The Christian training, the spiritual environment of our "budding architect" can influence the way he develops and uses his God-given gifts.

Look around you each time you go to church. You'll see tomorrow's leaders learning from today's leaders to commit their talents to the service of God and man.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

RECOGNIZING THOSE "LAST DAYS"
August 5, 1984

Background Scripture:
2 Kings 16 through 17.

Devotional Reading:
2 Kings 17:34-41.

Norman Cousins' latest book, THE HEALING HEART (W.W. Norton) is a marvelous testimony about the spiritual dimensions of his recovery from a very serious heart attack in December, 1980.

But in an epilogue, Cousins closes the book on an ironic note:

What concerns me is that everyone's health--including that of the next generation--may depend more on the health of society and the healing of the nations than on the conquest of disease.

THINGS NOT RIGHT

When Cousins speaks of "the health of society," he is referring to the moral and spiritual condition of our society and the "sickness" of war and holocaust that looms over our world. If we fail to solve these challenges, he is saying, all the personal health measures in the world will not matter, for the condition of the patient -our world--is "critical." Only a world-wide response to these challenges, says Cousins, can keep the patient from becoming "terminal."

This is a startling, prophetic voice added to many others with essentially a similar message: we must change our world NOW, if it is to survive.

As I read these words I couldn't help wondering how many others would read them and pass on without bothering to pay any real attention to them. Yes, of course we know that our world is facing enormous problems, but, with the tremendous advances of technology taking place constantly, we find it difficult to think of our own era as even potentially "the last days."

So it was with the people of Israel in the 8th century B.C. It wasn't that they were not warned about their impending destruction. God had sent them one prophet after another, but when things are going reasonably well, who listens to a prophet? The people of Israel knew that all was not "right in the world," but they hardly recognized their times as "the last days of Israel"--which they were!

CHANGES THAT DELIVER

They, like we, often misunderstood the purpose of God's prophets. God sent these men, not to pronounce doom on Israel, but to motivate the people to make the changes in their lives that would deliver them from the consequences of the evils in their society: idolatry, human sacrifice and immorality.

That sounds like a description of our society, too. Idolatry is no less with us today than it was then (only its form is different), we have our own contemporary rituals of human sacrifice and immorality flourishes under many guises. Unless we are to eat the bitter fruits of our folly, we must bring about changes NOW, say the prophets. Who knows how long we may have? Is it possible that these could be for our world the "last days" we've always known would come "some day"?

Municipal League Discusses Potential 1985 Legislation

The Allegany-Garrett County Chapter of the Maryland Municipal League agreed at its July 25 meeting in Oakland to consider sponsorship of a bill during the next General Assembly session that would provide municipalities with better land ownership records.

The chapter received the request from Frostburg Mayor William R. Davis, who said that a law requiring property owners to record deed transfers would result in more effective collection by municipalities on delinquent tax and water bills. Davis went on to say he would like to see a state law passed to this effect - or if the situation does not prove to be a problem statewide - or seek passage of a local bill through the General Assembly requiring that deed transfers be recorded with municipalities.

Study of the deed transfer recording problem as its exists throughout the state will be undertaken by the MML as a part of its procedure in determining whether or not its Legislative Action Committee would support a proposed bill. The MML will send questionnaires to its more than 150 member municipalities to survey the situation.

Davis also said such a law would provide a vehicle for helping check city fire and safety code compliance in residences and rental properties.

Guest speaker for the evening, Dr. Patricia Florestano, director of the Institute for Governmental Services, failed to appear at the meeting. Dan Rohr of the Department of Economic and Community Development explained his role of technical assistance and liaison services which are available to Maryland's western counties eligible for ARC assistance (Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties).

Alan Pipenger of the MML offered comments on new legislation which will affect municipalities in the 1984-85 fiscal year.

During the business meeting, Russell B. Alexander, Sr., mayor of Mt. Lake Park, was unanimously appointed to the position of Secretary-Treasurer. Fred Sloane and Jim Shaw of Allegany County and Margo Vandiver in Garrett County agreed to serve on the nomination committee for the fall election.

Comments were offered by the membership concerning the tax differential law and its potential impact upon municipalities in 1985. There was also a general discussion of the stormwater management ordinance which all municipalities were to have adopted by June 30. Apparently most of the towns are opting to be governed by their respective county ordinances, except for Cumberland, which has adopted it own, and the city of Frostburg, which is conducting a study of the required legislation.

Also discussed was Garrett County Judge Fred A. Thayer's ruling that tax differentials need not be given to municipalities by counties until July 1, 1985.

Some 30 persons representing 10 municipalities attended the bi-monthly meeting of the chapter at the Starlite Restaurant in Oakland.

Mathias Supports Coal Export Commission

Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr., (R-Md.) said this week he will cosponsor legislation to establish a Federal Coal Export Commission.

The purpose of the 15-member Commission would be to coordinate various groups and organizations interested in coal export and to increase U.S. coal exports. The U.S. Trade Representative would direct the Commission.

Mathias noted, "There could be no wiser economic policy for us to follow than improving our share of the world coal market." He pointed out that a policy to increase our exports "would move the United States closer to achieving two critical objectives: first, creating new jobs and a healthy economy; and second, decreasing world dependence on unreliable energy resources.

"The establishment of this Commission will send a signal to our friends overseas that the United States fully intends to be a reliable supplier of coal both now and in the future," added Mathias.

Friends To Be Special Guests At Friendsville

The Friend Family Association of America will participate in the Friendsville Summer Festival August 4, just one week before the biennial meeting of the association at the Grantsville Holiday Inn.

Association President and Mrs. Byron L. Friend, Park Ridge, Ill., have been invited as special guests and are to participate in the Heritage Birthday Extravaganza on the 4th.

In 1764 John Friend became Garrett County's first permanent settler when he bought land from the Indians and built a cabin on the site of what is now Friendsville.

Mrs. Jessie McCullough, Friendsville, will preside over a booth displaying a variety of Friend-related and Friend-crested items during the Friendsville Summer Festival. Also available will be a free brochure which describes the work of the association and contains membership applications and registration information for the following week's biennial meeting.

The Grantsville Holiday Inn was chosen as the site for the 7th biennial Friend Family Association of America workshop/national meeting and genealogical seminar slated August 10-12 because of its ample facilities and close proximity to Friendsville.

The Association is a tax-exempt, non-profit organization founded in 1976 to provide members and descendants with a means to establish and perpetuate the accomplishments and deeds of their ancestors.

Among the events scheduled Friday through Sunday will be a massive helium balloon launch to take place at noon on Sunday. Each of the many-colored balloons is imprinted with the Friend family heraldic crest and each will contain the name and address of one of the seminar participants. Under normal conditions the balloons have a six to eight-hour flight time. Anyone finding a balloon is urged to return the printed form, giving the finder's name and address and where the balloon was recovered.

The launch is designed to call attention to the 350th anniversary of the state of Maryland and to the important role the Friend family had in early American history.

Participants are expected for the biennial meeting from some 40 states. Anyone desiring to attend from this area should contact Mrs. McCullough at 746-5338.

Open House At Crossroads Apt. Unit Held

About 25 persons attended an open house in the Garrett Crossroads apartment living unit for the mentally retarded on Alder Street Sunday.

Visitors toured the apartment unit, which is currently occupied by two women, who receive training in household management skills, budgeting of money, shopping skills, and other skills necessary for independent living.

The location of similar apartment living units in two Oakland neighborhoods has recently been the subject of controversy. Dan Elmlinger, program director, said that Crossroads sent over 100 invitations to property owners of the affected areas to allow them a chance to see the program firsthand, but only one couple from Mitchell Manor attended.

HOW TO RECOUP LOSS

As a rule, the vast majority of home sellers make a tidy profit. However, there is always an exeption to every rule. Whether it be a change for the worse in a local neighborhood, a personal economic reversal, divorce, or just plain bad luck, there may be someone, somewhere, some place who has to sell their home at a loss.

Fortunately, there is a strategy for recouping some of this loss in the tax column. Although the loss sustained on a house sale cannot be deducted as a tax loss if it is your primary residence, the loss IS deductible if the house is sold as a business investment. Therefore, if you anticipate that you must sell at a loss, you might consider the following:

Rent it in good faith for at least twelve months and then sell. The loss can then be deducted from your income tax return. It would be treated like a loss from the sale of any other business property. While you rent the house, you can also benefit from other real estate tax benefits such as depreciation and maintenance expenses.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone one of our offices.

Youth For Christ Seeks Participants For Training Seminar

Interest in a church youth group effectiveness seminar is still being sought by the Mt. Top Youth for Christ, Inc. The all-day seminar, which is to be held this fall, is specifically designed to train church youth group leaders to more effectively minister to their youth and reach out to more youth.

Some of the topics that will be covered include: discipleship, evangelism, Bible teaching, avoiding youth leader "burnout;" and programming for youth. The program will run from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and the cost will be $2 per person to cover expenses.

A date most convenient to the majority of would-be participants will be selected soon. Interested persons are asked to call or write the Mt. Top Youth for Christ office at P.O. Box 286, Oakland; phone, 334-9244.

Bambacus Wants Approval Of Youth Employment Act

Citing July and August as peak employment months for youth, State Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Allegany, Garrett) has called for Congressional approval of the federal Youth Employment Opportunity Wage Act. The Department of Labor estimates that the act would create over 400,000 jobs for youth in the marketplace today.

The Youth Employment Opportunity Act would allow employers to pay youths under 20 years of age an hourly rate of $2.50 from May 1 through September 30 only. According to Bambacus, an important feature of the act prohibits employers from hiring youths to replace current employees.

"Employers who discharge, transfer or demote workers for the purpose of hiring eligible youth during the summer months are subject to civil and criminal penalties," Bambacus noted. Penalties include a $10,000 fine, 6 months in prison, and payment of back wages.

The proposed legislation was introduced in the U.S. Senate by Senator Charles Percy (R-Ill.) and in the House of Representatives by Congressman Ron Packard (R-Cal.).

"Despite the drop in the nation's unemployment rate, almost a million and a half teenage youths remain out of work," Bambacus commented. "This proposal offers a viable way for Congress to encourage a free-enterprise solution to the problem. The Act would give the employer incentive to hire the unskilled youth at a reduced wage and at the same time give the youth the opportunity to learn a valuable skill."

Accident Men Sentenced On DNR Violations

Scott Doerr, 20, and Wayne Fike, 20, both of Accident, were sentenced in Garrett County District Court July 26 by Judge Jack R. Turney on charges of spotlighting, according to Officer Walter May of the Deep Creek Office of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Police.

Doerr and Fike were given fines of $100 each plus court costs, thirty days suspended sentence with 12 months probation and two years loss of hunting rights stemming from the October 4, 1983 spotlighting incident.

Assistant State's Attorney, Linda Sherbin, prosecuted the case.

A proposal for the development of a resort complex including ski slopes and lifts, a hotel, single and multi-family residential development, and marina facilities on a 2,100 acre tract on the mountaintop adjoining Wisp Ski Area was presented to the Garrett County Planning Commission Wednesday.

John Brenneman, representing the Brenneman Development Corporation and project engineer Robert M. Keddal, of R.M. Keddal and Associates Inc., Library, Pa., presented the proposal to the commission and an overflow crowd of citizens, necessitating a move to the Board of County Commissioners Meeting Room.

The proposed development would be in cooperation with Helmuth Heise, owner of the Wisp Ski Area, according to Brenneman, who said that the development will not be "run of the mill," and will have to be an asset to Garrett County.

Most of the land for the proposed development lies outside the Watershed, and is not subject to zoning, but the portion which slopes down towards the lake that is within the Watershed would be utilized for a development of "good quality single family homes." Brenneman and Keddal emphasized that a lot of "green space" will be included, and that the density of development will be comparable to lake front, even that outside the Watershed zoning jurisdiction.

Access to the development, which would include private security arrangements, would be from Hoyes Run Road, rather than from Marsh Hill Road.

Brenneman said that they have "not ruled out the possibility of a conference center on top of this hill."

Other issues, including the proposed Rural Residential Zoning District, and the proposed re-zoning of a portion of Marsh Hill Road to allow for possible commercial development were responsible for the large turnout of citizens at the meeting, most of whom spoke against the two proposals.

Discussion of the proposed Rural Residential Zoning District, which would allow the placement of mobile homes on permanent foundations on lots of one acre or more in outlying areas of the Deep Creek Watershed that are primarily occupied by year-round county residents, was lengthy, as a number of lake area residents spoke in opposition to the change, citing

Final Meeting On Yough Facilities Plan Attracts Only Four Citizens

When state health department officials queried why there were so few people attending Monday night's hearing on the Upper Youghiogheny facility plan, they were told that approval of the plan has been delayed for so many years people have become tired of meetings with no results.

That basically was the answer Edgar Harman, chief of the environment health division of the Garrett County Health Department, gave Ruth Mathus, public participation officer for the Office of Environmental Programs of the state health department.

Four members of the public attended the final public hearing required for the official record, which will now remain open ten more days to allow any final comments.

Dave Tibbetts, project manager for this region for the health department, read a letter from Earl Quance, director of the grants administration program. The letter details some 48 items which the state feels must be addressed before

Farmers, Hunters Air Views On Deer Problems

A response is expected in September from the Department of Natural Resources on the many-sided problems with voracious deer in Garrett County. That announcement was made last Wednesday night during a meeting called by local legislators to discuss extensive crop damage over the past several years, and also to consider hunters' rights and wishes.

Several suggestions, ranging from separate hunting zones to more doe permits, were made on how to handle the problems faced by farmers of all types, from tree farmers to nurserymen and dairy and beef cattlemen.

At the same time, hunters do not want a repeat of the overkill which occurred 15 to 20 years ago when crop damage was high and numerous doe permits were issued.

Although the meeting was formally called by Sen. John N. Bambacus and Del. George Edwards, Robert Miller, deer biologist for the DNR, conducted the meeting and fielded most of the questions. Other DNR personnel present were Ed Golden, regional wildlife manager and Al Bourgeois, district wildlife manager.

Miller estimated that between 75 and 100 citizens were present. The DNR promised to respond in September through a news release on their plans to alleviate the problems, and also promised to notify the legislators concerned.

Several of the suggestions received initial favorable response from the DNR, especially one which would divide the county into two or more hunting zones. The area found to have the greater crop

Newman Elected Head Of Funeral Directors' Group

Don J. Newman, owner of Newman Funeral Home in Grantsville and Friendsville, was elected president of the Maryland State Funeral Directors at the organization's 65th annual convention held last month in Ocean City. Newman is the first president from the mountain counties of Maryland.

Newman, a graduate of the Pittsburgh Institute of Mortuary Science, Pittsburgh, Pa., served his apprenticeship with Thomas Funeral Home, Salisbury, Pa., and received a Pennsylvania director's license in 1949. He was then employed by Winterberg Funeral Home, Grantsville, where he served apprenticeship and received Maryland licensure in 1955. He then purchased the Winterberg home.

Newman also holds membership in the Tri-State and National Funeral Directors Associations; Christ Lutheran Church, Grantsville; Grantsville Rotary Club; Mt. Lodge #99, AF&AM, Frostburg; Cumberland Consistory and Ali Ghan Shrine Club, Cumberland. He is a veteran of World War II,

Don Parsons Sets World Record For Two Bowling Sets

Don Parsons, Jr. of Deer Park will join other world record holders in the Guinness book of records after he bowled a new record for six games.

Parsons was bowling on a summer league at Fairmont's Valley Lanes in West Virginia in June when he got a score of 1,620 in two sets. The former record was 1,616, set in 1976.

The record was verified by the American Bowling Congress, which will also award Parsons a gold ring for scoring over 800 in three games. Parsons' scores for the two sets were 777 for the first and 843 for the second. The ring will be presented at an awards dinner in Cumberland in October.

Parsons, an avid bowler for many years, joined the Professional Bowlers Tour in January. During the winter he bowls at Oakland's Par-Matt Lanes and at The Bowler in Cumberland, as well as on a league at Morgantown.

In a telephone conversation Monday, he verified the record and said that although he was quite pleased with the 1,620 score, he was even more gratified by the 843 score. In a year's time, he says that many more bowlers bowl perfect 300 games than ever achieve scores above 800.

Don and his wife Candy took their five-month-old son Don Parsons III bowling Sunday for the first time. Parsons is a son of Don and Arzella Parsons, Oakland.

Neil Simon Hit Being Featured At GC Playhouse

Currently playing at the Garrett County Playhouse on Beckman's Peninsula, Deep Creek Lake, is Neil Simon's celebrated hit, "Come Blow Your Horn."

Simon's first hit and the one that kicked off his career as one of the world's top playwrights, was also a movie vehicle for Frank Sinatra.

The production, directed by Milburn Mehlhop, features Joan Statkus, Chris von Eckartsberg, Michelle Saucedo and RoseAnne Armijo.

The play will run each evening through Saturday, with performances beginning at 8:30. Persons may obtain reservations at any one of the three pharmacies in Oakland.

Accident-Related Injury Fatal To Swanton Man

Bernard C. Barnard, 56, Chestnut Grove, Swanton, died Sunday at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where he had been a patient for two days. Barnard had been involved in an automobile accident on July 19 when the car his wife was operating was struck by an automobile driven by Christine Elaine Poland, Oakland. Ms. Poland was attempting to avoid hitting a deer that had jumped into her path.

Barnard did not complain of injuries at the time of the accident, but two weeks later was taken by ambulance to Memorial Hospital. Emergency surgery was performed for a large blood clot in the brain. Medical Examiner Paul Snow reported the injury was accident related.

Born in Keyser, W.Va., Mr. Barnard was a son of Grace M (Friend) Barnard Warnick, Swanton, and the late Ulrich Barnard.

He was a U.S. Air Force veteran of World War II; retired in December 1981 as a foreman in the eight and nine calendar rooms at Westvaco; a member of Hiram Lodge No. 103, AF & AM, Westernport; the Ali Ghan Shrine Club, Cumberland; and Victory Post No. 155, American Legion, Westernport.

Public Hearing On Lake Regulations Set August 26

There will be a public information hearing Sunday, August 26, at 1 p.m. at Garrett Community College auditorium on the proposed Deep Creek Lake regulations prepared by the lake advisory committee, in cooperation with the lake management office of the Department of Natural Resources.

The hearing will provide private property owners and users of the lake with an opportunity to voice opinions and concerns, according to Mike Gregory, lake manager.

Copies of the proposed regulations will be available after August 22 at the office at Deep Creek State Park and at local library branches. Copies will also be distributed at the meeting of the Property Owners Association of Deep Creek Lake on August 25.

For the past three years, the lake advisory committee, chaired by local attorney Robert Watson, has been preparing regulations to preserve the recreational and aesthetic qualities of the lake while controlling erosion and promoting safety for all users.

Lake Project 91 Percent Complete

The Deep Creek sewer project is now 91 percent complete, members of the Sanitray Commission were imformed Tuesday night by project engineers from Greenhorne & O'Mara.

At the regular August session, Jeff Gilbert and Henry Doyle of the engineering firm told the commission that one contractor is still on the job on Route 219 south but basically all that remains is to re-apply two road patches.

All grinder pumps, pipeline and house connections have been installed. Most of the work which remains is at the treatment plant and the completion of major pumping stations.

The only problem which is looming is that of the invisible ultraviolet light disinfection unit. Tom Lash, design engineer for Rummel,Klepper and Kahl, has not yet approved shop drawings for the system. The contractor, George Construction, has a completion deadline of October 4.

All major structures in the vicinity of the treatment plant are complete, including the maintenance building, oxidation ditch and clarifiers. Electrical work is expected to be completed there in the next month, along with paving and other final touches.

Sewer User Rate Study

Engineer Lash presented a report on the sewer user rate study conducted by his firm. On-site visits were conducted at all commercial establishments

Residents Seek Assurance SHA Will End Water, Soil Contamination

County residents along the troubled Route 48 corridor don't want to hear it may take from one to 50 years to end salt contamination of their water and land - they want results now. At an informational meeting Wednesday night at the Grantsville Elementary School, they were promised by the State Highway Administration that "If the problem was created by us, we're responsible and we will correct the problem."

The SHA spokesman did not elaborate, however, on repayment methods for problems caused by the sodium chloride runoff from highways and salt storage areas.

The meeting was called by Sen. John Bambacus and Del. George Edwards as a forum to provide information to SHA and a chance to air grievances which in some cases have rankled for 15 years when the problem first cropped up for people in the Keyser Ridge salt storage area.

Approximately 75 persons turned up and many took the floor to tell of individual problems and ask the state how it plans to help with ruined water heaters and plumbing systems and fixtures, undrinkable salty water, ponds where fish die, areas where trees die, holes in concrete where salt drips from vehicles, and related human and animal health problems.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Yoder told of their middle son, scarred from scratching after baths in the water at their home. They told of their former garden plot, now a drainage area for salt from the highways, but this is better than when the runoff was pushing in the walls of their foundation, Mrs. Yoder explained.

Their family has also had unexplained skin problems, headaches, and stomach problems ever since their water began tasting salty.

Homer Glotfelty said, "We're 70 now and if it takes 50 years to clear this up, how will that help us?"

Several persons testified they could not give their homes away now because of the water problems, including Mr. and Mrs. Glotfelty and Bob Davis. Keyser Ridge businessman James Hixon said of problems at the Trading Post area, "Who'd want to rent an apartment without good running water?"

The audience responded enthusiastically with cheers and clapping whenever anyone mentioned total elimination of salt, or sodium chloride, from the road clearing efforts of SHA.

T. Wallace Beaulieu, SHA administrator for District 6 for nearly two years, was spokesman for the SHA. He began the meeting by explaining that the

Sixteenth Rabies Case Confirmed

Garrett County's 16th case of rabies this year was confirmed on August 3, when results of tests on a raccoon submitted by the county health department to the state testing laboratory came back positive.

On August 1, a raccoon emerged from the woods in the area around the intersection of the Old Deer Park Hotel Road and Congress Road, and attacked a beagle dog owned by Mike Glotfelty, Deer Park.

Glotfelty shot the raccoon and submitted it to the health department for testing. When rabies was confirmed, Glotfelty elected to have the dog

Fred Learey, who has served as chairman of the Business Division at Garrett Community College since 1976, has been named to the position of Dean of Academic Affairs, according to Randall Harman, GCC president.

Before coming to Garrett, Learey was an assistant professor of management at Frostburg State College. Prior to his involvement in higher education, he was vice president of organizational development at the First National Bank of Tampa, Fla. He has also worked as a systems analyst for management communications at North American Rockwell in California.

Learey completed work for a BS degree in business at Ohio State University and earned a MSM degree in management at Frostburg State College.

Learey will be in charge of the academic and student services at GCC, Harman reported.

Dean Learey resides in the Oakland area with his wife, Nancy, who is a counselor at Southern Middle School. He is involved in local drama productions and youth activities.

ATTEMPTS BY THE SHAWNEE INDIAN TRIBE to buy the land around Friendsville back from Byron Friend, president of the Friend Family Association of America, proved unsuccessful even when Joe Rain Crow, sub chief of the Shawnee Indian Nation, upped his offer from one slightly damaged pot to include several other iron pots in good condition. The staging of the attempted repurchase was a highlight of the festivities at the Friendsville Summer Festival last Saturday. Another member of the Friend family, John Friend, had purchased the land from the Shawnee tribe in 1746, for the price of several iron pots. Memorabilia from bygone days was featured at the festival, including the renowned Garrett County hunter, Meshack Browning's rifle, which was on loan from the Smithsonian Institution.

Woman Injured In Auto Mishap Monday Evening

Anna A. Bowen, 80, Linthicum, is listed in satisfactory condition at Garrett County Memorial Hospital following an automobile accident which occurred in Oakland on Monday evening.

Ms. Bowen was a passenger in a 1982 Datsun operated by Eugene Francis Punte, 55, Linthicum. The Punte vehicle was traveling east on Liberty Street as Albert Robert Mucciarone, 39, Finksburg, the driver of the '83 Chevy Cavalier was traveling west, crossed the center line striking the Punte vehicle. Sgt. Roger Lewis of the Oakland City Police Department charged Mucciarone with failure to keep right of center.

The Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad transported Ms. Bowen to the hospital.

In another auto accident Monday evening, Jeffrey Allen Harvey, 19, Oakland was charged with too closely following a vehicle operated by William R. Kelly, 42, Oakland, at the intersection of Third and Oak Streets. Harvey ran in to the rear of Kelly's vehicle while Kelly was attempting to negotiate a left-hand turn from Oak Street to Third Street. Oakland City Chief of Police, John Sines, investigated.

Other Police News

In other Oakland Police matters, Pamela Jean Root, 23, Brooklyn Park, was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol on July 26 by Cpt. Ron Beeghly, OPCD.

On July 30, Delia Folk, manager of the Oakland Motel, filed a complaint at the Garrett County District Court charging William Ralph Teets with theft of services.

Teets took a room at the motel on July 28 for two days and stated that Garrett County Community Action would pay for the room. He left the establishment on July 30 without returning the room key. Mrs. Folk then filed the complaint, spotted Teets in downtown Oakland and Chief John Sines arrested the man.

A call was made to Community Action but Duane Yoder, director, was out of town and had failed to tell the staff about the arrangements he had made for Mr. Teets.

Charges have been dropped and Teets has been released from the Garrett County Jail, after spending seven days there.

Allocations On Revenue Bonds Set By Hughes

Governor Hughes has issued an executive order temporarily setting local allocations under the new federal ceiling on "private activity" bonds issued in Maryland.

The order, which includes industrial development and student loan bonds, fixes minimum allocations, but provides flexibility for counties and municipalities to apply for higher limits.

Under the order, half of Maryland's federally authorized limit of $632,546,250 for the rest of calendar year 1984—$316,256,000—is allocated to the State's 23 counties and Baltimore City on the basis of population under the 1980 census. The rest would be allocated in the following manner:

-$148 million to the city and counties under the discretionary authority of the Secretary of Economic and Community Development, "with criteria enunciated."

-$129 million to five state issuers. (These include the Northeast Maryland Waste Disposal Authority, $40 million; Maryland Energy Financing Administration, $10 million; Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority, $55 million; Maryland Higher Education Supplemental Loan Authority, $14 million and Maryland Environmental Service, $10 million.

-Up to $25 million for municipal corporations other than Baltimore City.

-Approximately $14 million to state issuers other than the five mentioned above.

Under the initial, population-based factor of the formula, Baltimore City is allocated at least $59,008,000 and the counties are allowed as follows: Allegany, $6.034 million; Anne Arundel, $27.808 million; Baltimore County, $49.171 million; Calvert, $2.597 million; Caroline, $1.735 million; Carroll, $7.226 million; Cecil, $4.532 million; Charles, $5.456 million; Dorchester, $2.296 million; Frederick, $8.609 million; Garrett, $1.987 million; Harford, $10.944 million; Howard, $8.892 million; Kent, $1.252 million; Montgomery, $43.428 million; Prince George's, $49.880 million; Queen Anne's, $1.913 million; St. Mary's, $4.492 million; Somerset, $1.439 million; Talbot, $1.920 million; Washington, $8.841 million; Wicomico, $4.840 million; Worcester, $2.316 million.

These may be increased by the Secretary of Economic and Community Development on the basis of factors including a subdivision's previous bond-issuance activity, expectable economic impact of the facilities for which additional allocation is requested, the amount of the allocation requested, county-local cooperation in economic development, "any other factor the Secretary considers relevant."

The Governor's order was issued under federal law, H.R. 4170, which limits the total bond issue in any state during calendar 1984 to $150 per capita. This accounts for Maryland's limit of $632,546,250 under the 1980 census, but the law provides for a possible raising of the limit on the basis of more recent census information and a history of bond issuance in the first nine months of 1983.

The federally dictated limit is well below the estimated total of $725-$750 million in bonds issued in Maryland in calendar 1983.

H.R. 4170 provides that the Governor may allocate limits within the State on an interim basis and that the Legislature may change the formula. The Governor's executive order of today, or any succeeding order revising the allocations, may remain in effect only through December 31, 1985. It is therefore expected that legislation on the subject will be introduced in the 1985 session of the General Assembly.

In testimony he presented June 20 at a congressional hearing chaired by Rep. Parren J. Mitchell (D-Md.) on the President's 1984 Urban Policy Report, Governor Hughes severely criticized the federal cap as "a threat to continued development in Baltimore and throughout Maryland."

In issuing the executive order today, he emphasized that every effort had been made to make the allocations flexible enough for adjustments meeting the needs of areas with special problems.

DECD Secretary Frank J. De Francis, who met with the Governor before issuance of the order, noted that a new executive order is scheduled for issuance at the outset of calendar 1985. The Secretary said he plans to hold meetings with and hearings for local officials before then for possible inclusion of their recommendations in the new order.

Hiker On 350-Mile Memorial Trek Shares Experiences And Philosophy

by Jerry Sword, Manager
Herrington Manor, Swallow Falls State Parks

Joseph Mornini, a Montgomery County School science teacher and special education counselor, concluded 350 miles of canoeing and hiking across Maryland last Thursday morning amid the stillness of the Cranesville Pine Swamp near Swallow Falls State Park.

Being a staunch environmentalist, Mornini caught upon the idea of earning his Master of Arts Degree in environmental education by discussing local environmental issues with residents while canoeing and walking 350 miles across the state.

Mornini listed several reasons for his trek. "I did it for Nature Conservancy. I want to push the cause of non-profit organizations trying to keep a low profile to protect natural diversity. Another was to obtain my master's degree and to teach myself about Maryland, so that I can be a better educator by being out in the areas and learning how the local population feels about it and to advocate the cause of resource preservation. Another was in celebration of the state's 350th birthday. Also, I have a very personal reason. This walk is a memorial to my father, Edward Mornini, who just passed away. He was the one who made it possible for me to go back to college."

The six-week adventure began at the Atlantic Ocean on the beach of Assateague State Park on June 29 and took Mornini through two dozen federal, state, municipal, private and Nature Conservancy areas as well as hundreds of miles of public right of way and private land areas before his arrival at the western edge of Garrett County.

Through many hours of discussion with local residents across the state, the young environmentalist came to the belief that people of all ages are very much concerned about the environment. Concerns range from the depletion of marsh and wetlands on the Eastern Shore to the deterioration of the fish and shellfish in the Bay; the siltation and pollution of the rivers and deforestation in the middle part of the state to western Maryland where residents are very concerned about fewer fish in small streams, the future of the Yough River and salt leaching into water systems from highway maintenance supplies and use.

Mornini has his own philosophy and advice as to how local residents can best approach these problems. "My motto is to act locally, but still think globally. It is okay to think about whales and redwoods and those kinds of things, but we still have to take care of the Yough and our water systems and our rivers and streams. Our forests have to be maintained and we have to keep the Bay from being any further dirtied and we have to watch the acid rain that pours on our state."

Mornini continued, "If enough people would write letters and make phone calls and actually get involved themselves, they could make changes. It is one thing to talk about it; it is another to do something about it. I feel bad for people who feel powerless and are not writing letters, getting petitions signed, making calls and getting together with others to develop ideas, then they have no room to argue."

The six weeks of touching Maryland has already brought some broad conclusions to Mornini. He found that generally across the State citizens are concerned about highway litter and that these people are supportive of some type of deposit legislation. Concern for the Bay is apparent in all sections of the state and was a frequent topic along his travels. Additionally, a large number of citizens were worried about the debris going into the rivers and eventually into the Bay. Another frequent topic was the urbanization of lands. "Most persons like it where they are and want their area to stay the way it is," Mornini said.

The adventurer changed his mind a bit as a result of his experiences. He stated, "It makes me feel good having walked and seen (Maryland) because these past few years I've been getting cynical and I'm not cynical anymore because I know there is a whole bunch out there just like me that really want to take care of it." He added that he was exceptionally pleased with the quality of management given to public lands, private recreation and nature areas, and Nature Conservancy lands.

Mornini would like for every citizen to educate himself or herself by reading and going out and visiting areas and letting their voice be heard if needed.

The Rockville, Md. resident walked across Ireland in 1976 and hopes someday to walk the Trail of Tears. Regarding this 350th Anniversary walk, Mornini emphasized that the project would have been impossible if it had not been for the total support of his wife, Nancy, who is also an environmentalist. Other supporters included the donation of time by a physical therapist who assisted Mornini in strengthening a knee that had recently been operated on; Doug and Phil Jacoby who transported his canoe from place to place; Joe George who walked a part of the trek with him, and countless residents along the way who provided friendly discussion, food and sometimes shelter.

While the overall experience has been rewarding to Mornini he does not recommend such large projects to others. He does recommend that residents visit different parts of Maryland and get out of their vehicles and walk, hike and bike and talk with local residents. Vehicles insulate travelers and they do not really experience the true feeling of nature, according to Mornini.

"With care, Maryland will be here another 350 years. We have to slow down now and look at what we are doing. We have to get this message across to each generation if we want to keep Maryland a true America in miniature."

THE MAIDEN VOYAGE for use in fire suppression on Deep Creek Lake was taken last week by this 22-foot Wellcraft recently purchased by county and state government monies for the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Department. Eighteen members of the fire department attended Coast Guard training at the Village Inn pool in McHenry, which was sponsored by the Department of Natural Resources. Below, several fully dressed firefighters take to the water during one of the training sessions. The vessel is equipped with full scuba gear and fire-fighting equipment, including a 500-gallon-per-minute pump and 200 feet of one-and-one-half inch hose. According to a spokesman for the department, the boat can also be used to combat structure fires from the water. One-half of the funding for the boat was provided by the county commissioners and the other half by the DNR, while nearly $3,000 was raised by the fire department to help equip it. The vessel, presently being docked at Crystal Waters Marina in McHenry, can be transported for use on other bodies of water in the county. Zoning Board To Hear Patterson Appeal Sept. 6

An appeal case by residents in the Patterson Boat Company vicinity will be be heard before the Deep Creek Lake Board of Zoning Appeals at its September 6 session, according to John Nelson, county zoning administrator.

Circuit Court Judge Frederick Sharer of Allegany County remanded the appeal case to the zoning board of appeals after finding that the board was not totally in compliance with procedures outlined in the lake ordinance.

The judge went on to say, however, that evidence was ample to support the board decision against Harvey's Peninsula residents of the Enterprise Vacation Homes subdivision who filed the appeal.

Police Checking High-Pressure Sale Of Blacktop

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department is asking local residents to beware of a group of five men involved in the high-pressure sale of driveway blacktop.

Three residents of Kitzmiller have called the department complaining of these men coming to their homes claiming they needed to dispose of some excess blacktop and that they would roll it in their driveways for $1.00-$1.50 per square foot. After the blacktop was placed, the men demanded $200-$500 in cash. They would not accept checks.

Van Evans, chief deputy, stated that the department could not call this a scam at this time since the complainants were receiving goods for payment.

The five men, traveling in a red dump truck with "Baker" printed on the side and a black Ford pickup, were last seen traveling on Rt. 38 toward Kitzmiller.

In other reports, Hale Wright, Swanton, reported that somehad had removed 11 gallons of gas from his automobile which was parked at his residence on August 2 and had returned again on August 4 and removed seven more gallons of gas.

David Idleman, Elk Garden, reported that someone had stolen a 9.9 Johnson motor from an Alumicraft boat he had borrowed from James Shank, Oakland. Idleman had docked the boat at Alpine Village on Sunday and returned Monday morning to find the motor missing. Deputy David Crossland is investigating.

The Sheriff's Department is continuing an investigation into a breaking and entering and theft of a summer home on the Oakland-Sang Run Road, belonging to Ruth Marie Hicks, Baltimore. The culprit(s) gained entrance through a door and removed many household items including a television and a vacuum cleaner.

On August 6 Terry L. Irvine, Wheeling, W. Va. reported the theft of an auxiliary gas tank from his boat docked at Alpine Village. The department is investigating.

Also on August 6 Emerson E. Frazee, Friendsville, reported the theft of a two-year old calf from his pasture. Deputy Larry Gnegy is investigating.

Time To Get Tough . . .

The Garrett County Board of Education is scheduled to make a decision at its meeting this afternoon on whether or not to adopt a new "get-tough" disciplinary policy for students. One of the proposed changes deals with student smoking and fighting. According to the new policy, the second time a student is caught engaged in either of these activities, he or she will be automatically expelled from school for the remainder of the school year. Two incidents, and they're out.

Although to some this guideline may seem too harsh, we believe that it should be adopted by the board without hesitation. Such a cut-and-dried policy would eliminate a lot of misunderstanding between principals, teachers, parents and, in particular, students when confronted with such a disci[illegible]ary problem.

All people, especially middle and high school students, who are at a difficult time of life anyway, need and appreciate clear-cut, specific rules and guidelines. They are looking for direction and they need to know what the consequences of their actions will be. By knowing this, they are more likely to think first and then not get involved in the action. An inconsistent and unclearly defined punishment policy, in fact, reinforces the negative action, because a student can be fairly confident that he can get away with a lot before drastic measures are taken. Parents, who usually come to the defense of their child in these matters, can claim unfair treatment, or say they weren't aware of the consequences. With a vague punishment procedure, principals are more likely to be inconsistent in their punishment on a case by case basis, which is certainly an uncomfortable position for them.

There are many parents who believe that the Southern Middle School is little more than a den of iniquity, riddled with drug and alcohol abuse and with no system of discipline. On the contrary, it is the disciplinary procedures implemented by that school's administration in the past few years that has served as a model for the new policy. For several months there were dozens of suspensions and expulsions from that school. The crackdown on the use of alcohol and drugs even resulted in some arrests, which were reported in the local media and, unfortunately, reinforced some persons' negative attitude about this school. Instead, these actions should be a positive sign to parents that this serious problem has been confronted by the school administration, rather than ignored. Although there is still some of this abuse by students at Southern Middle, the problem is not nearly as severe as it once was or could be, and expulsions have decreased. Why? Because the students know where the principal stands on this issue and they know what the consequences of their actions will be.

It seems that our parole boards and some of our judges could learn a lesson from this effective approach to discipline, instead of giving the criminal numerous opportunities to strike again.

The splendid television coverage of the Olympic Summer Games in Los Angeles has reminded me that sports coverage has gotten better, entertainment has gotten worse and the synthesis of athletes as entertainment figures is deplorable.

Amidst the national euphoria of America garnering so many medals is an undercurrent of resentment toward athletes who cash in on their laurels.

Some examples:

•Olympian gymnast Cathy Rigby publicly touting a product too personsal for most provincial tastes.

•Bruce Jenner, 1976 Olympic decathlon champ, has been on the Wheaties box; he along with Valerie Perrine and the "Village People" prompted a coast-to-coast gagging with their dizzy disco movie "Can't Stop the Music" (which should have been called "Please Stop the Music") now has endorsements, a line of clothing, a sports contract for NBC, a production company that made two TV movies, and he is slated to succeed Michael Landon as master of ceremonies for America's Junior Miss Pageant.

•Swimmer Mark Spitz, winner of seven gold medals in the 1972 Munich games, (making him arguably the greatest Olympic athlete ever) has died a hundred media deaths. This former dental student is now relegated to obscurity because of his guest appearances in variety shows in the seventies. I caught one of his performances on a rerun "Carol Burnett Show" and felt as if I was suffering a toothache.

•Five-time gold medal speed skater Eric Heiden has promoted Crest toothpaste, races bikes professionally for Southland Corporation, does commentary for ABC and works for Descante which makes speed skating suits. He recently told an interviewer that he just wants to study to be a doctor and "to be left alone." Okay with me, but I don't think much of his bedside manner.

•I just read that Bill Johnson, downhill gold medalist in the 1984 Winter Olympics, already has two movie deals in the works. I can foresee the day when casting directors audition actors just because they can run the 800-meter in under 1:41.73.

I have it on good authority that Carl Lewis, the most promising star of the Summer Games, is taking acting lessons. This could lead to some of the fastest "walk-on" parts in cinematic history.

We need to have our sports heroes. We have to have our movie idols. That's American. But do they have to be one and the same?

Letters to the Editor

Correction Noted

In a letter to the Editor from Louise Harvey, Friendsville, which appeared in last week's issue of The Republican, one sentence read in part: "Some disabled are being emasculated by being totally removed from social security, while the 'true program' rolls merrily on, needy or not in some cases . . ." The word "true" in that sentence should have been "WIC", referring to the Women, Infant and Children nutrition program administered through the health department.

We apologize to Ms. Harvey for the error.

To the Editor:

As Mayor of the Town of Grantsville, I feel that certain clarifications must be made in response to last week's article concerning the sewer rehabilitation project in Grantsville.

First of all, writing a news article about any topic without first consulting the officials in charge is not, in my opinion, proper journalistic procedure. Your newspaper went to great lengths in contacting area residents, state and county officials but did not have the courtesy to contact this administration before publishing an article that is somewhat one-sided in its views of the Mayor and Council's efforts to properly serve our residents. As I'm sure you have experienced in the past, there are two sides to every story and certainly Grantsville's position in both of the reported incidents was overlooked.

In regard to the sewer problems at the Luther Beachy property, your account gives the impression that the town, the contractor and the engineering firm acted irresponsibly in dealing with the matter. In fact, this situation has occurred several times in the past at this particular location and the most recent occurrence does not appear to have been the fault of our work in the area. The problem has resulted from a blocked sewer line, apparently due to the method of installing the private house service line, which is the homeowner's responsibility. At their own expense, the contractor excavated this line and found a portion of it to be blocked with human waste, resulting in the ground seepage and basement problem. Although it does not appear that the contractor was at fault, the company has repaired the problem and properly installed the service line at no expense to the homeowner.

Your coverage of the accident at Mr. Campbell Saunders' residence also appears to be one-sided, partly because of the way the article was written and partly because of the information you did not provide. The day after the accident, the town's representative visited Mr. Saunders and advised him not to sign any agreements or come to any settlement until after the damage was investigated by the proper authorities, including a structural engineer. Both the contractor and the blasting company are adequately insured against such accidents and the claim will be settled fairly. Regardless of what rumors may have been started, no corrective action would have been initiated until after a thorough investigation was completed by an independent third party. Although your article states that "Upole contacted everyone involved but got no satisfaction," it should be pointed out that Mr. Upole and his insurance representative attended a meeting on July 16 with the town, our engineer and the principal from Trimble Services Co. and it was mutually agreed that the matter would be resolved between the insurance companies.

Finally, as the article accurately points out ". . . in the midst of renovations such as this, some problems always crop up." I think it only fair that such problems be reported accurately and comprehensively and that the residents of the Town of Grantsville not be led to think that their elected officials are insensitive or uncaring in dealing with the health and well-being of the citizens of this community.

Fred A. Holliday
Mayor

Dear Mayor Holliday,

The reporter who wrote the story did, in fact, contact a town spokesperson concerning this matter and was informed that the mayor and town council was not responsible for the problem and did not want to be involved. At no point does the article level the blame for this situation at the town government.

What we find most interesting is that nothing had been done to correct the problem for nearly two months and then, the moment that our reporter went to the area to investigate, corrective measures were begun. We realize that this may have been a coincidence, but we doubt it.

Nonetheless, we appreciate your response and are confident that you and the council do indeed place service to your citizens at the top of your priority list.

Sincerely,
Editor

To the Editor:

One of the inmates (a man) in the county jail has tuberculosis. There was a test run on him and the test came back with a "not sure" result. The second test has been run on him, but the results have not been received from the test. This inmate with the tuberculosis is still separated from the rest of the inmates.

It isn't any use to call the sheriff about this problem because he will deny it. The other inmates promise there will be a law suit from everybody who catches tuberculosis.

The department and man they said had tuberculosis kept it quiet. He went back to court and they released him.

They are now giving tests for tuberculosis in the jail.

To the Editor:

We would like to thank Mr. DeCorsey Bolden for his successful effort in obtaining a government marker for our brother, Frank A. Burrell, who gave his life 40 years ago while serving in the U.S. Navy.

I talked to Mr. Bolden about our problem and he said he would do his best to help us. For almost a year and a half he never gave up, always keeping us informed of his difficulty and progress. Finally the call came that our marker had arrived. Our mother and father would be so proud if they were here to see it.

Once again our thanks to Mr. Bolden for his kindness and time spent getting the marker for us.

To the Editor:

This letter is not just to the Editor. It is to all animal owners. If you love your animal please, please have them vaccinated for rabies.

My daughter is now having to take the rabies shots because a kitten that bit her did not have the rabies vaccine. The kitten was given away (which was against the policeman's order), then the kitten ran away from the new owners. Because the kitten cannot be found, my daughter has to have these shots.

Luckily, the shots are now a series of five different shots in the hips and arms, and not the old ones in the stomach.

I pray to God that no child will have to through these shots. So please get your animals vaccinated and save someone, maybe your own child, from these shots.

To the Editor:

There was public notice a meeting would be held at Garrett Community College on August 1 to inform our elected state officials of damage by the white-tailed deer. The meeting was to be chaired by our Department of Natural Resources.

It seemed reasonable there would be claims that one of our resources was too large, my curiosity was aroused. It might be the first step in a conspiracy to ripoff a public asset. I would attend and find how and why we had too much of anything and what we should do with the matter.

There were numerous sad stories by farmers and nurserymen of depredation by these animals, some amounting to thousands of dollars and DNR game managers testified as to the validity of those claims.

There was, indeed, a problem!

The meeting had undertones and overtones of helplessness to cope with the situation, hence the appeal for relief by the state. Those claims of helplessness were somewhat marred by evidence that most did nothing except complain; they offered excuses for nonaction, excuses that seemed lame and more contrived than factual.

In almost every instance each sad story ended with reasons why hunting could not be allowed on the premises. None entertained the idea to "cash in" on the overabundance of white-tails and profit from the situation by the leasing of hunting rights.

At the end of the meeting curiousity was satisfied. There was no attempt at ripoff but only the acting out of a custom of our times, a custom of seeking government relief while sitting on our hands.

Sincerely
Pine Nut

Deer Park Man Sentenced For Theft, B and E

Kenneth Ray Broadwater, 30, Deer Park, has been sentenced for his part in a burglary spree that occurred between August 20, 1983 and November 11, 1983, by Garrett County District Court Judge Jack Turney, who was sitting on the bench for Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer last Tuesday afternoon.

Broadwater was found guilty on charges of theft, breaking and entering of the following places: Mellinger Enterprises, Southern States, Bruceton Farm Services and a hunting cabin belonging to William G. Savage. He was given four concurrent sentences of six years and three months at the Maryland Department of Corrections. Two years and three months of the sentences were suspended and Broadwater was ordered to make restitution. He must also pay four $50 fines plus court costs.

States Attorney James L. Sherbin prosecuted the case and G. Gary Hanna was counsel for the defense.

Judge Takes Ad Valorem Case Under Advisement

Garrett County Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer has taken under advisement the Mt. Lake Park-Loch Lynn ad valorem tax issue after hearing verbal argument by the three attorneys involved last Wednesday afternoon.

After about one and a half hours of argument by W. Dwight Stover, representing the county; Robert Watson, representing the towns, and Gorman E. Getty III, representing the sanitary commission, the judge declared he would rule on the matter after further perusal of the case.

Watson orginally filed the suit against the county commissioners in 1981, with the sanitary commission brought in as co-litigants in May of 1983.

The attorneys had submitted documentation of their agreement on the facts of the case very early in May. Approximately 800 pages of documentation representing the facts of the case have been submitted to Judge Thayer since the case began.

If the judge rules in favor of the towns, the money paid by residents in ad valorem taxes during the past several years will have to be refunded and a new tax levied as a lump sum. Watson is alleging that due process was not followed by the commissioners and sanitary commission during the ad valorem process. The towns are also seeking a temporary restraining order prohibiting county Treasurer Arzella Parsons from collecting the supplemental taxes.

Commissioners Approve HUD Grant Application

The Board of County Commissioners signed off on the county's Department of Housing and Urban Development Community Development Block Grant application Tuesday.

The grant application includes a proposal from the Appalachian Parent Association for the design and implementation of a food service training program at the Appalachian Center, plus some energy saving renovations to the center, and three proposals from the Community Action Agency.

The Community Action proposals include funds for the renovation of the old Accident Elementary School into apartment units and a community and senior citizen center, renovations to the Swanton Community Center, and funds for a repair loan program for lower income owners of housing in the county.

Applications totalled about $261,000. The county is eligible for up to $500,000 in block grant funding.

The board met with Linda Spassil, of Women's Refuge Inc., an agency currently operating in Allegany County that provides services to abused women and children. The commissioners said that the meeting was an informational session regarding plans to expand services into Garrett County.

The board approved the Agricultural Land preservation Petition by Carl DelSignore, with the exception of one-half acre of land which is currently the subject of an ownership dispute. The commissioners said that the half-acre in question did not affect approval of the petition, which involved more than enough land to qualify without the inclusion of the half-acre.

the plan could be approved.

This makes chances of approval before October appear slim, says Wendell Beitzel, sanitary district administrator. Federal grant participation drops to 55 percent from its current 75 percent level, effective October 1. That decrease in federal participation would make proceeding with the project unlikely unless the state could guarantee increased funding.

It also appears to Beitzel that incorporating all the state's requirements into the plan would greatly increase the scope of work both in engineering and construction, which would mean additional grant funds would have to be requested.

The sanitary district had also been advised to submit grant applications before August 1 for the grant assistance needed for the plan, which was originally started in the mid-1970s. These applications have been duly submitted but approval is contingent on approval of the facilities plan.

The local officials have appealed to the state to be reasonable in their requirements for completion of the plan. Harman asked that the state use a "commonsense approach" to get the plan approved and the project finally moving.

Three of the members of the public attending were from the Crellin area to reiterate that town's desire for a sewer system. The other person attending was Mayor Russell Alexander of Mt. Lake Park who noted he felt the facilities plan should be in its final form before the public hearing was held.

His town has submitted a letter with comments regarding the plan and setting forth several conditions which the town officials feel need to be met before it is signed.

The issues raised by that town were discussed at the Tuesday night meeting of the sanitary commission, and the members had no problems with the majority of the conditions. A few others, however, go beyond the town's jurisdiction according to a spokesman for the sanitary commission, and the commission would possibly have some problems in complying.

The town of Deer Park has submitted a letter in support of the facilities plan although the town does not wish to have sewer system constructed there.

Beitzel pointed out that cooperation is essential between Mt. Lake Park, Loch Lynn and the sanitary district for approval of the plan, and the ultimate improvements to the Trout Run sewage treatment plant. Without improvements to the plant, it is unlikely that current moratoriums on sewer taps will be removed.

Morgan France, regional office manager for Franklin Associates, presented detailed information on the plan completed by his firm, including cost analysis and user costs.

The sanitary district is attempting to set up a meeting with Quance at his earliest convenience to effect a quick resolution without major revisions to the plan.

Deer Problems

damage would have a greater number of doe permits, and dividing points could be easily recognizable boundaries such as Route 219 or Route 495.

Another suggestion was to consider issuing a deer damage stamp which would permit farmers to kill one deer for each stamp purchased at a nominal fee. Money generated would be returned to farmers who have damage but such a solution would involve legislation, Miller said.

Another suggestion would be to increase the antlerless deer permits. Neither of the above suggestions could be implemented this fall because permits have already been issued along with the hunting guides. It would be possible, by emergency regulations, to increase doe season from two to four or five days if this solution seems appropriate, according to Miller.

Several present also asked the state representatives to contact adjoining states to see how they are handling similar problems.

Surplus Food To Be Distributed In Early September

The Garrett County Community Action Committee has announced that surplus commodities will be distributed the first part of September. Households that received surplus commodity cards for the distribution in June will automatically receive cards for the September distribution and do not need to reapply. However, if there has been a change of address, household size or income CAC should be notified of the change by August 17.

Households that have not received commodities in the past, but wish to apply for the September distribution, may apply at the Community Action Office on Liberty Street. The deadline for making application is August 17.

RETIRES FROM MSHA — Raymond C. Coddington, Accident, retired from the Maryland State Highway Administration, effective July 1, after 36 years of service. Upon his retirement, he received two certificates from the MSHA, one in appreciation of his years of service and another for eight continuous years of perfect attendance. Coddington worked as laborer for several years before performing as a motor equipment operator II for nearly 25 years. He and his wife, Marie, plan to spend their retirement years at their home in Accident. Coddington said he plans to do some traveling and gardening.

WEIMER HONORED UPON RETIREMENT — Everett B. Weimer, right, who was an employee of the Garrett County Department of Social Services from July 24, 1961, to December 1, 1983, was the recipient this week of a Governor's Citation for "high integrity and ability, and outstanding service to the citizens of Maryland." Presenting the certificate was Robert Shaffer, director of GCDSS. Weimer, a 1948 graduate of Oakland High School and a member of the U.S. Air Force from 1951-53, began his employment with the Department as principal account clerk II. He earned a bachelor of science degree in business administration from West Virginia University in 1976 and retired as finance officer of the Department. He was responsible for budget planning and the receipt and disbursements of public assistance checks, food stamps and child support funds. A dinner was held in Bittinger on July 28 in his honor. Approximately 60 persons were in attendance, including two retired directors, four retired employees and present employees of the Department. Weimer, a resident of Oakland, is married to the former Mary Lou Morgan and they are the parents of three daughters and one son.

CAC To Assume Senior Programs

At a hearing of The Plan for the Aging Wednesday, Harry Walker, assistant director at the Maryland State Office on Aging, outlined changes and priorities concerning senior programs for the aging.

Senior programs being transferred to Community Action from the local Office on Aging was the main topic of the meeting. Approximately 28 people attended the hearing held at Garrett Community College, Oakland Center.

County Staffers Give Reports To Commissioners

The Board of County Commissioners heard reports from representatives of county departments and agencies Tuesday at the monthly county staff meeting.

Earl Foster, assistant superintendent of county roads, told the commissioners that progress on the summer work schedule has been "fantastic." He reported that 19 miles of road have been converted from dirt to hardtop, with 50 miles of hard-surface roads treated with an additional layer of asphalt. He said that a problem at the asphalt plant will put asphalt paving on hold until the problem is repaired. Foster also reported an equipment failure at the Grantsville garage, and said that the department is investigating the purchase of used equipment, which may be more cost effective than repairing the broken equipment.

Work on the Limestone Bridge near Friendsville is progressing well and should be completed within a few weeks, according to Foster. He said that there should be no problem completing the work for the $47,000 allocated for the project.

Superintendent of Schools Jerome Ryscavage outlined summer activities of the school board, including the closing out of last year's budget, the Youth Employability Program, workshops with staff members, receiving materials and supplies for the upcoming school year, bus inspections, and maintenance and custodial projects throughout the county.

He said that the board will be assisting with the state-wide poll of the public's view on public education in Maryland. Members of Parent-Teachers Associations and other interested persons will be recruited to conduct the telephone interviews, which Ryscavage said will take 20-30 minutes to complete. The poll is being conducted by Phi Delta Kappa, an educational honorary society.

Ryscavage told the commissioners that the first day of school for students will be a half day on August 29.

John Reckner, Garrett County Soil Conservation Service, reported that the Amish Road land reclamation project has been completed except for the final payments to the contractor.

Garrett Community College Dean of Finance Leo Martin told the commissioners that the college's enrollment, off about 16 first time full time students at last count, is not as serious as it appears. He said that the drop is expected to be made up by part time students.

He reported that computerization is proceeding well, and that the college and the county roads department are using the same computers and the same consultants in their computerization, which should be of benefit to both.

Charlotte Griffith, director of the Appalachian Center, said that renovations of the workshop area through a HUD grant are about 75% complete, and should be finished by the end of August.

Griffith said that the front entrance to the center will be ramped to provide wheelchair access in September. Funding for the ramp, plus about $21,000 in food service training equipment was provided by a grant from the State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Sue Shockey, director of the Jobs Training Partnership Act Office, told the commissioners that last year's JTPA participants attained a 70% placement rate, with participants in the displaced worker program achieving a 100% placement rate.

According to Shockey, the JTPA office will be offering training in office skills, GED preparation, and other job skills training beginning in September.

She reported that 195 youth are participating in employability programs this summer, including 158 in the Board of Education's Youth Employability Program.

Anna McNallie, acting county planner, said that work on the Deep Creek Lake Area Plan update is proceeding smoothly.

Sheriff Frank Finch reported that several inmates are participating in the GED program at the jail. He said that the jail is currently housing 17 inmates for the State Department of Corrections, for which the department receives reimbursement.

He told the commissioners that inmates have been working to prepare the small building the department plans to utilize for an information booth at the Garrett County Fair.

He reported that the grant monies received for traffic enforcement are working out well, with the department concentrating its enforcement efforts on towns, rather than the open highway.

The department's recreation program, which provides one hour of recreational activity per day for inmates, was also reported to be going well.

Marilyn Metheny, of the county office on aging, reminded the commissioners of the state public hearing on plans for services to the aging, scheduled for Wednesday, August 8 at 10 a.m. at the Oakland Center of Garrett Community College. She said that August 18 will be Senior Citizen Day at the Fair, with senior citizens admitted free of charge.

Edith Brock, Ruth Enlow Library, reported a minor roof leak at the library.

Zoning administrator John Nelson said that recent legislation authorizes the Department of Natural Resources to take over the inspection of sediment and erosion control, unless a county can satisfactorily demonstrate that its own inspection efforts are adequate.

DAV RECEIVES DONATION — American Legion Post 71, Oakland; the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 10077; and the Oakland Elks Lodge 2481 recently presented checks totaling $300 to Mt. Top Chapter 29, Disabled American Veterans, for the purchase of a ceremonial American flag to be used by the DAV. Dianna Shillingburg, Donald Taylor Wed In Double-Ring Ceremony

Wedding vows were exchanged June 30 by Dianne Lynn Shillingburg and Donald Wayne Taylor. The double-ring ceremony took place at Saint Peter's Roman Catholic Church, Westernport, with Father Paul Byrnes officiating. Linda Davis was the organist and Janet Morris the vocalist. Dave Welch was lector and Greg and Danny Bernhard served as altar boys.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Shillingburg, Westernport. Mr. Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis E. Taylor, Swanton.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a Bridallure wedding gown designed by Michele Piccione of knit chiffon, made of French imported Alencon. Chantilly, and re-embroidered lace with sequins and seed pearls. The gown had a Queen Anne neckline and fitted bodice, trimmed with beaded re-embroidered lace, with lace bishop sleeves and front peplum of the skirt. The hemline of the front skirt and the entire cathedral train was covered with sheer chiffon baby doll ruffles.

The bride wore a blocked, tailored picture hat trimmed in matching lace and seed pearls with two white silk cabbage roses profiled to the contour of her face.

The bride's jewelry consisted of a pearl necklace and antique white gold diamond ring, gifts of the bridegroom; diamond earrings and pearl earrings, gifts of her parents; and an antique gold locket, a gift of from the bride's grandmother to her sister, Linda Litten, which she wore on her wedding day.

The bride carried a cascading silk bouquet of white, pink and burgundy sweetheart roses, with wedding stars, carnation tufts, and baby's breath accented with pink and burgundy ribbons tied in love knots.

The bride's mother wore a pink dress with gray assessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue and white dress with white accessories.

Linda Litten, Rawlings, served as her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Tammy Mabin, Keyser, and Sherri Kalbaugh, Westernport. Stacy Taylor, Swanton, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl. Amie Mae Kalbaugh, Westernport, was the bible bearer, carrying a small white bible of the bride's, a gift of her parents, and a small white bible belonging to the bride's mother that she carried in her wedding.

The attendants' gowns carried out the color scheme of pink and burgundy and they carried fan bouquets matching the bride's bouquet and wore matching flower halos in their hair.

Acting as his brother's best man was Allan Taylor, Swanton. Ushers were Mark Altobelli, Severna Park and Chuck Kalbaugh, Westernport. J.D. Litten, Rawlings, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer.

Grain News Highlights, by John Crothers, Marketing Specialist, University of Md.

By this point in the 1984 growing season, the weather would have to do some weird flip-flops to cause low yields, especially in corn and especially in Maryland. Nationally, corn yields could average anywhere between 100 and 115 bushels per acre, meaning a U.S. production ranging between 7 and 8 billion bushels. That potential range of a billion bushels holds a good portion of the answer as to how deeply U.S. corn prices will dip this fall during harvest. This still leaves the question of potential corn prices in Maryland. One's gut reaction to the present condition of corn in these states is to expect near record or record yields—with resulting low prices. Yes, the large potential local supply would ordinarily put the skids to prices—even more of a skid than has already hit the market. But just as last year was not a normal year, this year will not be normal either. Maryland corn supplies as of June were less than half of last year's stocks, only 44% to be exact. Maryland corn prices will be controlled to a degree by future prices and cash corn prices in the midwest. But the price drop between the 1983 and 1984 corn crops should not be as drastic as the price drop between the 1980 and 1981 crop.

How Do Fall Armyworms Get Here?

The fall Armyworm has done a lot of damage and still is active in our corn fields. At this point, insecticides could only be applied by aerial sprays which is not available in the county. You may be interested in the life cycle of the Armyworm. A severe winter in our area will kill a large percentage of the Armyworm eggs, however, they still are around to eat our corn. The fall Armyworm is a tropical insect that overwinters in Florida and Southern portions of the Gulf States. Small populations usually remain active in that area of the country from February through April, going through their life cycles producing generation after generation. Migrants fly up through the southern states and infest other host crops, thereby beginning a new infestation and life cycle. It is interesting to note that the female fall Armyworm, once she is mated, generally prefers to fly several hundred miles before she initiates egg laying. In flight, she may encounter northernly blowing storms or winds enabling her to cover longer distances. This is the reason the insect is a problem even in Canada by the end of the growing season.

Parvo Virus Of Swine Diagnosed In Maryland

Two cases of parvo virus were diagnosed in Maryland swine herds earlier this year, according to Dr. Stauffer Miller of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, Office of Animal Health and Consumer Services. This is a viral disease of swine which can result in serious economic losses to Maryland producers who fail to take necessary precautions, Miller said. Concerned producers should contact their veterinarians regarding the innoculation of susceptible animals with one of the several protective vaccines which are available.

Parvo virus does not produce disease symptoms in adult swine except for reproductive failures. Bred gilts in the first 30 - 90 days of gestation are most susceptible. Bred swine exposed to the virus after about 90 days of gestation will probably farrow normal litters.

Symptoms of parvo viral infection include the abortion of mummified pigs, weak newborn pigs, reduced litter size, undersize pigs, and bred animals returning to estrus about 60 days after breeding. Animals most susceptible to the disease are probably 6 - 8 month old gilts bred about 30 days.

"Parvo virus can be devastating to a farrowing program," Miller stated.

Maryland's Corn Plantings Higher

Maryland corn growers have indicated they have planted 685,000 acres this year, 35,000 acres more than in 1983, according to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service's crop acreage report. In 1982, corn plantings in the State totaled 750,000 acres.

National average farm prices for the crop are expected to range between $2.65 and $3.20 per bushel, 10 to 65 cents above the national average loan rate. Farmers averaged about $3.25 a bushel for corn a year ago.

The report indicates farmers intend to harvest for grain 590,000 acres of corn this year compared to 545,000 acres last year and 640,000 acres in 1982.

Olin S. Davis, Jr., chairman of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee said, Maryland farmers enrolled 196,793 corn base acres in the 1984 feed grain acreage reduction program and designated 19,679 acres for the acreage conservation reserve. "These farmers will be eligible to receive price support loans, target price protection and other program benefits," said Davis.

The Maryland loan rate for 1984 corn is $2.80 per bushel. The nine-month price support loan helps farmers pay operating and production costs and allows them time to assess the market or to hold grain for feeding later.

Nationally, farmers intend to plant 79.9 million acres of corn, 33 percent more than last year, when the acreage reduction program lowered planted acreage to the lowest since records began.

MDA Checking For New Plant Pest Infestations

The Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA), in cooperation with the University of Maryland and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Plant Pest Survey and Detection Program, recently initiated a survey and detection program designed to determine the possible presence of three serious plant insect pests. None of the three is known to exist in the State at the present time but they could easily survive if accidentally introduced.

The first such pest is the western corn rootworm beetle. The beetle is a severe problem in the midwest corn belt and has been slowly migrating eastward. It was recently detected in the states of Ohio and Pennsylvania. The insect can cause significant yield reductions in continuous corn acreage. MDA has set about 170 insect traps throughout the State to check on its presence.

The second pest is the plum fruit moth. This insect occurs throughout Europe and the southern USSR. It is not known to exist in the United States but, should it be introduced, it could adapt to the Maryland climate. It has the widest host range of the three insects under consideration and attacks, in addition to the plum, cherries, apples, peaches, apricots, pears and walnuts. The caterpillar of the moth bores into twigs. It may also bore into fruit later in the season causing fruit drop. Fifty traps have been set in themajor peach producing counties of Maryland for this pest.

The third is the summer fruit tortrix. This pest occurs in western Europe but, like the plum fruit moth, it could survive Maryland's climate. It is a pest of apples and pears and causes damage in the caterpillar stage when it feeds on leaves and fruit. Fruit losses of up to 20 percent have been recorded in Germany as a result of the activities of the summer fruit tortrix. Fifty traps for the tortrix have been set in major apple producing counties.

MDA cautions that setting of these traps for the surveys is not a cause for alarm on the part of State agriculturists. There is no indication than any one of these pests currently exist in the State. "It's just a matter of safety first," says Steve Malan of MDA's Plant Protection Section. "Many agricultural pest infestations can be eliminated or at least controlled if discovered early. But when they go undetected and unchecked for long periods of time, control may be impossible," he concluded.

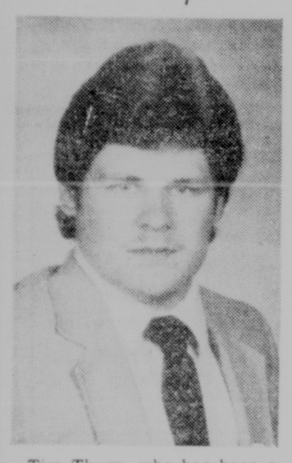
OLL RECEIVES FLAGS FROM WOW — The Oakland Little League was presented an American and a Maryland flag this past week by Court 110, Woodmen of the World, for use at the league's ballfields at Broadford Park. The local WOW had donated the flags that have been used for the past few years at the fields, however they were in need of replacement, according to Doug Ellis, president of the league. On hand to receive the flags from Leota Peck, sentry of the local WOW jurisdiction and a member of Court 110, were Ellis and Steve Lewis, a member of the Garrett National team this past season.



SWIMMING CHAMPS — Six members of the Manta Rays, Garrett County's swim team, came back from the area championships held at Frostburg State College on July 28 with top awards for their efforts. Two of the local swimmers took the overall championship trophies in their divisions. They were Bill Hesen, son of William and Norma Hesen, Oakland, in the senior division, and Lee Collins, son of George and Madeline Collins, McHenry, in the mini-tyke division. Earning second place overall trophies were Preston and Gordon Savage, sons of William and Ruta Savage, Deep Creek Lake, in the mini-tyke and prep divisions, respectively; Lisa Briggs, daughter of Rick and Paula Briggs, Friendsville, in the junior girls' division; and DeDe Seaman, daughter of David and Paula Seaman, McHenry, in the senior girls' divisions. In the photo, left to right, front, are Preston Savage and Lee Collins. In the back, same order, are Gordon Savage, Lisa Briggs and Bill Hesen. Not present for the photo was DeDe Seaman. The Rays have completed their fourth successful season of competition, winning numerous awards against teams which practice year-round. Head coach Paula Briggs announced her retirement this year and has been replaced by Vicki Skipper, who has been an assistant coach at Frostburg State College.

Tim Tharp To Seek Position On Fairmont Squad

Tim Tharp, who has been a standout running back for Southern High School the past three seasons, announced this week that he will continue to play football this fall at Fairmont State College, Fairmont, W.Va.

Tharp, a 1984 graduate of Southern, has been invited to try-out for the Falcons's 1984 squad and if he makes the team, financial aid for Tharp will most likely be available. He plans to try for a running back position.

The 5-10, 190-pounder also started for three years as a linebacker for the Rams. He averaged about 4.6 yards per carry from the tailback position and in his senior season, scored ten touchdowns and rolled up 700 yards. He was named to the All Highland Football Conference team two years, named All-Area Running Back, was selected as Most Valuable Offensive Back at Southern for the 1983 season and was also awarded a U.S. Achievement Academy award for football.

While Tharp was in the backfield the Rams made two trips to the state playoffs. In the 1980 Class C state championship contest, Tharp, a freshman, went into the game after the first string fullback was injured. He also played in last season's state semi-field game.

A son of Ruth Tharp, Oakland, he also received offers from such major universities as West Virginia and East Carolina. He will leave August 17 for practice at Fairmont.

Tharp plans to major in business administration, with special emphasis on electronic data processing.

Tharp noted his appreciation to the fans of Southern High School and all of those persons who have supported him over the past several seasons at Southern. "It's great to live in a community that is so supportive of sports activities," he said.

Somebody's Mother

The woman was old, ragged and gray
And bent with the chill of the winter's day;
The street was wet with a recent snow
And the woman's feet were aged and slow.
She stood at the crossing and waited long,
Alone, uncared for, amid the throng
Of human beings who passed her by,
None heeding the glance of her anxious eye.
Down the street, with laughter and shout,
Glad in the freedom of school let out,
Came the boys, like a flock of sheep,
Hailing the snow, piled white and deep,
Past the woman so old and gray
Hastened the children on their way,
None offering a helping hand to her
So weak, so timid, afraid to stir
Lest the carriage wheels or horses' feet
Should crowd her down in the slippery street.
At last came one of the merriest troops,
The happiest laddie of all the group.
He paused beside her and whispered low,
"I'll help you across, if you wish to go."
Her aged hand on his strong young arm
She placed, and so without hurt or harm,
He guided her trembling feet along,
Proud that his own were firm and strong.
Then back again to his friends he went,
His young heart happy and well content.
"She's somebody's mother, boys you know,
For all she's aged and poor, and slow
And I hope some fellow will lend a hand
To help my mother, you understand,
If ever she's poor, and old and gray
When her own dear boy is far away."
She thought of that lad as she knelt by her bed
In her home that night and the prayer she said
Was "God be kind to the noble boy
Who is somebody's son and pride and joy."

Terra Alta Snares Urban League Crown

Terra Alta pulled out to an early lead behind the scoring and defense of Jon Sisler and held Kingwood at arm's length the rest of the way to win its first Star Route Urban League Tournament Championship, 54-43, Thursday at the Center Street Recreation Center in Oakland.

Sisler led both teams in scoring, finishing with 22 points. Tony Haskiell chipped in with nine points. For the losers, Tim Warnick was the only player to reach double figures with 14 points.

The tournament began on Tuesday, July 31, with fifth seeded Rowlesburg (4-6) upsetting fourth seed Union (4-5) 66-60, only to be eliminated by eventual champion Terra Alta, (8-1) in the semi-finals 70-50.

Third seeded Kingwood (5-4) romped over the Oakland B team 96-44, and then proceeded to upset second seeded Oakland A (6-2), 57-56, in double overtime. Rain then ended the festivities and forced the finals to be held Thursday.

Following Thursday's final games, League Director, Dave Bender recognized and thanked the league referees for volunteering their time. The referees assisting the league this year included: Don Stemple, Charlie Graham, Rick Selders, Dick Bender, Barry Louder, Brian Selders and Lowell Yoder. Bender also thanked the league statisticians Stacey Haines, and Leslie Ellis, and Joan and Herb Lambert and Wendy Yoder for perparing the food for the league picnic.

Bender then presented individual trophies to the members of the Terra Alta teams.

All-League certificates were presented to the top ten players in the league as voted by the coaches. They were as follows: Jon Sisler and Rob Haskiell, Terra Alta; Mel Evans, Union; Steve Bennett and J.R. Gibson, Oakland A; Jim Liller, Oakland B; Gary Castle and Tim Warnick, Kingwood, and Mike Hovatter and Rob Spiker, Rowlesburg.

Contamination

problem first came to SHA attention in 1982 when water contamination problems in the Keyser Ridge area led to eventual purchase of three properties.

He went on to say the problem remained scattered in that area until mid-1983 when maintenance facilities were under construction there. He said the rash of problems in the vicinity at that time leads SHA to the conclusion that the construction efforts opened up the ground and allowed salt lying around to enter the soil and penetrate the water tables. In November of 1983 the state began an extensive study of the Keyser Ridge site.

Up to this time, he said there were only two areas where there were major problems. This year, problems began appearing first in the area between Grantsville and Route 219 north, and now more recently at the Finzel interchange along Route 48.

"What is the state going to do?" was the meeting's most often repeated question. Beaulieu said that in late September or early October another salt dome will be built at Keyser Ridge. In addition all pads that now are used for loading salt will be covered with impermeable material; drainage systems will be developed to drain water away from problem areas; ditches along Route 219 will be concreted so no more infiltration will be experienced. These are part of a $464,000 investment to stop infiltration.

Better housekeeping methods will also be instigated at salt storage and loading areas with no salt exposed to the weather at any time.

An on-going strict evaluation of salt use to keep highways clear is currently underway. Re-evaluation of SHA use and storage of salt has begun, spurred by talks with neighboring states which use different methods to deal with similar highway conditions.

"We're making a real yeoman effort to solve this thing," Beaulieu said at one point, "but there are no easy answers."

What About Now

Gerald Perry, co-owner of the Trading Post, said "What you're doing now is fine for the future, but what are you going to do now? You have not talked about drilling a new well to me."

Perry referred to the experience of one property owner, also a well driller, who drilled a new well. The old well was 43 feet deep, the new one 120 feet. The new well was cased to a depth of 43 feet. When queried by Beaulieu about the quality of water in the new supply, Martin Tressler said "It's pretty good. Compared to the old well, it's wonderful."

A letter from Hal Kassoff, newly-appointed SHA administrator, had previously said that the SHA will consider paying to replace contaminated wells when it is clearly the state's responsibility. When the SHA drilled a new well on the property of the late Mrs. Reichenbecher at Keyser Ridge, the water there showed no improvement.

Other States' Advice

District engineers from both Pennsylvania and West Virginia are to meet with Beaulieu on August 20, and on the 15th of this month the district administrator has scheduled a meeting with federal highway officials. Beaulieu is also in touch with highway officials from Massachusetts and Maine.

Hauling Water

Wherever health department and SHA lab tests on water show levels of chlorides above 250 parts per million, commercial drinking water is offered to the property owners. Many of the citizens expressed gratitude to the SHA for the water, saying it is a help, and one had praise for the helpful attitude of employees of the Eberly Distributing Company which brings water to those requesting the service.

"Wait A Minute . . ."

Some of the solutions offered by the SHA did not meet with total approval. One woman said "You're talking about draining water to the other side of the road (along Route 40), where I live." When a ditch is dug to eliminate the drainage problems across the road, it will then drain onto her property.

Several seemed to feel the SHA is dealing only with the immediate water crisis but not addressing the financial problems and long-term solutions necessitated by salty water supplies.

Harman Speaks

Edgar Harman, director of environmental health for the county health department, was asked to speak about the problem, and brought out the fact that high sodium levels could pose problems for individuals on strict salt-free diets ordered by their physicians.

Harman touched briefly on concentrations of salt in water supplies and information on heavy metals also found in water supplies. Generally speaking, Harmon noted, elevated chloride levels mean high sodium and iron content. The iron is generally due to corrosion in the pipes from the salt action. Water hardness is also higher where sodium chloride content is high.

Salt Elimination

Although most residents were enthusiastic about elimination of salt from road clearing efforts because of the damage to vehicles, buildings, pastures and lawns as well as water supplies, Beaulieu is not convinced that this can be accomplished without disregarding safety of the public and commercial travellers.

The SHA is investigating the possibility of substituting some other type of abrasive, such as limestone, but will first use up remaining stockpiles of sand in may states which do not use salt, Beaulieu said, the ice stays frozen and the highway crews do not have the freezing and thawing problems experiecned here.

The SHA said it presently uses about 20,000 tons of sodium chloride annually at a cost of $28 per ton on the 200 miles of roads it must maintain.

James Wilburn, a member of the Grantsville town council, pointed out that the town would be dead without a decent water supply and was a vocal supporter of salt elimination. Wilburn and many others believe heavy use of abrasives is the answer.

One man, Raymond Coddington, who worked for the SHA 36 years, said he could tell Beaulieu of many instances of poor maintenance practices, waste, use of pure salt on roadways, and other instances of willful mismanagement on the part of SHA personnel, and volunteered to take the official on a tour of Garrett County to point out problems. Beaulieu promised that "I am personally involved in this now and it (such practices) will not continue."

Beaulieu said that the SHA and health department are cooperating to monitor water, and are having geophysical employees make evaluations on sites where problems are reported. The Maryland Geological survey has also been called in to examine the area and make suggestions for corrections.

Both Del. Edwards and Sen. Bambacus thanked the audience and said that if in the future citizens do not get prompt response from state officials, they are welcome to call either of them at any time.

Del. Edwards said in conclusion that Beaulieu has been on the job less than two years and "is the best state employee I've worked with. He will check things out and get back to you."

In the audience were Commissioner John Braskey, from district 2; William Goldsborough, resident SHA engineer; Dr. William Pope, county health officer; Barry LeBaron, new Tri-County Council administrator; and three employees reportedly from the SHA Office of Material and Research.

CANNING FRUITS

Although sugar helps canned fruits hold their shape, color and flavor, it is safe to can fruits without sugar. Pack the fruit in its own juice, in extracted juice, in juice from another fruit, or in water. Processing times are the same for unsweetened fruits as for sweetened.

To pack fruit in its own juice, use the following directions: Prepare fruit for canning. Then add a little water and cook the fruit until it is boiling hot. Pack, hot, into hot jars. If needed, add boiling water to cover. Adjust lids and process in a boiling water bath for the appropriate time.

To extract juice, crush thoroughly ripe, sound, juicy fruit. Heat to simmering (185° to 210°F.) over low heat. Strain through jelly bag or cloth.

Canning with artificial sweeteners is not advised. Saccharin loses some of its sweetening power when heated and may become bitter. If desired, artificial sweeteners may be added when the fruit is served.

I am often asked about canning fruits and tomatoes in a pressure canner. It can be done, but they must be packed hot. They should be processed at 5 pounds pressure for the times given below.

Processing time for pints or quarts at 5 pounds pressure as follows:

Food	Minutes
Apples	10
Applesauce	8
Apricots	10
Berries (except strawberries)	8
Cherries	10
Grapes	8
Nectarines	10
Peaches	10
Pears	10
Pineapple	10
Plums	10
Rhubarb	5

FOOD NOTES

Watermelon is a favorite summer fruit. Depending on variety, watermelons may be oblong or roundish. If you buy a whole watermelon, look for firm symmetrically shaped fruit with a dull, waxy rind of good color. The underside should be creamy yellow in color. When you buy cut watermelon sections, look for bright red flesh color and black seeds. Avoid any with streaks of white running through the flesh or white seeds. A whole watermelon can be stored at room temperature. Always refrigerate cut sections. Halves or pieces should be wrapped tightly in waxed paper or a plastic bag to prevent the cut surface from drying out and also to prevent the aroma of the watermelon from spreading to other foods in the refrigerator.

Watermelons are nutritious, being a fairly rich source of vitamin C and a good source of vitamin A. Watermelon is also low in calories—one cup of pieces has only 42 calories. Here's a good watermelon dish you might use as an appetizer, a salad, or even dessert:

WATERMELON COCKTAIL BALLS

1 large watermelon
Gingerale

Using a melon-ball scoop, remove all the meat from the watermelon. Soak watermelon balls in gingerale for several hours in the refrigerator before serving. Serve in pre-chilled dishes or cocktail glasses.

EXTENSION HAPPENINGS

The Annual 4-H Fashion Revue will be held this Sunday, August 12, at 3 p.m. on the stage at the Garrett County Fair Grounds. In addition to modeling outfits they have made, the 4-H members will also be modeling outfits from area stores.

Steyers Honored On 50th Event

Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Steyer, Route 560, near Loch Lynn, were honored on July 7 for their 50th wedding anniversary. A reception hosted by their sons and families washeld at the Cornish Manor, Oakland.

The couple was married on July 7, 1934, at the Methodist parsonage in Cumberland. Mrs. Steyer is the former Opal B. Hardesty.

Police Report Several Injured In Auto Mishaps

Four automobile accidents occurred last week, sending two men and four women to the hospital, according to the Maryland State Police.

Salisbury Road was the scene of a two-car accident Friday at 7:10 p.m. James D. King, 26, Piedmont, W.Va., was traveling north on a Suzuki motorcycle following three automobiles led by Harold Junior Resh, 42, Grantsville. Resh, driving a 1977 Jeep CJ-7, gave a left-hand signal to turn into a private driveway as King was attempting to pass the three vehicles. King then ran into the side of the Resh vehicle.

The Medevac helicopter responded to the scene and transported King to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where he is listed in stable condition.

Tfc. R. C. George is investigating and charges are pending.

Jay Michael Bittinger, 21, Grantsville, was transported to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, by the Northern Rescue Squad following a one-car accident Friday at 11:05 p.m.

Bittinger lost control of his 1966 Ford Mustang while traveling north on the Bittinger Road. He struck a guardrail on the right side of the road, crossed the center line into the southbound lane and oversteered to the right, shearing off a telephone pole. The car finally came to rest in some shrubbery.

Bittinger has been released from Sacred Heart Hospital.

Tfc. Charles Thomas charged Bittinger with driving while under the influence and failure to keep right of center.

In another one-car accident on August 2, Tana Lynn Carnaham, 22, St. Mary's, Pa., was southbound on First Avenue, Friendsville, in an AMC Jeep Renault, when she failed to observe a stop sign. The vehicle slid through the intersection on the Mattingly Road and into a guardrail.

The Northern Garrett Rescue Squad transported Carnaham and her two passengers, Lisa Georgino, 17, and Karen Carnaham, 18, of St. Mary's, to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where all three were treated and released.

Cpl. D. C. Maiers charged Carnaham with negligent driving.

Tfc. D. G. Riggleman responded to the scene of a two-car collision on Rt. 39 Saturday at 3:15 p.m.

Roxie Lynn Reckart, Oakland, who was traveling east on Rt. 39 in a 1976 Chevy Monte Carlo, stopped in the roadway to make a left-hand turn into Larry's Used Cars. Garrett County Deputy William Cecil Thomas, 26, Accident, who was also eastbound, failed to reduce speed and his 1981 Chrysler LeBaron police car struck the Reckart vehicle in the rear.

Reckart was taken by private vehicle to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where she was treated and released.

Thomas will be reprimanded by the department, according to Chief Deputy Van Evans, however no charges will be filed.

decreased property values, water supply, pollution and density problems as reasons for their opposition.

Phil Goodwin, Sky Valley, asked, "How does one expand the county tax base by degrading zoning? Too often trailer owners let them run down and become an eyesore. That mobile homes lower property values is a universally accepted notion." He pointed out that governments are always concerned about increasing the tax base, and that the dilution of zoning regulations will result in a lower tax base and eventually higher taxes for everyone.

Dr. William Savage spoke against the Rural Residential designation, saying that people who go to the zoning appeals board with an idea that is appropriate, and who have done their homework regarding the specifics of the proposed placement of the mobile home, will have their request for a zoning exception granted.

Dr. Savage, a member of the Board of Zoning Appeals, said that he was speaking as a private citizen rather than in an official capacity at the meeting.

A request by James and Robert McCann that their property, and that of several of their neighbors located at the head of Marsh Hill Road across from the Wisp Ski Area be recommended for rezoning from Lake Residential to a zoning district that would permit commercial development also drew many comments from those in attendance.

The McCanns contend that as their property has a history of commercial uses, and is flanked on three sides by mixed commercial and residential uses.

A memorandum presented by McNallie said that land use in immediate proximity, which includes a number of commercial usages that were already in place when the original Deep Creek Watershed Plan was developed more than ten years ago, more closely resembles Town Residential, which permits some commercial uses, than Lake Residential, or Town Center, which permits more dense development and allows for a larger variety of commercial uses.

The memo recommended that should the Planning Commission decide to rethink the zoning classification of the area, the proper choice for redesignation would be Town Residential, which allows some forms of commercial development as a special exception, rather than a permitted use, as in Town Center. Some commercial uses are special exceptions in Town Center also.

Such a designation would afford the McCanns some opportunity for development, while ensuring that proposed development would be subjected to close scrutiny by the planning commission to determine its impact on land and lake surface use, and would require approval by the Board of Zoning Appeals.

No recommendation was made or action taken on the request. Joyce Bishoff, planning commission member, requested postponing action on the request to allow more time to assess the many factors, including sewage capacity, lake surface impact, and public input.

Another requested change in zoning standards, proposed by Penn Point Associates at the June Planning Commission meeting, was the subject of a memorandum presented by Anna McNallie, acting county planning administrator.

Penn Point Associates has proposed to construct a 400 room convention-type hotel in the Bull's Arm Cove area of Penn Point. Current zoning regulations that require 500 or more feet fronting on a county primary or a state highway would preclude the development, as the area of proposed development does not meet that requirement.

The memorandom identified the key planning issues involved as whether the road access standard regarding commercial resorts in general should be changed to allow access to county secondary as well as primary roads and state highways, rather than an examination of the pros and cons of whether such a development is desirable or appropriate in the Penn Point area.

The memo recommended adoption of new wording that focuses on the issue of road access, rather than road frontage, while giving preference to sites adjoining the more major highways, and avoiding excessive rigidity. The proposed new wording would delegate the responsibility for determining whether access arrangements would be adequate to accommodate the anticipated traffic to the Planning Commission.

Further discussion of the request was tabled at the request of Dick Lyons, Penn Point Associates spokesman, who said that the change may be unnecessary due to proposed upgrading of one of the access roads in question. He said that plans are not definite at this time pending the selection of an architect for the project.

McNallie announced that the meeting was the last for James Torrington, who has been working as a cartographic intern for the planning office this summer. She praised his fine work in assisting with the mapping necessary for the updating of the Deep Creek Watershed Plan. Torrington will return to Frostburg State College to complete his senior year.

to get particulars on generation of sewage to determine the equivalent residential user (ERU) units. After RK&K presents the final report to the commission, a public hearing will be slated on the sewer user rate study. This is expected to take place in the next few weeks, according to Wendell Beitzel, sanitary district administrator.

Grinder Pumps Available

The sanitary commission has purchased several extra grinder pumps to have available for new connections to the basic system. Interim policy dictates that the individual must purchase the grinder pump from the sanitary district and make his own installation which will then be inspected by the sanitary district. If approved, the district will take over and operate the system if easements are provided and all necessary documents signed.

Current cost of a pump is $1,637. Other costs to hook up will include an $800 debt service fee and a $25 application fee.

Boxes To Be Painted

Meyer Pump Company has demonstrated to the sanitary district officials their proposal to repaint all grinder pump control boxes which have shown tendencies to rust in this climate. The commission and the company are not in agreement however, on which procedure the firm should direct a painting contractor to use. The sanitary commission is adamant that all boxes must be removed from the house or garage walls and the box totally painted. The company wants to paint only the sides exposed to the weather.

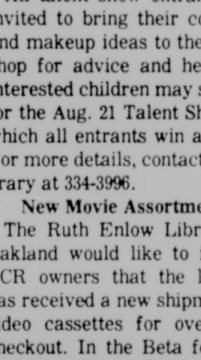
The painting contractor is expected to start work next week, with an inspector from Greenhorne & O'Mara delegated to check the work.

The contractor is also to use mounting brackets on masonry walls so the boxes can be easily removed in the future.

Request Fee Increases

Greenhorne & O'Mara is requesting fee increases, representatives announced Tuesday.

Greenhorne & O'Mara is requesting an increase in the contract ceiling for engineering services for the basic project. In making the request, Gilbert blamed the delay in beginning the project which meant an increase in time on the job, with a carryover of one winter not included in the original project costs.



The commission took no action but promised to study their request and submit grant amendments to various funding agencies to see if additional funds can be obtained.

The engineer also indicated the necessity of requesting an additional fee for the expanded system since the firm had anticipated overlapping of the two projects over the summer months. The grant request made last June indicated that work would start in April but because the health department took longer to process the grant application, the expanded system was unable to get underway until August of this year.

The latter request also includes an amount for the extra work the sanitary district has requested of the firm, to include inspection and supervision for house connections to be made after property owners are notified to connect to the system.

Leonardo da Vinci, it is said, could draw with one hand and write with the other, simultaneously.

DON'T RAIN ON MY PARADE — Organizers of the Friendsville Summer Festival must have been thinking just that as a downpour erupted in the opening minutes of the festival parade Saturday morning. A large spectator turnout took shelter under umbrellas and in doorways, with some hardier types braving the elements unprotected to view the fine collection of horse-drawn vehicles, marching units, groups in historic costume, and Indian delegations that took little notice of the pouring rain. The dampening effect of the rain did not extend to the spirits of the participants or the spectators at the festival.

GRAND MARSHAL AWARD WINNERS at the Friendsville Summer Festival Parade were a group of "buckskinners" dressed in authentically detailed reproductions of early American costume. The group was comprised of members of the Patuxent Mountain Men and their families, as well as some members of related organizations in the area. The group's gallant trek through the rain with moisture from the heavens soaking their hand-sewn outfits brought to mind a day when most people travelled without the conveniences of air-conditioned covered cars, or even the closed horse-drawn vehicles that some local dignitaries were lucky enough to be riding in during the parade.

Camp Hickory Hosting Workshop On Conservation

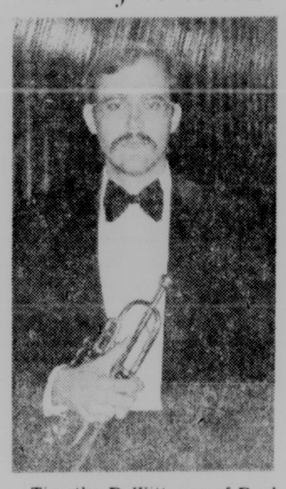
Thirty-nine high school students from across the state, including two young women from Garrett County, are participating in a week-long conservation workshop, sponsored by the Garrett County Forestry Board at Camp Hickory near Accident.

The workshop is the fourth of its kind to be held at Camp Hickory, although this year is the first time the local forestry board has independently organized and promoted the workshop. In previous years, local forestry boards were part of a since-disbanded statewide forestry board orgnization.

The six-member Garrett board, led by president and workshop camp director Charles Strauss, wanted to preserve the workshop tradition and this year, worked hard to recruit students and enlist the support of other county forestry boards for the workshop.

Personnel from the Maryland Department of Forests and Parks, as well as numerous local forestry and environmental specialists, are, however, participating in the program as instructors and staff. In addition to Strauss, Linda Martin is serving as assistant director and representative of the Garrett County Board of Education, which operates Camp Hickory as a year-round environmental learning center.

The students, almost evenly divided between men and women, will take part in various educational activities and field trips, including sessions at Swallow Falls State Park, Herrington Manor, the Christmas tree farm of Dr. Frank Custer, the Meadow Mt. fire tower, Wood Products, Inc., and a career night at Garrett Community College.



Students, aged 15 through 18, are being housed in dormitories and cabins at Camp Hickory and most students' expenses are being picked up by sponsors from throughout the state. Garrett Forestry board members, Phil Garman, Hugh Trimble, John Hill, Dr. Frank Custer, Cindy Stacy and Charles Strauss, volunteer their time for the workshop and other board-sponsored activities.

Garrett County students enrolled this week include Shari Broom and Kimberly Buckel. Other participating counties are: Allegany, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Carroll, Charles, Dorchester, Frederick, Montgomery, Prince Georges, Queen Anne's, Washington and Wicomico.

Personnel from the Maryland Department of Forests and Parks, as well as numerous local forestry and environmental specialists are serving as instructors. Charles Strauss is the president of the local forestry board and is serving as camp director. In the photo, left to right, are Hugh Trimble, instructor and Garrett County Forestry Board member; Kimberly Buckel and Shari Broom, Garrett County's student participants; and Al Bourgeois, district wildlife manager, who is also leading some sessions at the camp. Two Pa. Men Are Extradicted And Arrested

Two Pennsylvania men have been extradicted to Maryland and arrested on two separate charges by the Maryland State Police.

Charles William Rodeheaver, 24, Uniontown, Pa., was arrested July 30 on a charge of theft stemming from an incident on July 25 in which Rodeheaver and Lillian L. Wilson, Oakland, were traveling from Hagerstown to Oakland in her car. Rodeheaver asked Ms. Wilson to stop the car on Rt. 48 so that he could use the bathroom and upon returning to the car claimed he had lost some money. He asked Ms. Wilson to help him look for it and, after they both searched for some time, Rodeheaver allegedly ran to the car and drove away without Ms. Wilson.

Rodeheaver has been remanded to the Garrett County Jail awaiting trial.

In the other case, Paul Eugene Fisher, 24, Meyersdale, Pa., has been extradicted and arrested Monday by State Police on charges of forgery and uttering and theft.

Fisher allegedly stole a check from Doris M. D'Este, made it out to himself, in the amount of $343.10 and signed Ms. D'Este's name to it. He then reportedly presented it to the Grantsville Foodland and the manager approved it because he knew the man as a former employee of the Grantsville Holiday Inn.

Nancy Berkebile, bookkeeper at Foodland, reported the forgery and theft to the Maryland State Police on Saturday and the Maryland State Police made the arrest on Monday. Bond has been set at $1,000 and Fisher has been remanded to the Garrett County Jail.

Aleck Kennedy Durst, 38, Salisbury, Pa., is in the Garrett County Jail in lieu of $250 bond after being arrested Tuesday for forgery and uttering and theft. Durst allegedly stole a check from Bertha Shultz, Meyersdale, Pa., on June 28 made the check out to himself in the amount of $275. He then allegedly forged Ms. Shultz's name to it and cashed it at Grantsville Liquors.

Tfc. D.W. Broadwater responded to a call from Roger Cortez Resh, Grantsville, on Monday about Durst's theft and forgery and Broadwater arrested Durst on Tuesday. Durst is being held in the Garrett County Jail on $250 bond.

Numerous thefts have occurred in the area this past week, according to the State Police. Howard Edwards Matthews, Clairton, Pa., reported on July 29 that someone removed a seven and one-half horsepower Evinrude boat engine from his boat which was docked in the Penn Point area. Loss is set at $250. Tfc. R.J. Resh is investigating.

Denise Carol Jones, Deer Park, manager of Chubby's at Deep Creek Lake, reported that sometime between 11:05 p.m. Sunday and 12:03 a.m. Monday unknown person(s) entered the establishment through an opened window and removed approximately $1,000 in cash. The report was made on Monday and the MSP is continuing its investigation.

Another report Monday came from Gordon Bruce Williams, Adelphi, and William C. Westcoat, Mt. Airy, who stated that someone had removed both of their AM/FM stereos from their boats docked at their summer homes at Glen Cove. The thefts occurred sometime between August 1 and August 6. Tfc. D.G. Riggleman is investigating.

Raymond Lee Owston, Pittsburgh, Pa., reported on Saturday someone had stolen a bicycle from his shed at Glen Acres Campground, Swanton. The 20" Schwinn bicycle was valued at $225. Sgt. C.H. Hinnant investigated.

Robert Alexander Livingstone, McHenry, reported that someone had stolen his fishing rod and reel and tackle box full of equipment on July 30. Total loss value is $313. Tfc. L.N. Smith investigated.

Garrett County folklore declares, "If you don't like the weather in Oakland, wait around five minutes and it'll change."

That's why we're hedging our bets again this year during the Oakland Sidewalk Sale, today through Saturday.

We're holding our Sidewalk Sale inside. You can make your selections not subject to the vagaries of the weather. And we can expend our energies marking down our inventory, not carting it in and out according to meteorological whim.

We've also marked every book in stock at a whopping fifteen-percent discount, paperbacks and hardbacks alike. Now, if you're one of those savvy shoppers who won't cross the street for less than a 99-percent discount, look at it from our perspective. Your fifteen-percent discount on a $25 hardback bestseller means a savings of $3.75 . . . more than enough to treat yourself to a good lunch and leave a decent tip.

We've also made some special price adjustments on that eclectic selection on our clearance table that well exceed the storewide fifteen-percent break.

Fifteen-percent discounts storewide, additional price reductions on our clearance table, and protection from the elements . . . today through Saturday, at the Book Market.

THE PROPERTY OWNERS ASSOCIATION of Deep Creek Lake donated two lights and two sirens for the police boats on Deep Creek Lake Tuesday. Accepting the items from Sue Spence and Bill Burke, directors of the POA, is Sgt. Robert Buckley, of the Department of Natural Resources Police division assigned to the lake. The property owners recently wrote a letter to Dr. Torrey Brown, secretary of DNR, praising the law enforcement efforts on the lake this summer.

Sarbanes Sets Workshop On UDAG Program

Senator Paul Sarbanes recently announced a workshop for Western Maryland representatives of municipal and local governments on the Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) program, scheduled for Friday, August 10, in Cumberland.

"I have asked experts from my staff, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development to provide information on the UDAG program to municipal officials and others interested in it," Sarbanes said in announcing the seminar. "They will also be available to answer questions concerning federal economic development programs and related matters." The seminar will be held from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Friday, August 10, in Room S-69 of the Science building at Allegany Community College.

"The UDAG program is designed to encourage new or increased private investment in cities and counties experiencing severe economic distress," Senator Sarbanes noted. "Many small communities in Maryland have not been successful in receiving UDAG grants. I feel strongly that many of these problems have been related to a lack of information on eligibility, the preparation of applications and the review and award process.

"This workshop is designed to address these problems while providing information on recent changes and additions to this program enacted by Congress," Sarbanes added.

PLEASE HEED THIS IMPORTANT CAUTION

You may notice a new label that is now appearing on some prescriptions. It states, "CAUTION. Federal law prohibits the transfer of this drug to any person other than the patient for whom it was prescribed."

There is a good reason for this caution. Today's medicines can be very specific for a particular illness and could even be harmful if they were taken for something else. Same symptoms do not necessarily mean the same illness. Only a physician can determine the cause of an illness and what a person should take for it. Never endanger your health or that of others by swapping medicines.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

A BACKWARD STEP AHEAD
August 12, 1984

Background Scripture:
2 Kings 18 through 20.
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 1:18-20.

Recently I had an opportunity to return to my university alma mater after several decades of absence.

I knew that in the thirty years since I had graduated, the campus had undergone a tremendous change. Many of the things we had dreamed of when I was a student there had now come to pass: bright, shiny new buildings to replace some of the old "dungeons" of my day, city streets had been closed-off, trolley tracks taken up and the campus almost doubled in size. Millions had been spent to improve the university.

HE HELD FAST

But my "homecoming" was something less than the joy I had anticipated. The campus of my alma mater today is a hodgepodge of glaring architectural experiments, graffiti, and a campus that looks "seedy." All the new "improvements" have not necessarily made the campus a better place to pursue an education.

This is hardly a unique or singular experience, but one I have encountered frequently. I realize at this point in my life that all too often in the past I have placed too much stock in replacing the "old" with the "new." "New" is not necessarily "better."

Like many of us, the people of Israel were eager to leave behind the "old ways" of their fathers and establish the "new" ways that seemed to be the only key to the future. The "old" religion seemed too restrictive and forbidding. The "new" religious movements all around them promised to be much more enjoyable and profitable.

That is, until Hezekiah became king. Unlike most of his predecessors and successors, Hezekiah was not hesitant to return his nation to the old values and practices which had so sustained Israel in former times. Thus, the writer of 2 Kings makes what was to be a very rare entry: "And he did what was right in the eyes of the Lord,...For he held fast to the Lord; he did not depart from following him, but kept the commandments which the Lord commanded Moses" (18:3,6).

HE PROSPERED

It wasn't that Hezekiah was trying to take the people of Israel back to "the good old days," but that he was trying to get them to return to the eternal truths and values which time does not outgrow. It was Israel's heritage from the past that would be the foundation upon which the Israel of the present must build for the future. The end result was that "wherever he went, he prospered" (18:7).

Hezekiah apparently realized that one does not have to give up the past in order to live in the present and prepare for the future. There was value in the old traditions of Israel. There was continuity in perpetuating some of the old ways.

It was this appreciation and reverence for the traditions of Israel that made him so effective in the present moment. The reform of Hezekiah, although it appeared to be a backward movement, was actually a step ahead.

Rejoice in His love.

Let His eternal love inspire us all to enrich our lives . . . today and always!

Come, worship together

Sachs Encourages Use of Direct Deposit Program

Maryland Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs recenly urged recipients of Social Security checks and other payments from the federal government to use the Direct Deposit Program to ensure the safe and reliable transfer of the money to their checking and savings accounts.

"The Direct Deposit Program foils the would-be thieves who ransack mailboxes in search of government checks, and it also eliminates the possibility of these vital payments being lost or otherwise stolen by con men or hucksters," Sachs said. "It also saves consumers the inconvenience of making that first-of-the-month trip to a financial institution and waiting on a long line there."

Sachs said that the Direct Deposit Program is available to anyone receiving Social Security payments; Supplemental Security Income; Black Lung benefits; Civil Service retirement or annuity payments; checks from the Railroad Retirement Board; Veterans Administration compensation or pensions, and federal salaries.

In addition, recipients of annuities and retirement pay from the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and the Central Intelligence Agency may use the program, as can those receiving active duty pay from the Army, Air Force, and Marines, Sachs said. People who receive revenue sharing savings payments from the Office of Revenue Sharing also may use it, he added.

"Even if you are away on vacation or out of town for some other reason, your money is deposited automatically in your checking or savings account by means of the Electronic Funds Transfer system," Sachs explained. "The government also will send directly to your home any information regarding your payments, such as changes in the amount you receive or your eligibility for further payments," he said.

The recipient's money begins earning interest immediately if it is deposited in an interest-bearing account, and it is available to the recipient at the opening of business on the same day the check would have arrived in themail, Sachs explained.

"This program not only is convenient to consumers, but it helps save taxpayer dollars, too," Sachs noted. It cuts the federal government's operation costs by eliminating the need to print and mail millions of checks each month; reduces paperwork, and provides a highly dependable, efficient system for payment, as well as a means for quickly tracing all payments, the Attorney General said.

Direct Deposit also cuts the costs of the financial institutions, Sachs added. A 1981 study showed that it costs banks and savings and loan associations 24¢ to process an over-the-counter deposit; 59¢ to process a deposit made by mail, and only 7¢ to process an Electronic Funds Transfer deposit, he said.

Sachs noted that the Association of Retired Persons (AARP) is a booster of the Direct Deposit Program, and to date 20 million recipients of federal checks use it. "And 20 million Americans—many of them senior citizens—can't be wrong," he said.

Sachs said that individuals interested in learning more about the Direct Deposit Program should take their next check to their bank, savings and loan, or credit union, which will answer any questions about the program and help them fill out an application form. Within 60 to 90 days, their payments will begin going directly to their account. If the recipient doesn't have an account at the moment, any financial institution or credit union will still provide assistance in joining the program, the Attorney General said.

Sachs noted that the U.S. Treasury Department's Bureau of Government Financial Operations is launching a nationwide drive in July to encourage more recipients of government checks to use the Direct Deposit Program, and that organizations wishing to obtain more information about the program should contact the Direct Deposit Marketing Department of the Treasury in Annex 1, PB-1100, Washington, D.C. 20226, or call (202) 634-5705.

Debt Committee Advises Governor On Bond Control

Maryland's Capital Dept Affordability Committee is urging Governor Harry Hughes and the General Assembly to begin a long-term program that would eliminate the need for the state to sell bonds to finance most general state construction projects and avoid high debt service costs to taxpayers. Local projects financed with State General Obligation bonds and transportation projects would not be affected, according to the committee.

Maryland's Capital Debt Affordability Committee, which consists of State Treasurer William S. James (Chairman), State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, State Budget Secretary Louis Stettler, State Planning Secretary Constance Lieder and public member, Paul B. Meritt, is required to make recommendations concerning the State's debt each year.

In releasing the report Treasurer James and Comptroller Goldstein noted that the 25-year program to phase the general construction loan budget into Maryland's operating budget would require additional funds in the State budget each year, over a period of 25 years. By eliminating debt service costs, the State's capital program would ultimately become an annual operating expense. Eliminating interest payments will mean the State will get more for its construction dollar, according to committee members. The Committee's current report notes that higher interest rates in recent years have meant the State of Maryland is paying as much as one dollar for each dollar borrowed. General obligation debt service (repayment of interest and principal) will amount to $381.5 million in Fiscal Year 1985, or $87.70 for every man, woman and child in Maryland.

The Committee is also recommending a maximum of $220 million in general obligation bond authorizations for the Fiscal Year 1986 Budget, and that up to $25 million of any unanticipated surplus revenue from Fiscal Year 1985 be used to fund previously authorized projects instead of selling bonds to finance them.

In addition to its proposal to use up to $25 million in unanticipated surplus revenues to provide current funding for capital projects, the Committee called for the establishment of more effective control on the total amount and time of offering of special authority debt.

Some State agencies and authorities, including the Community Development Administration of the Department of Economic and Community Development and the Maryland Transportation Authority, issue revenue bonds, with repayment pledged from mortgage payments, tolls and various fees.

In addition, the Committee, chaired by State Treasurer William S. James, recommends that the Board of Public Works consider a policy of level principal repayment on bond issues, another procedure designed to save on interest costs and reduce future debt.

In its report, the Committee notes that the level and trend of Maryland's debt has stabilized since 1978, when the Committee began making its recommendations. "The total authorized (issued and unissued) general obligation debt has declined by $143,552,000 (4.6%) between June 30, 1978 and June 30, 1984," the Committee reported.

Staff support to the Committee was provided by Dr. Robert Rader, Chief of the Bureau of Revenue Estimates, and Ms. Joan Shirefs, of the Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning.

Boat Inspections To Be Conducted August 11, 12

Free boat inspections are being offered this weekend at the Deep Creek Lake state park docks through the cooperation of the Coast Guard auxiliary, the Department of Natural Resources, and the Property Owners Association of Deep Creek Lake.

No citations will be issued, as the inspections are being offered only to inform boat owners of needed equipment such as fire extinguishers or personal flotation devices.

Inspections will be given Saturday, August 11, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and the same schedule will be followed on Sunday.

A certificate of inspection will be given by the Coast Guard. Free Pepsi will be available, courtesy of Bill's Marine Service.

DNR Police Arrest Three For Spotlighting

The Department of Natural Resources Police arrested three Grantsville area men about 11:30 Monday evening and cited them for spotlighting deer.

Arrested by Officer Walter May were Randall Yoder, 18, and Tony Warnick, both of Grantsville, and a male juvenile. Arrests were made along Posey Run Road not far from Grantsville.

All three received citations amounting to $30 each for the violations.

In other arrests during the week, Officer May noted that three boat operators were arrested on Deep creek Lake for failing to have the required personal flotation devices; two were arrested for skiing violations, and one was arrested for fishing without a license.

Warnings were issued to two for failure to have enough personal flotation devices; three for skiing violations, four for fishing violations, and three for registration irregularities.

"GOOD NEWS, FLOOGLE. I HAVE DECIDED TO GIVE YOU A BONUS AFTER ALL."

State Receives Top Recognition As To Finances

State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced that Maryland has been awarded the highest form of recognition in governmental accounting and financial reporting. "This award comes at an important time as Maryland prepares for a bond sale on August 15, when the Board of Public Works will accept bids on $138,990,000 in general obligation bonds," Goldstein said.

Maryland remains the only state other than Tennessee to hold the coveted "Certificate of Conformance" from the Government Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada. The award was made for the State's Fiscal Year 1983 Comprehensive Financial Report, prepared by the Comptroller's Office.

"The Certificate of Conformance is awarded to only a select few government units and only after a rigorous review of their published financial statements. This is the fourth time Maryland has won the award," Goldstein said. "This recognition is the latest in a long sequence of positive events relating to Maryland's credibility and financial reporting which have maintained our prime triple A general obligation bond rating and benefited taxpayers through lowest possible interest costs and tax savings."

In awarding the certificate, the Government Finance Officers group said, ". . . its attainment represents a significant accomplishment by a government . . ."

"Over the past several years, Maryland has been a leader in responding to the rapidly changing demands of the bond market, protecting the triple A credit rating the best you can get. This has saved our taxpayers millions of dollars in interest costs," Goldstein said.

Maryland was a leader in publishing detailed financial disclosure statements prior to bond sales and in establishing a Capital Debt Affordability Committee to closely monitor the state debt and make yearly recommendations to the General Assembly. Maryland was also the leading state in converting its accounting procedures to generally accepted accounting principles and obtaining a national accounting firm to make independent audits of the state's books.

"Maryland was the first in the United States to publish an annual financial report with the opinion of the independent outside accounting firm included in it," Goldstein said. "The Certificate of Conformance has requirements beyond those of generally accepted accounting principles. It is an important achievement for all Marylanders, made possible with the cooperation of the governors and legislature of our state."

Citizens' Reports Of Drunk Drivers Yielding Arrests

According to the Maryland State Police, the Citizens Report Drink Drivers Program has increased the number of drinking drivers arrested on Maryland's highways over the past two years since the program was developed.

Figures compiled by the State Police Traffic Program Planning Unit indicated over 15,900 suspected drunk drivers have been reported to police in Maryland since the program began in July, 1982. Of that number 5,880 drivers were contacted, and of those contacted 36 percent were arrested for driving while under the influence of alcohol.

"The program works because citizens are taking an active role in getting the drunk driver off our highways," according to State Police Superintendent Colonel W.T. Travers, Jr.

The program involves motorists spotting a suspected drunk driver and reporting certain information to state or local police by CB radio or telephone. The motorists are not required to give their names nor are they required to appear in court.

Persons who see a drunk driver and wish to report that person to police by CB radio should use CB channel 9. All State Police installations, and some local police departments, monitor channel 9. If persons reach other CB monitors, such as REACT, they should request that they telephone the nearest local or state police. "If you use a telephone, refer to the inside cover of the telephone directory for the number of the nearest state or local police agency," Travers said.

"When you contact the police, give them your location and the location of where the suspected drunk driver was last seen, their direction of travel and the time you observed the vehicle. Please make sure you give the police the make and color of the suspected vehicle and, if possible, the license tag number," he stated.

State Police stress that motorists who spot a suspected drunk driver should not try to stop the suspect or drive in a manner that might create an additional hazard on the highway.

"The Report Drunk Drivers Program aids police in detecting drivers who have had too much to drink." Travers continued, "With the aid of Maryland's citizens, police have been able to remove over 2,000 suspected drunk drivers who might not otherwise have been detected and removed from the highways. The figures reported clearly indicate that citizens are deeply involved in helping reduce the number of persons killed or seriously injured by drunk drivers."

Senior Citizens View Wonders Of Western States On Recent Bus Tour

Thirty-six senior citizens from Garrett County and vicinity recently returned from a 26-day bus tour of the Pacific Northwest after travelling approximately 9,000 miles, visiting 19 states and two Canadian provinces.

The group reached South Dakota on the third day of the trip, visiting the Corn Palace, a unique civic auditorium which is decorated annually with murals and designs created from more than 2,000 bushels of corn, before touring The Badlands, 64,000 acres of variously tinted formations carved out by erosion. The Black Hills, one of the oldest mountain ranges in the world, and home of Mount Rushmore, with its enormous carved heads of Presidents Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson and Roosevelt, was included in the group's agenda.

The seniors travelled through Wyoming, passing through Shoehone National Forest and other areas of natural beauty before stopping off at Yellowstone National Park, which extends into Montana and Idaho as well as Wyoming. Among the attractions at Yellowstone enjoyed by the group was "Old Faithful", the world's best known geyser. "With its many geysers, hot springs, mud volcanoes, brilliant pools and the thrilling view of the falls of the Yellowstone River, this kept our photographers busy for quite a while," one member of the group commented.

After travelling through Montana, the group arrived in Alberta Province, Canada, subsequently visiting a replica of the original Northwest Mounted Police Fort. They traveled through the mountians of Alberta, which they described as "breathtaking", and visited Banff National Park, the oldest in Canada.

At Jasper National Park, which encompasses 4,200 square miles of mountain scenery, the seniors rode snowmobiles capable of carrying 44 persons each, across glacial icefields covering an area of 150 square miles.

After glimpsing Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, the group moved on to British Columbia, where they viewed from an airtram, the fishways that two million salmon pass through on their way to inland spawning grounds. They dined on barbecued salmon and salmon chowder.

Vancouver was the next stop on the tour, where the group's agenda included visits to many parks and gardens in the city.

Back in the United States, the travelers visited Redwood National Park, which contains some of the oldest living things in the world, some trees having already attained an age of more than 2,000 years. They visited the "World Famous Tree House" which contains a large room which has a ceiling 50 feet high.

Next stop was San Francisco, where the group sampled the many traditional attractions of the city, including Chinatown, Golden Gate Park, the cable cars, Fisherman's Wharf, "The Crookedest Street in the World", and many other noted sites.

The group travelled to Yosemite National Park, where they viewed many waterfalls and rock formations, including "El Capitan".

They passed through the San Joaquin Valley, where acres of almond trees, figs grapes and other produce are combined to make it one of the nations richest agricultural districts.

Sequoia National Park, which contains Mount Whitney, the highest point in the contiguous United States, was the next stop. The seniors saw groves of sequoias, the world's largest and among the oldest living things in the world. Adjacent to Sequoia National Park is Kings Canyon National Park, which the group also visited. There they saw the "General Grants Tree", 267 feet high, and probably over 3,000 years old, which has been designated the "Nations Christmas Tree." A member of the tour group said that, "There are no words to do justice to the beauty and splendor of this place."

They then travelled through the Mojave Desert, passing through country where silver, gold, tungsten and iron are mined.

They visited Calico Ghost Town, near Barstow, Cal., which was a booming silver mining community during the late 1800s.

Next stop was Las Vegas, where members of the tour visited a casino which featured slot machines, roulette wheels, crap and poker games, and other games of chance.

Zion National Park in Utah, with its vividly colored canyon walls, was the next stop on the tour, followed by Bryce Canyon National Park, where colorful rocks are shaped by erosion into fantastic forms. Many resemble people or objects, a fact that is reflected in the names of some formations, such as "The Three Wise Men", "The Bryce Temple", and "Queen Victoria."

The Grand Canyon, carved by the Colorado River, and the deepest chasm in the world, was a highlight of the trip for many.

Monument Valley, which is famous for its red sandstone monoliths and spires, was visited next. Part of the Navajo Indian Reservation, it is owned, administered, and occupied by members of the Navajo Tribe.

Nearby Arches National Park, which abounds with stone arches, pinnacles, and other formations, was a popular subject of the tour members that are camera enthusiasts.

After passing through Colorado Springs and Denver, and visiting the wilderness area known as "The Garden of the Gods", the group rode the cog railroad to the top of Pike's Peak. The railroad is the highest in the United States, and the highest cog road in the world.

Another Colorado attraction visited by the group was the United States Air Force Academy, where they toured the 17 spired chapel that is said to be the focal point of Academy life.

A visit to the Flying W Ranch included a western chuck wagon supper and entertainment by "real cowboys" who put on a western stage show under the stars.

Homeward bound at last, the group crossed the middle part of the country in three days, arriving in Oakland on July 20.

Members of the tour were Ernest and Alice Spoerlein, Earl and Dorothy Lear, Edgar and Letha Smith, Keith and Evelyn Steyer, Patty Heiney, Margaret Dean, Ralph and Ethel Buckel, Kenneth and Helen Keplinger, James and Helen Bryant, Willard and Mary Elliott, Harvey and Edith Riley, Elizabeth McComas, Elsie Cross, Jean Sollars, Elizabeth Watkins, Maxine DeBerry, Myrtle Durbin, Alma George, Marguerite Wotring, Ferne Beachy, Laura Turner, Anna Beachy, Helen Friend, Mary Kay Lewis, Pauline Henline, Lena Wolf, and Pauline DeBerry.

The tour was organized by Mr. and Mrs. Spoerlein and accompanied by Martha Armstrong, escort, and Jim Abe, driver.

A NEW HEALTH CARE ERA

During the 1960s, Americans began to demand a healthcare system that would match their rapidly improving living standards—at any cost. Medicare was introduced in 1965 to provide a parallel system of care for the elderly, again without much concern for cost. The healthcare industry responded to the challenge with eagerness. It became a growing commitment to America's life and health, aimed at making America's healthcare system the best in the world. Thus, medical schools began to pour out thousands of doctors; funds flooded into new research; new and increasingly expensive drugs and advanced surgical treatments appeared; more sophisticated medical equipment came on to the market; and new medical centers were constructed as fast as they could be approved.

Several recessions and inflationary binges later, the mood changed. Employers and taxpayers, forced to tighten their own belts, blamed the healthcare industry for ignoring the new economic realities by allowing healthcare costs to rise an explosive 15 percent-plus per year. As a result, a revolution has been put in motion by our government, by large and small businesses and by the general public to restrain the growth of the healthcare system and thereby control the costs of healthcare.

A variety of new payment and healthcare delivery systems have been put into place across the country. The emphasis of these systems is to provide lower cost alternatives to hospital care, reduce hospital admissions in length of stay and thereby reduce healthcare costs.

The first major area of concentration by government, third-party payers and businesses fall into the category of utilization review controls. These controls are obviously designed to reduce inpatient length of stay and thereby reduce healthcare costs.

Several insurance companies, in particular Blue Cross, have instituted what is referred to as a Preferred Provider Arrangement. Through this arrangement, physicians and hospitals, in order to be considered a preferred provider, must agree to certain terms and conditions including price reductions and other special considerations. Patients are given direct incentives to receive services from preferred providers in the form of co-insurance and deductibles.

Another new mechanism set in motion by the federal government is called the Prospective Payment System. This system reimburses hospitals on the basis of diagnostic related groups, or in other words, reimburses hospitals a flat amount for each diagnosis, regardless of length of stay or the hospital's cost in providing that treatment.

The State of Maryland, due to the existence of the Health Services Cost Review Commission, presently has a waiver from the Medicare PPS DRG System. The Health Services Cost Review Commission has its own cost containment systems for Maryland Hospitals.

The pressures resulting from increased utilization review activities, preferred provider arrangements and the Medicare prospective payment system are having a profound impact on hospitals across the nation as well as the State of Maryland. Census data from around the nation have showed drops in occupancy up to 30 percent with admissions being down as much as 20 percent. These drops in patient volume are resulting in extensive cost-cutting, layoffs and threatened closures of hospitals.

The Administration, Board of Governors, Medical Staff and employees of Garrett County Memorial Hospital have been cooperatively working towards meeting the challenge of this new era of healthcare. The nationwide cost control efforts are being felt, but so far admissions have been fairly steady. Garrett County Memorial Hospital's length of stay is alreay well below the state average. The Health Services Cost Review Commission, in its effort to maintain the waiver for the State of Maryland, has renewed its attempts to contain healthcare costs in the state. As a result, Garrett County Memorial Hospital is receiving its lowest inflationary rate adjustment in the past eight years—a 4.77 percent increase in revenue to cover new services, increases in costs for supplies and other expense items in addition to funding wage and fringe benefit expenses.

Faced with these pressures, the hospital has established priorities which are responsive to the challenges of the government, business coalitions and the general public. The priorities for Garrett County Memorial Hospital include cutting all unnecessary expenses that will not adversely affect patient care to make the hospital the most cost effective in the area, maintaining job security for its 250 employees and insuring the hospital's survival through diversification and expansion of needed services.

The hospital recognizes its vital role in providing healthcare services as well as being a tremendous economic resource for the Garrett County Community and will effectively try to minimize the adverse impacts of the cost containment efforts being imposed on the healthcare system.

In last month's column, we failed to mention a most talented member of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital medical staff who, in addition to the other surgeons named, routinely implants cardiac pacemakers. He is Dr. John Porcaro.

Counties Share Tax Revenue From Beer, Spirits, Cigarettes

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced that Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City have received $24,810,095 as their share of alcohol and tobacco tax revenues for Fiscal Year 1984, which ended June 30, 1984. Checks totaling $6,410,508 have just been mailed to the subdivisions as their share of alcohol and tobacco tax revenues for the final quarter of Fiscal Year 1984 (April, May and June, 1984).

"The $24.8 million shared with the subdivisions is 2% less than the $25.3 million returned during the previous fiscal year, and reflects nationwide trends in alcohol and cigarette consumption and tax revenue," Goldstein said.

Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City receive approximately one-third of the $1.50 per gallon tax on distilled spirits and approximately one-half of the nine cents per gallon beer tax, based on the number of gallons delivered to licensed retailers within the subdivisions. The local governments also receive three cents of the 13¢ per pack tax on cigarettes, based on population.

For the year ending June 30, 1984, the 23 counties and Baltimore City received $15,044,003 in cigarette tax revenue, or 3.5% less than the previous year. The subdivisions also received $5,174,655 in distilled spirits tax receipts and $4,591,437 in beer tax revenue, each slightly less than the amount they received the previous fiscal year.

Garrett County's fourth quarter share of the cigarette tax revenue totaled $23,188.63, giving the county a total of $90,580.06 for fiscal year 1984. GUARDIAN APARTMENTS in Friendsville should be ready for occupany in mid-October if the construction firm can keep to its schedule, according to Dan Stahl, construction superintendent for Daymac of Wabash, Ind. Daymac is constructing five units containing 26 one, two and three-bedroom apartments for Robert Finley, Saint Michaels, Md. The property was purchased approximately two years ago from Mr. and Mrs. Harry Guard, and the town plans to construct a park adjacent to the complex using town funds. The buildings will house a central laundry facility with coin operated machines and there will be a small playground area on the property. The buildings, of brick and masonite siding construction, are along Route 53.

Census Bureau Slates Survey On Employment

The U.S. Bureau of the Census will conduct its regular survey on employment and unemployment in Garrett County during the week of August 20-25, according to James F. Holmes, director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Philadelphia.

The survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor in a scientifically designed sample of approximately 71,000 households throughout the United States. Employment and unemployment statistics based on results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation.

For example, in June 1984 the survey indicated that of the 113.9 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 105.7 million were employed. The nation's unemployment rate dropped to 7.1 percent.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals, according to Holmes.

Enterprise Zone Businesses To Be Aided By DECD

Frank J. De Francis, Secretary of the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD), recently announced the opening of a new program to offer financial assistance to businesses located in the state's 10 enterprise zones, one of which is in Accident.

Called the Enterprise Zone Loan Program, it will allow the DECD secretary to offer loan guarantees on loans of almost every kind to businesses in all enterprise zones in the state.

"The various incentives of enterprise zones for new and expanding businesses are already very impressive," De Francis said. "This new program will make the zones even more attractive and could, in some cases, be a principal factor in whether or not a company takes advantage of an enterprise zone."

The new insurance program will increase and expand financing opportunities for businesses located in enterprise zones. It is also expected to attract venture capital and research funds to finance new product development, and assist in the promotion and growth of entrepreneurship in enterprise zones.

The program will be funded initially with $1 million of state general obligation bonds for the Venture Capital Guarantee Fund in Enterprise Zones. That $1 million will be leveraged at a five-to-one ratio to provide approximately $5 million in insurance coverage. Typical loans eligible for the program include start-up loans, acquisition loans and "revolvers," whose balance may fluctuate depending upon needs. Guarantees are issued at the discretion of the secretary, and are reviewed and underwritten by the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority (MIDFA).

Enterprise zones are designed to encourage businesses to expand into the zones, by providing companies with income tax credits and relief from property tax assessment increases. Companies in enterprise zones are also eligible for increased loan limits from several other DECD programs. Existing companies in the enterprise zone area receive the same benefits when they hire additional employees or make a capital investment. Companies interested in reserving their loan guarantees should contact MIDFA at (301) 659-4264.

Estimated Tax Payment Now Due One Month Sooner

More than 194,000 Maryland individual income taxpayers will soon find an important postcard in their mailboxes according to Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein. "The Maryland Income Tax Division is notifying individuals with estimated tax accounts that this year, their third quarter payment is due about one month earlier than in previous years."

Individuals who don't have taxes withheld by an employer must estimate taxes due and pay on a quarterly installment basis.

The comptroller explained, "The 1984 session of the Maryland General Assembly changed the due date for the third quarter estimated payment from October 15 to September 15, beginning in 1984. Since September 15, 1984, falls on a Saturday, the due date this year is Monday, September 17.

"It was necessary for us to notify each affected taxpayer because the previous due date of October 15, 1984, is printed on the 3rd quarter voucher in the 1984 Estimated Tax Packet, which was mailed to taxpayers well before the law was changed."

While the due date for the third quarter payment has changed, the payment period is still the same three month period of July, August and September. With the changed due date, Maryland's schedule for estimated tax payments now conforms completely with the federal schedule.

Mr. Goldstein noted that taxpayers who made a first or second quarter estimated payment will receive the notification of change, even though they may not need to make a third quarter payment.

Sarbanes Schedules Western Maryland Community Meetings

Senator Paul Sarbanes has announced that he will be holding meetings with Western Maryland constituents to discuss issues before the Congress and assist Marylanders with problems they may be having with the Federal Government.

"Congress is working to solve the complex problems facing us today," Senator Sarbanes said. "I hope concerned citizens will let me have the benefit of their thinking on these critical matters. I also urge those who may be having problems in their dealings with the Federal government to attend so I may be of assistance."

Meetings are being scheduled on the evening of Friday, August 10, and the morning of Saturday, August 11, to accommodate those who may find it inconvenient to attend during business hours. The dates and locations are:

Oakland, Garrett County, Commissioners Meeting Room, County Courthouse, Friday, August 10, 7:30 until 9 p.m.; and Cumberland, Cumberland Senior Citizens Center, 19 Frederick Street, First Floor, Saturday, August 11, 9:30 until 11 a.m.

DET Reports On Calls Received On Fraud Hotline

The Unemployment Insurance Fraud Hotline, in operation since June 18, 1984, to enable Maryland citizens to report suspected incidences of improper and fraudulent collection of unemployment insurance benefits, has received 179 calls as of the week ending July 20, according to officials of the State Department of Employment and Training. (DET)

Of those calls, 89 were actual requests for the department, to investigate possible fraudulent activities. Generally, those calls were made to report unemployment insurance claimants who are not actively seeking work when required to do so, working full or part-time and not reporting that income, and to report claimants who are receiving "under the table" payments while collecting U.I. benefits. Employers are being reported also for not submitting wage reports and for paying wages "under the table."

All complaints of fraud and abuse are being thoroughly investigated, according to DET officials, and cases in which fraud is substantiated will be considered for submission to the State's Attorney's office for possible prosecution.

The Fraud Hotline, the computerized Crossmatch system and the Random Audit program have been initiated and implemented by the Department of Employment and Training to detect and prevent fraud within the Unemployment Insurance program and to reduce waste and abuse.

Despite the fact that the overwhelming majority of persons collecting unemployment insurance benefits are entitled to them, it is the responsibility of the department to ensure that the integrity of the Maryland Unemployment Insurance program is maintained, explained Brent Johnson, Secretary of Employment and Training. Through the Fraud Hotline all Marylanders now have an opportunity to participate in this effort.

The toll free Unemployment Insurance Fraud Hotline number is 1-800-492-6804. Calls are being accepted Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Mathias Predicts Approval Of Funding For Bay Cleanup

Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr., (R-Md.) recently hailed Senate action on Chesapeake Bay funding and predicted full congressional approval of approximately $14 million for Bay-related activities.

Mathias praised the Senate Appropriations Committee for supporting $14 million of the $15 million that he had requested for federal programs that could be directed toward the Bay.

Said Mathias, "This strong support by the Appropriations Committee indicates that the whole country is becoming aware of the importance of saving the Chesapeake Bay—our nation's largest estuary."

During the past two months, the Senate Appropriations Committee has approved five separate requests for funding of specific programs recommended by Mathias. Two requests have passed both Houses of Congress. The funding recommendations are:

*$10 million to fund the EPA Chesapeake Bay Liaison office and related activities, and for grants to the states. The measure has passed both Houses of Congress.

*$100,000 to the Army Corps of Engineers to begin a study of shoreline erosion of the Bay, and to find ways to stop shore erosion. This measure also has passed the full Congress.

*$2.3 million to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration for a variety of cleanup activities, including $400,000 for continuation of the agency's participation in the Emergency Striped Bass Study; $1.8 million for Bay-related activities including resource assessment, oxygen depletion, improved fisheries statistics and analyzing information from Bay data center;

*$1.1 million to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, with $600,000 going to continue its participation in the Emergency Striped Bass Research Study; and $500,000 to reduce soil erosion in the wetlands and study fish and wildlife contamination. This measure will be in Senate/House Conference shortly.

*10 additional staff positions, requiring funding of approximately $300,000, for the Soil Conservation Service to work on improving water quality of the Bay. This measure will be in Senate/House Conference shortly.

"It is urgent that all of these bills are approved by the Congress," said Mathias. "The only way to clean up the Bay is by taking a holistic approach which includes stopping pollution, soil erosion and restocking the fish. I am confident the Congress will pass this important package of legislation quickly so we can get on with this most important project."

Mathias added, "Not only will these federal funds help the Bay and all who use it, the knowledge gained through this effort can be transferred to other U.S. coastal regions."

Chili Competition Set In Cumberland

The 1984 Maryland Championship Chili Cookoff contest will be held the weekend of August 24-26 at the Ali Ghan Grounds Picnic Grounds, located on old Rt. 40, two miles east of Cumberland.

The activities start Friday evening with a Howdy Partner party and the Ms. Maryland Chili Pepper 1984 competition. The winner will reign as queen for the weekend.

A five-kilometer Chili Pepper race will be held Saturday, August 25.

A trash and treasure auction, open to the public, will start at 10 a.m. on the Shrine parking lot.

The Chili Cookoff competition starts at 12:30 p.m. and is open to the first 50 cooks who apply. The winner of the cookoff will be awarded in addition to a 1st prize trophy, a roundtrip airline ticket to the International Chili Championship Cookoff in California in October.

Entry blanks may be obtained by calling (301) 722-5970 or (301) 722-8150.

Riley. Two performances by Ms. Riley, of Harper Valley PTA fame, are scheduled at 4 and 7:30 p.m.

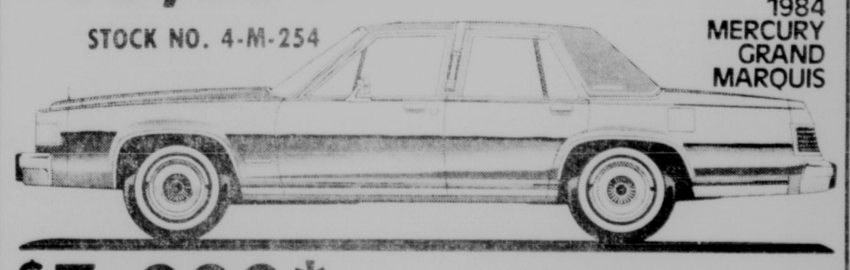
STOP GIVING AWAY MONEY

If you opted to rent instead of buying a home ten years ago, you would have made a gross financial mistake. You could have tripled your money. If you are still renting instead of owning, this could make you cry all the way to the landlord with your next rent check.

Are these days gone forever? Not by a long shot. Perhaps home prices will not soar at the same rate as they did in the last ten years during our era of hyper inflation, but most housing experts expect home prices to increase at about 6% per year for the next ten years. If you buy a home for $80,000, it would increase by $4,800 during the first year. The second year it should rise by 6% of the increased figure of $84,800, and so on. This is the beauty of compounding the increasing value of property.

Never look back and say, "Why didn't I buy a home ten years ago when it was cheap?" If you are now a renter and have any thought about buying—don't hesitate. A home is and will be a great investment for the foreseeable future.



If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone one of our offices.

Talk Of The Towns

Oakland Council Approves New Water Mains

Oakland's mayor and council granted the town's water department permission to spend $14,200.52 on materials and up to $10,000 on labor to lay new water mains in the Third Street extended vicinity during Monday's regular council session.

Von Johnson, water department chairman, will oversee the project, which will involve laying 1,500 feet of six-inch water mains beginning 600 feet south of Mason Street, and continuing along Third Street to Kildow Road.

The council agreed to call a special meeting August 13 at 7 p.m. to discuss the Franklin Associates proposal for design of a treatment plant for the town's sewer system.

Another topic at that meeting will be the McIntire offer to sell property to the town for use with the sewer treatment project.

Wendell Keaton, municipal coordinator, presented two options to the town regarding the stormwater ordinance required by state law. The town may either sign a resolution prepared by the commissioners and adopt the county ordinance, or the town may draw up its own ordinance. Oakland officials took no action, however, agreeing to wait a month while they review the county ordinance and the state requirements.

Towns in Maryland were expected to sign county ordinances by July 31 or to prepare their own ordinances by August 31.

Beach erosion at Broadford Lake was also a topic before town officials. John Reckner, of the Soil Conservation Service, advised the town that topsoil placed in front of the bathhouse could alleviate the problems. Erosion control efforts will be coordinated between the SCS and the town street department.

Cynthia Simpson, operator of the Broadford Park concession stand, came in to discuss several concerns with the officials.

Accident Council Meeting Postponed

The absence of three councilmen Monday night has caused the Accident council meeting to be postponed until Thursday, August 9, at 8 p.m. at the town hall.

Monday night two of the councilmen had to be out of town and a third had to work.

The town will be conducting its third meeting on the update of the Comprehensive Development Plan August 13 at 8 p.m. at the town hall.

The meetings are open to the public and are attended by the municipal planning commission, the mayor and council, and consultant Tim Dugan.

NEW OFFICER SWORN IN — Charles B. Susan, 40, Rt. 5, Oakland, pictured left, was sworn in as an officer of the Oakland City Police Department last Thursday morning by the Hon. H. D. Swartzentruber, mayor of Oakland. Also present was Chief John Sines. Susan, a native of Pittsburgh, served 15 years with the Pittsburgh City Police Department. He is a 1962 graduate of Baldwin High School and Duff's Business School, Pittsburgh. Susan is married to the former Sally Carroll and has two children, Michael, 14, and Melanie, 11. Officer Susan was selected for this position at a special meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on July 23. Chief John Sines stated, "With 15 years prior experience, Officer Susan will definitely be an asset to the department."

Loch Lynn Holds Paving Bids Until Grading Complete

Bids were opened for street paving in the town at Loch Lynn's council meeting August 6 but the mayor and council took no action.

The town officials prefer to wait until all necessary grading and ditching work is complete before awarding the bid. Two firms submitted bids: Kight's and Keystone Lime, and the award is expected to be announced at the September meeting.

The council did accept a bid from Cline's Tree Service for $275 to remove a large dead tree on Roanoke Avenue which is endangering the home of citizens. Cline offered to complete the work for $275.

The town's only dump truck is scheduled to have its transmission repaired by Paul Tressler, of Tressler's Garage. Tressler's bid quoted $90 for labor but did not include parts.

Several persons were present to discuss existing sewer taps and water bills. Those with water bill problems were referred to the Garrett County Sanitary Commission. One man stopped in to find out zoning laws before he begins to build on his property.

The council passed a motion to hold the September meeting on the 10th rather than the 3rd because of the Labor Day holiday. The meeting will be held at 7:30 at the town hall, according to town clerk Virginia Eichorn.

Zoning Board To Hear Bennett Case

The Mt. Lake Park Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a public hearing August 16 at 4 p.m. in the town hall to review an application for a special exception permit requested by Mary Bennett to allow a mobile home on her Broadford Road property.

Ms. Bennett is requesting permission to temporarily place a mobile home on a six-acre tract across from the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Goldsborough.

Grantsville Drops Inventory Tax

Several businessmen were present to urge the Grantsville mayor and council to eliminate the town's inventory tax on incorporated businesses at Monday night's council session in the town hall.

The tax had been eliminated some time ago from unincorporated businesses.

The council voted four in favor of the change with one member, Gerald Beachy, abstaining because of conflict of interest.

All businesses in the town will now be paying personal property tax on furniture and fixtures, similar to the county tax. The tax changes had been discussed at the last two town meetings before a vote was taken.

The mayor and council then voted to adopt the county's stormwater ordinance, as prepared by the county commissioners' office, and therefore is now in compliance with state law.

The town's police car is now up for bids. The last police officer resigned in April and the town decided not to replace him.

Frostburg Seeks Funds For Piney Dam Structure

The Frostburg mayor and council adopted a resolution August 6 which will authorize filing a pre-application to the Farmers Home Administration seeking funding for a new Piney Dam structure.

The Piney Dam is located in Garrett County and provides water for the town of Frostburg.

Commissioner of Water, Parks and Recreation John F. Roland said at Monday's meeting the request is for $5,928,424, the total anticipated cost of a new larger dam structure which would replace the existing one at Piney Dam.

Word on the project is expected by the beginning of September. If the pre-application review determines the proposed project is eligible for funding, the FHA will request a full application at that time. That application would detail engineering specifications.

Commissioner Roland went on to report on the current Piney Dam rehabilitation project, with repair work completed by Pheonix Construction. Roland reported that the reservoir's water level is rising.

Within the new few weeks, Roland continued, the coffer dam should be removed, the entrance road repaired, and seeding begun.

In conclusion, Roland made a motion that the Allegany County Commissioners again be contacted to enact legislation regarding water conservation mandates.

Campfire Program Topics Announced

Black bear ecology will be the campfire program topic this Saturday, August 11, at New Germany State Park. The guest speaker will be Al Bourgeois, wildlife biologist for Maryland Forest, Park & Wildlife in Garrett County. Bourgeois will give a slide presentation on the life history of the black bear. He will also discuss research and management implications for this bear, the largest mammal in Western Maryland.

At the Wednesday, August 15, program, Warren Groves will answer the question, "Why Have State Forests?" Groves is the forest manager for Savage River State Forest.

Both programs begin at 8:30 p.m. at the outdoor amphitheater near the Old Schoolhouse Nature Center. For more information persons may call 895-5453.

Farm Accident Claims Life Of Friendsville Man

Eugene Vernon Uphold, 50, Rt. 1, Friendsville, was fatally injured Friday evening when the farm tractor he was operating overturned.

According to Tfc. R.C. Georg of the Maryland State Police, Uphold had been brush-hogging a field for a neighbor when he ran over a large stump causing the tractor to topple. Uphold was pinned underneath for several hours.

A neighbor had heard the tractor stop operating and phoned Uphold's wife to inquire if he had come home. Mrs. Uphold went to the scene and found her husband pinned under the tractor. She went to a neighbor's house and phoned Central Alarm. The Northern Rescue Squad responded but emergency medical personnel were unable to detect a pulse. Garrett County Medical Examiner Dr. James H. Feaster was summoned and declared Uphold dead at the scene.

Born in Farmington, Pa., he was a son of Mrs. Martha (Uphold) Uphold Friendsville, and the late Oscar Uphold.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Emma (Guthrie) Uphold; five sons, Michael E. Uphold, Oakland; Gregory V. Uphold, Mark D. Uphold, David L. Uphold and Jamie Uphold, all at home; a daughter, Cheryl Uphold at home; four brothers, Danny R. Uphold, Accident, John W. Uphold, Friendsville, Arthur F. Uphold and Carroll Uphold both of Oakland; two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Wilson, Swallow Falls, and Miss Carolyn Uphold, Friendsville.

Mr. Uphold had served in the U.S. Army from 1956 to 1958 and was a sawer for Sisler Lumber Company.

Friends were received at the Newman Funeral Home where a service was conducted Monday with the Rev. Berlin Wilhelm officiating. Interment was in the Blooming Rose Cemetery.

THE PICTURE OF CONCENTRATION, Jeremy Martin, a youthful contestant in the Lightweight Tractor Pulling Contest at the Garrett County Fair, prepares to compete. The Lightweight Pull was held Tuesday afternoon and track conditions were reported to be excellent in spite of the heavy rains earlier that left some areas of the parking lots on the Fairgrounds a sea of mud. Heavyweight competition was held Tuesday evening, with both events attracting excellent participation. Superintendent for the contest was Charles Mason, Oakland. Results of the Tractor Pull and other Fair events will be listed in the next issue of The Republican.

Public Meeting Slated August 26 To Get Comments On Lake Regulations

Proposed regulations for Deep Creek Lake will be the topic of a public information meeting August 26 at 1 p.m. in the Garrett Community College auditorium, sponsored jointly by the Department of Natural Resources and the Deep Creek Lake Advisory and Review committee.

The committee of local residents has been working for the past three years to prepare regulations for the previously-unregulated lake. Copies of the proposed regulations will be available for review in the lake management office beginning August 22, according to Michael Gregory, lake manager for DNR.

Although the lake and the ground underneath, along with the areas used in connection with the generation of electricity, are owned by Penelec, that company has leased the waters to the state. Some years ago the federal government ruled the lake is a public facility and a recreation plan had to be developed. Penelec's plan was rejected, so it leased the lake to the state. The DNR was then charged with designing regulations, and the lake advisory committee was formed to provide different viewpoints on the needed laws.

Proposed regulations for the lake include the following:

- Power boats exceeding 25 feet in length would not be permitted on the lake, while pontoon boats would be limited to 30 feet in length.
- No boat would be operated with more than one engine, not to exceed manufacturer's recommended maximum horsepower ratio.
- A 40 mile-per-hour speed limit on the lake.
- No one under the age of 16 would be permitted to operate a vessel exceeding 14 feet in length and powered by an engine exceeding 7½ horsepower.
- No parasails or hang gliders would be permitted to be used on the waters or buffer strip of the lake.
- No houseboats would be permitted on the waters of the lake.
- Fishermen would be required to obtain written permission from adjacent landowners prior to fishing from the

Smoke Alarm Saves Lives Of Two Local Men

A smoke alarm was credited with saving the lives of two young area men Monday morning as fire destroyed the mobile home in which they resided.

John A. Cosner, 21, owner of the 12 x 50-foot trailer, and his brother, Richard Cosner, 20, were asleep when fire broke out near a fuse box in a bedroom of the home shortly before 6 a.m. The trailer was located along the Cranesville/Sang Run Road.

Garrett County Central Alarm dispatched Deep Creek and Oakland fire departments to the scene at 5:46 a.m., along with the county air cascade vehicle. However, upon arrival of fire fighters, the structure was fully involved in flame.

According to Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett County, after the brothers were awakened by the smoke alarm, they discovered that the entire trailer was full of smoke. They then noticed flames in the area of the fuse box and quickly exited the structure. Richard Cosner sustained a back sprain as he was attempting to make his escape and was later transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad, where he was treated and released.

Carola has determined that the cause of the blaze was electrical in nature, originating somewhere between the service line from the electric meter to the fuse box.

The Cosners lost all of their possessions, Carola said, although they did have insurance on the property.

Carola issued a reminder to all county residents that it is now a state law for all private homes to have working fire alarms. "There is no doubt in my mind that the smoke alarm in the Cosners' trailer saved their lives," he said.

Fire department personnel remained on the scene for about three hours and Deep Creek VFD was summoned back at 10:30 a.m. after the blaze rekindled. Also responding was the Southern Rescue equipment vehicle.

Activities And Plans Of Roads Dept. Outlined

The recently released County Roads Department's report of activities during FY '83-84, ending June 30 of this year, showed 36% of the total departmental budget expended for capital improvements, which includes such items as bridge replacement, roads improvements, equipment purchases, and improvements to county roads facilities.

The Board of County Commissioners decided in 1982 to begin a capital replacement project on worn-out or outdated equipment to reduce long-term expenditures in repairs, maintenance, fuel expenses, and down time. Last year they launched a major roads improvement effort as well.

The roads department purchased ten medium duty dump trucks last year, as well as an additional 12 trucks purchased this year. Seven more will be obtained this year, through a lease-purchase agreement.

Also purchased last year were two backhoes, which replaced to light-duty machines that were 12 and 20 years old.

A grader was lease-purchased last year to replace a

Road Officials Say Flooding Here Was Minor

While Garrett County was surrounded by flash flooding in Allegany County, Md., Bedford and Somerset Counties in Pennsylvania, water-related problems here Monday were relatively minor according to spokesmen for the state and county roads departments.

At least four drownings have been attributed to the flooding in Hyndman and Glencoe, Pa.

On Tuesday, crews from the Grantsville county garage were called to Samson's Rock Road vicinity where part of the road had washed away, but the situation was brought under control. quickly according to Earl Foster, assistant roads administrator.

Samson's Rock Road is in the Finzel area.

Water covered some sections of roadways in the northern part of the county for a time but no major or unusual problems were noted, Foster continued. Flares and signs were set up but no roads had to be closed.

On the 13th, State Highway Administration crews encountered problems on Routes

$250,000 ARC Grant Approved For Sewer Project

Winifred Pizzano, Federal Co-Chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission, and U.S. Senator Paul Sarbanes, announced Monday a grant of $250,000 to the Garrett County Sanitary District. This grant makes possible major sewer improvements to the Trout Run Sewage Treatment Plant and construction of a new sewer line from the Bausch & Lomb plant and adjacent industrial park to Mt. Lake Park and Loch Lynn.

In making the announcement, Ms. Pizzano noted that "Up to seventy new jobs will be created with the completion of this industrial park.

"We've been informed that two firms already committed to moving to the Southern Garrett Park, representing a private investment of $735,000," said Pizzano. "With the economic recovery well underway, they couldn't have picked a better time.

"Our grants are based on potential for job creation and private sector involvement. This Garrett County project certainly passes both those tests," concluded the Reagan Administration official.

ARC funds will be used to increase the capacity of the Trout Run Treatment Plant from 180,000 gallons per day to more than 500,000 gallons per day by construction of aeration equipment. This phase will permit development of the Southern Garrett Industrial Park, a 96-acre site acquired from Bausch & Lomb by the Garrett County Development Corporation.

Other funding for the $630,550 project is being provided by the Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the state, and a Farmers' Home Administration loan.

OVFD To Hold Food Drive For Hyndman Citizens

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department will conduct a food drive this weekend to aid the victims of a flood which damaged or destroyed 80% of the homes in Hyndman, Pa.

Jim Crabtree, coordinator of the effort, spoke to the mayor of Hyndman Wednesday evening, who told him that the clothing needs of the victims are being met, however there is a great need for canned and other non-perishable food items.

Persons may bring food to the fire hall on Third Street or to a pickup truck that will be located on Second Street near the Ben Franklin store. The drive will begin Friday afternoon and will continue Friday evening and all day Saturday. Crabtree said that the food will be delivered to Hyndman on Sunday.

A total of 240 families have been displaced by the flood, which also claimed at least four lives, according to the Hyndman mayor.

Student Use Of Tobacco Prohibited; 2nd Offense To Result In Expulsion

Students in Garrett County schools will no longer be allowed to smoke or use other tobacco products on penalty of expulsion for the rest of the school year following the second offense.

Since 1976 students have been allowed to smoke in certain designated areas. There will no longer be any designated smoking areas, nor will parental permission be sufficient to allow smoking, as in the past.

The decision to prohibit smoking in county schools was made after lengthy discussion at the meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education Thursday.

The rule is included in the revised Student Rights and Responsibilities Handbook that was approved by the school board Thursday. The revisions were developed by a group of administrators, teachers, and students.

The handbook contains guidelines on student rights and responsibilities in the areas of attendance, behavior, student expression, use of school facilities including textbooks and materials, disciplinary measures, school investigations, corporal punishment, student records, and due process in the case of a student grievance.

It includes the authorized consequences and disciplinary procedures to be enacted when violations occur. The document states that school personnel may take differences in age and maturity into consideration in administering the document.

Use of tobacco products in the school building or on the school grounds during the school day is punishable with an out-of-school suspension for the first offense, followed by mandatory expulsion if a second incident occurs in the same or the following semester.

The handbook divided offenses punishable by suspension into Category I and Category II offenses.

Category I offenses, which result in automatic or summary suspension, include possession, distribution or use of alcoholic beverages, narcotics, or other drugs, including noncontrolled substances intended for use as controlled dangerous substance, robbery, extortion, possession, use, or threatened use of dangerous weapons,

Commissioners Appoint Several To Local Boards

The Board of County Commissioners appointed five persons to the County Social Services Advisory Council by a two to one vote Tuesday. Commissioner John Braskey said he opposed the appointments not on the basis of the individuals involved, but because the appointments represent a heavy concentration from the Oakland area.

"I felt that the original recommendations by the Social Services Board of Directors were more appropriate since they covered a number of areas not normally represented on local boards," Braskey said.

Persons on the list recommended by social services included residents of Bittinger, Frizzmiller, and Friendsville, as well as from Oakland and Deer Park.

Appointed to the advisory board were the Rev. John Grant, Deer Park, for a one year term; Helen Baumgartner, Oakland; Charles Tressler, Loch Lynn; and the Rev. Ray Beahm, Crellin; for two year terms. Appointed for a three year term was James R. "Smokey" Stanton, Oakland.

Commissioner Ernest Gregg was appointed commissioners' representative on the advisory board.

Virginia Rosenbaum and Carolyn Ganoe, both of Finzel, were appointed to the Health Systems Agency in the role of consumer representatives, once again by a two to one vote, with Commissioner Braskey dissenting.

Braskey had supported the re-appointment of Jack Fridinger "because of his interest in health care, dedication to the duties of the job, and willingness to continue to

Oakland Men Arrested On Cocaine Charges

According to the State's Attorney Office this morning, two Oakland men have been arrested on charges of distribution of cocaine. They are Terry Wolfe, 28, and Vaughn V. Winters, 32.

Both men have been released on $500 bond. A preliminary hearing will be held in Garrett County District Court on September 4 at 1:00 p.m.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will make its first visit to Friendsville on Friday, August 24. The bloodmobile will be at the Friendsville fire hall from noon to 6 p.m.

Coordinator is Esther Benedict. Assisting with set up and blood collection during the visit will be members of the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department auxiliary and the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

Quota for the visit is 50 pints.

All persons interested in donating blood are welcome. For further information about eligibility for giving blood, contact Mrs. Benedict at 746-5744.

Lisa Savage Awarded State Title

Lisa Savage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Savage, Oakland, is now the official Miss Maryland Charm 1984 because of the results of the National Miss Charm Pageant held recently in Arlington, Va.

Miss Savage, who was named the first runner-up in the Maryland Miss Charm Pageant, received the title when Kimberly Olson, Bryons Road, the winner of the state event, won the national title, America's Miss Charm. According to the rules of the national event, when the winner of an individual state title wins the national title, the first runner up in her state then becomes the reigning state Miss Charm.

Miss Savage was the first Miss Autumn Glory/Garrett County Queen, who then represented the county in the Miss Maryland Pageant in Hagerstown in 1983. A graduate of Southern High School, she is now employed as a secretary for the A&A Realty Lake Office, McHenry.

Persons or organizations desiring an appearance by Lisa may call the Maryland Miss Charm organization at 777-5318 or Miss Savage at 334-3557.

Anyone wishing to participate in the 1985 Maryland State Pageant should send name, address and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Maryland Miss Charm Pageant, P.O. Box 666, Cumberland, Md. 21502. The application deadline is August 30, 1984.

Rabid Raccoon Shot On Savage River Road

Garrett County's 17th rabid animal was confirmed by the state health lab in Baltimore this morning, according to Rodney Glotfelty, rabies prevention coordinator for the local health department.

The raccoon was shot Tuesday while walking along the Savage River Road in the vicinity of the Broadwater Church by Alvin Broadwater.

Broadwater then carried the dead animal by the tail to his house where he called authorities. Broadwater will be seeking advice of his physician tomorrow to determine whether he should undergo post-exposure rabies treatment.

This if the first confirmed case in the Savage River area so far this year, Glotfelty noted.

LIGHTING UP THE NIGHT — Midway attractions at the Garrett County Fair include traditional favorites such as the Ferris Wheel, the Octopus, and the Merry-Go-Round. Garrett Countians young and old crowd the midway each evening to capture thrills, win prizes for their skill at carnival games, eat cotton candy, and watch the crowds go by. Gambill Amusements, Steubenville, Ohio, is providing the midway attractions for the first time at this year's Fair. Competition and thrills at the Fair will continue through Saturday evening, including live entertainment, the 4-H and FFA Livestock Sale, a horse show, and many other events.

GREETINGS from a grinning goat which eyes visitors to the Garrett County Fair with curiosity is only a part of the experiences which await fairgoers the remainder of this week. Exhibit barns open daily at 10 a.m. and close at 10 p.m. Tomorrow is 4-H and FFA dairy goat judging, but this loo-eared smiler seems to think it's all in the game. Judging, home arts, musical entertainment, shows, horse pulls, demonstrations and contests will all end Saturday night with the awards ceremony, 4-H and FFA livestock sale, and horseshoe pitching contest at the McHenry Fairgrounds.

SHERIFF DEPARMENT'S NEW FAIR BOOTH — A new addition to the Garrett County Fair in the form of a public service booth "will make communications with fairgoers much more convenient than in the past," stated Sheriff Frank Finch. The new brown and yellow booth located near the main office will be easily spotted by those in need of assistance. Sheriff Finch urges everyone to stop by and pick up any of the 5,000 free pamphlets available. Home, car and boat protection, drug and alcohol abuse, and sexual assault are among the topics of the free pamphlets. The sheriff is asking parents to show their children the booth upon entering the fairgrounds in case they become lost or have any problems.

Development Corp. Gets Updates On Park, Marketing

The Garrett County Development Corporation heard updates on the Southern Industrial Park layout, water and sewer projects, and an outline of future marketing plans at its August 8 meeting.

The group was informed that the state Department of Health and Mental Hygiene has completed its lab tests on soil samples from the southern park site, asnd results confirm the county's belief that toxicity levels are nowhere near dangerous levels.

The state has asked Bausch & Lomb, still the owner of the site, to complete four more tests including some shallow core borings before the state will approve the land transfer to the county as an industrial site.

Water and sewer projects at Kitzmiller and Bloomington were duscussed, along with the status of the two Deep Creek Lake sewer projects and the Oakland sewer rehabilitation.

Copies of the marketing folder presenting inducements for the Central Garrett Park, including the fact that the site is recognized as an enterprise zone, were distributed. The group agreed that because response to billboards advertising the county has been minimal, future marketing directions will be in the promotion council's Vacation Guide and direct mail to industries.

Several industries have nibbled at use of the idle Sterling Processing plant for food or meat processing, but no commitments are in sight, according to Tom Jones, corporation member.

The corporation is in favor of more trade journal advertising.

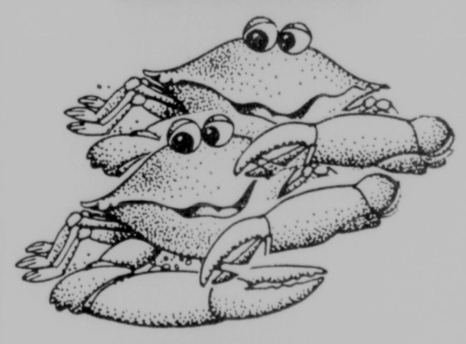
Rev. David Howe Appointed Pastor At Sand Flat

Rev. David L. Howe has accepted a call to pastor the Sand Flat Assembly of God, according to an announcement from the church this week.

Rev. Howe, who preached at the Sand Flat church 40 years ago when he was a traveling evangelist for the church, has spent the past four years in Chambersburg, Pa., building the Christian Life Church. He has also completed rebuilding ministries in Topeka, Kan., Hamilton, Ohio, and Frederick. He has been at the Sand Flat Assembly for the past seven weeks.



A native of Westernport, Howe has been pastor for 43 years and has come out of retirement to accept the call at Sand Flat. He and his wife, Mildred, have moved into the parsonage at Sand Flat.

Rev. Howe stated that he was "most optimistic" and "pleased" with the status of the Sand Flat Assembly, noting that the congregation is showing rapid and continuous growth.

A Rich Tradition . . .

What has become one of Garrett County's richest traditions is occurring this week in McHenry and we would venture to guess that a majority of the county's citizens will in one way or another be a participant in it.

Every child (from age 1-100) should have the opportunity to pet a goat, ride a merry-go-round, earn a blue ribbon, win a teddy bear, eat Oakland Rotary French fries, enjoy the bright, spinning lights of a carnival, view the creative projects of others and learn something about life on the farm. All of these activities are available at the Garrett County Fair.

Also, by attending and supporting the Fair, one also supports dozens of local, non-profit organizations, as well as businesses, which serves to strengthen our county and its communities, financially and otherwise.

Many of our young people strive all year to raise an animal to show at the Fair. They learn not only the best way to raise livestock, but also they learn more important things like responsibility, diligence, the value of hard work, how to win and how to lose. The competition for ribbons in the various inanimate categories teach many of the above qualities and encourage thinking and creativity. These are all essential characteristics in order for young people to become productive adults and good citizens, another ingredient of a strong community.

Because of changes in lifestyles, county fairs, unfortunately, are dropping by the wayside in many parts of the country. The pace of life today is so fast that some of the valuable, old-fashioned events, like county fairs, are being by-passed. It is so characteristic of human behavior to move through life so quickly toward tomorrow, that not only do we forget the traditions and things of the past, but we don't even take the time to enjoy today.

Thus we are pleased to see another large turnout and participation at the Garrett County Fair, not to mention the strong financial support by numerous organizations and individuals this past year to insure its existence.

See you at the Fair.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Anyone who has driven through Oakland between dawn and late evening has most likely noticed the inordinate number of vagabonds roaming around the streets. Their presence is only made more prominent by their filthy, unkempt appearance and their affinity for seeking out new places to serve as a toilet.

In some cases the sidewalk itself is used. They spend their day roaming around drunk, spitting on the sidewalk and vomiting from time to time, often passing out anywhere they please. Their favorite antics include: shouting obscenities at young girls and older folks (who can't or won't defend themselves), throwing trash on the sidewalks and streets, drinking in public, public urination, rummaging through the trash containers in the city lot and along the streets and panhandling.

It is unfortunate that a nice town like Oakland has to suffer the presence of these individuals who never have and never will contribute anything whatsoever to the system from which they leech their benefits. They serve only to insult the residents and tourists who come into town to shop. Can you imagine what folks from out of town think when they park in the city lot and walk onto Second Street at the railroad crossing? Their first glimpse of Oakland is a tribe of bums passed out and sprawled out on the benches and sidewalk. Maybe it would be appropriate to buy them T-shirts which read "Welcome to Oakland—The Land of Pleasant Living."

Other cities have adopted and are enforcing No Loitering and Public Intoxication ordinances. Providence, Rhode Island, and Hagerstown are two recent examples. I hope the city of Oakland follows suit and takes action to rid the streets of these derelicts. One economical solution would be install soap dishes on the corner utility poles. This would "ward them off" in short order.

To the Editor:

I commend your "Time To Get Tough" editorial. It was overdue! It's long overdue for the Board of Education to act responsibly! Thanks, Jim Willis, for magnificient unicorn.

Your abundance of information on SHA, public meetings and Friendsville Day was excellent. Town and Country women do a magnificent job!

Dr. William Savage, a member of the Zoning Appeals Board at the Planning Commission Meeting as a public citizen, certainly was given latitude such as no public citizen I have ever seen or heard before. In a public meeting, is the agenda usually waived to allow a public citizen to have the floor rambling repeatedly and finally saying he'll entertain questions from the Board when two dozen plus citizens are there as well? Is to invite us to the next zoning meeting usual as a public citizen? When questioned to be suddenly too busy, too late, too much rhetoric and exiting hurriedly usual? Is that how a public citizen acts? Perhaps Dr. Savage should rethink his position and perhaps he's too busy to be on the Appeals Board?

We need to take a new look at these too—irreplacable position holders; some who seem to collect positions, like some kids used to collect sports heroes cards.

My "rhetoric" is not what most people find objectionable but information, facts, and questioning questionable acts.

If a person has 10½ acres three miles from the lake and can't have a mobile home, I still contend Lake Zoning and Planning is wrong and it should have been corrected long ago. If not then, then now!

It is unfair to ordinary people, to farmland, and to those unfamiliar with entrepreneurs! We need change here! Concerned taxpayers need to get their act together for change positively!

The "Sandpile" in Friendsville has disappeared!

This is my opinion.

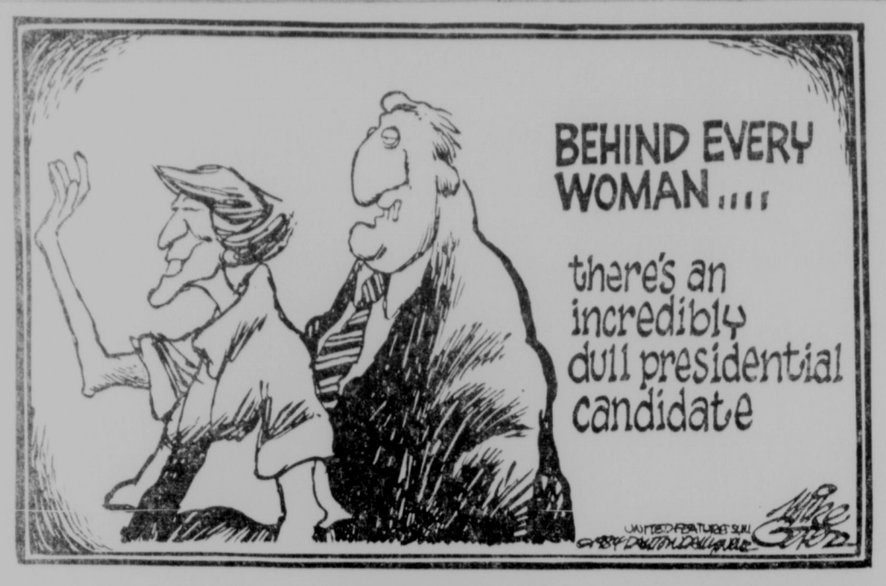
To the Editor:

I would like to respond to a news item on WMSG Radio on Wednesday, August 1.



Commissioner Gregg stated he wondered if the people of Mtn. Lake Park were aware of the recent ordinance that was passed by the town and was concerned of its impact on the town. Under a recent law passed by our legislature any town can exempt itself from any or all ordinances the county adopts. This is called the "Tillie Frank Law."

The town found that the county had only six ordinances recorded in the Clerk of Court office and the town chose to have five of these to apply to the town and be enforced by the county. The ordinances chosen were: 1. Sludge Ordinance, 2. Dog Ordinance, 3. Junkyard Ordinance, 4. Erosion and Sediment Control, 5. Storm Water Management Ordinance.

The town did not choose to have the County Planning Ordinance apply. Why? Some time ago the town wanted to have its Comprehensive and Development Plan updated and I asked the County Planning Office if they would do it and how much it would cost the town of Mtn. Lake Park. The cost was estimated to be $2,200. I then called Commissioner Groves to see if it could be done at a lower cost. His answer to me was "you will have to pay whatever they charge."

Later, to my amazement, I discovered that the county is going to do another town's Comprehensive and Development Plan for free and the county will pay all the cost. Now I ask you, is this fair? It would appear that politics is indeed a dirty business. If Commissioner Gregg is worried about these ordinances he should come to the town meetings. After all, I believe he does live in this town and is a citizen. I am sure the Town Council would listen with respect to any person who possesses the expertise and wisdom such as Commissioner Gregg.

Thank you,
Russell B. Alexander
Mayor

Tobacco Use

battery, arson, false fire alarms or bomb threats, and assault.

Category II offenses, also requiring out-of-school suspension include failure to abide by health regulations regarding immunizations and other health related policies, fighting, and use of tobacco products.

Two incidents of Category I offenses during a time-span of two calendar years of a student's school career will result in expulsion. Two Category II offenses in the same or consecutive semesters will be punished by expulsion.

A combination of a Category I and a Category II offense within two consecutive semesters will also be grounds for expulsion for the rest of the school year.

Discussion on the pros and cons of the rule focused on the enforceability of the rule, the appropriateness of suspension and expulsion as punishment, and whether adult staff and faculty were included in the ruling.

"This is a student document and the issue as it regards adults would have to be treated separately," said Al Coviello, who coordinated the development of the student handbook.

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Superintendent of Schools, said this week that the board will consider adult smoking policy as a separate issue. He said that he will be meeting with principals from the high schools and middle schools in the near future to develop further administrative procedures to work with students who encounter problems in complying with the rule, and to make the policy change positive in nature.

Luther Parrack, past principal at Southern High School and director of secondary education, spoke in favor of the document, saying, "We need to establish some standard of behavior for the students. They need guidance and direction on the minimum expected behavior in the schools."

Ryscavage pointed out that fighting has become a serious problem at Southern recently, with over 60 documented fights occurring last year. "If we want to deal with that we have to put our feet down," Ryscavage said.

Two incidents of fighting in the same or consecutive year are also punishable with expulsion for the remainder of the school year.

A draft of the handbook was distributed to about 300 persons this summer including parents, teachers aides, secretaries, and principals. Coviello said that the comments received were overwhelmingly positive in support of the document, with agreement from all groups in approving of the handbook.

The Handbook for Administrative and Supervisory Employees was also approved by the board. A statement presented by a representative of the Garrett County Administrators and Supervisors Association protested the deletion from the handbook of the establishment of "just cause" as a prerequisite for the dismissal of administrative employees, saying that the "just cause" right would "enable us to make decisions based on sound educational practices rather than to make decisions based upon possible political implications.

The administrators' and supervisors' statement also protested the 2½% pay raise granted to administrators and supervisors for the upcoming fiscal year. All other school board employees received a 6% pay increase.

"We feel that the approximately $12,000 saved by this action is not worth the morale loss which has occurred to our personnel. We feel that we are an integral part of the team that has been given credit for raising the standards of and the quality of education in Garrett County over the years. For us then to be singled out for unfair treatment when compensation is involved has certainly injured our pride as well as our collective morale," the statement said.

Lions Concession

Oakland-Mountain Lake Park Lions Club members Jerry Kramer and Smokey Stanton informed the board that their organization is willing to undertake the initiative for developing plans for, and construction of a new concession facility at the Southern High School athletic field. The proposed facility would include locker rooms and a press box in addition to the concessions area, according to the Lions spokesmen. They told the board that the trailer currently used by the club for concessions sales is in bad shape, and in need of replacement. They said that the Lions Club is willing to provide most of the necessary funds for the project.

The board authorized the Lions to work with school board staff to develop plans for the proposed facility, and commended the Lions for all they have done for the athletic program at Southern.

NHS Project

In other action, the board approved the hiring of a construction manager for the Northern High School renovation project for a cost not to exceed 11% of the guaranteed maximum price of the project. "I feel that the construction manager option is the way to go, as it will ensure meeting the budget for the project," Superintendent Ryscavage told the board.

Appointments

Appointments approved at the Tuesday board meeting included Marylee Crowe, to teach social studies at Southern Middle School; Lisa Baker, to instructional aide at Camp Hickory; Barbara Steinhilber, to language arts teacher at Southern Middle; Kathy Delaney Patterson, to special education teacher at Northern High School; Sherry Stafford, to teach mathematics at Southern High; Mary Ann Umbel, to EEEP aide at Friendsville Elementary School; and Doris Evans, to cafeteria worker at Bloomington Elementary School.

The board approved the resignations of Ardis Teets, EEEP aide at Red House Elementary School; Michele Smith, former special education aide at Accident Elementary, and currently on educational leave without pay; Walter Williamson, special education teacher at Southern, and Naomi Harvey, cafeteria worker at Kitzmiller.

Other Business

The board approved the addition of a second bus for the handicapped in the southern end of the county. Mike Sines, transportation director for the school board, recommended the addition, telling the board that the addition of the bus will decrease riding time for students with correspondingly increased instructional time. He said that the one bus currently in operation is not adequate to serve all the students that need the service. A second contract will be awarded to the contractor currently providing handicapped bus service to the southern end of the county.

Delays in awarding the contract for the installation of a hot water heating system in the Dennett Road School Annex to allow that space to be used as an instructional area for the Head Start Program was discussed. No bids were received on the project. Additional local contracting firms will be contacted to solicit bids.

The board took action to revise the board policy regarding released time from schools, deleting the word "financial" from the policy wording, so that other kinds of hardships in addition to financial ones would be included as justification for the granting of released time. Final approval for released time to attend college classes will not be granted until the principal receives documentation of the student's enrollment in the college course. The student will be required to establish that they are still enrolled in the course at the end of each high school grading period.

The board authorized Ryscavage to communicate with the Board of County Commissioners regarding the final categorical balancing of the FY 1983-84 budget through budget transfers from underspent lines to overspent ones. Ryscavage told the board that about $20,000 in non-categorical funds remained from the $12 million budget last year.

Paul Harr presented an update on the Gallup Poll on the public's attitude toward public schools in Maryland that is currently underway in the county. The poll is being conducted by parents association volunteers and some employees of the school board that have volunteered their time.

•Single family private landowners would be limited to one dock for each single family residence regardless of their amount of lake frontage.

•New applicants for use permits would be required to have at least 100 feet of frontage on the buffer strip to acquire a permit for a dock.

•No private landowner would be permitted more than 3 boats per use permit, and no more than 2 power boats.

•Camping, picnicking, beaching of boats, swimming and driving of vehicles on the buffer strip would be prohibited by the general public except in designated use areas.

•Common use areas would be limited to 2 boat slips for each 100 feet of frontage on the buffer strip.

•A Deep Creek Lake Hearing Board of Appeals would be created to review decisions of the Lake Management Office and make recommendations to the Secretary of the Department of Natural Resources regarding any appeals. The committee feels a local board is more responsive to local issues.

•Aircraft may not land on or take off from waters of the lake without written DNR permission.

A new classification system of permits would be created as follows:

•Buffer Strip Use Permits for placement of docks, which would replace dock permits; special Use Permits for any other use, alteration, modification, improvement, or other activity upon the buffer strip; Deeded Access Use Permits for land developers establishing "common use" or group facilities; Nonconforming Use Permits for use as a mechanism to grandfather in nonconforming uses for a specific time frame not to exceed five years. Nonconforming uses are pavilions, docks or boats larger than 25 feet, or boats with more more than one engine.

According to Robert Watson, chairman of the lake advisory and review committee, the group was seeking ecological balance as well as safety on the lake and continuance of the lake as a natural resource. The committee feels that the proposed regulations now strike the optimum balance between intensity of use and quality of use, where intensity will not begin to destroy the quality of the water or recreational experiences.

Watson pointed out that presently about one-third of lake shoreline, about 20 miles, is undeveloped and that the committee did not feel zoning regulations presently in effect solve problems or take into consideration the goals for the lake itself.

Watson continued by saying his committee is proud of the concepts of the proposed regulations. "I do feel strongly that we worked hard to design a process whereby problems such as back-lot development and years of vested interest by many property owners have been satisfactorily addressed."

As expressed in the proposal, "A primary purpose for the promulgation of regulations for Deep Creek Lake is the protection of the lake as a natural resource and the preservation of its ecological balance, recognizing that abuse of the lake by its overuse could jeopardize its wellbeing."

Watson is hopeful that the committee efforts to make the regulations address everyone's rights and problems will be effective so "no one is disenfranchised." Committee members are Del Carpenter, Helmuth Heise, Richard Barnes, Del. George Edwards, Commissioner Ernie Gregg and Bob Railey.

DNR invites the public to provide any comments they feel are pertinent, Gregory noted this week. Comments may be addressed to him at the lake management office, Route 2, Box 69C, Swanton, 21561.

Man Undergoing Rabies Shots After Dog Bite Friday

A Fairview Road man began the series of post-exposure rabies vaccine yesterday after being bitten by a dog along Fairview Road last Friday.

Mike Wilhelm and a companion first saw the small, terrier-type dog as they drove along Fairview Road. The companion attempted to pick up the dog but was unsuccessful. Wilhelm then tried but was bitten for his efforts, and released the dog. The black and brown dog was last seen heading down toward Poplar Lick.

After Wilhelm saw a physician he began searching for the animal to try to determine if the dog was protected against rabies. He found that a Gatin family along Savage River Road had missed their small dog last Thursday and had not seen the animal since that time. That dog had been vaccinated but there is no assurance that the dog is the same one which bit Wilhelm.

Anyone having seen the dog is asked to contact the health department at 334-8111 and ask for Rodney Glotfelty, rabies prevention coordinator. Callers may dial 895-5891 after regular working hours.

TCC Receives $49,500 Grant

The Tri-County Council for Western Maryland, Inc. has received a $49,500 grant from the Economic Development Administration, according to an announcement this week by U.S. Senator Charles McC. Mathias' office.

Ernest Gregg, chairman of the Tri-County council and Commissioner from Garrett County, indicated that the federal grant provides financial support to coordinate economic development strategies for Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties.

The $49,500 will be used administratively to help the organization in seeking several million dollars of Title IX monies for economic rehabilitation, Gregg noted.

In order to be eligible for the federal monies, the organization must hire a consultant to delineate the necessity for federal involvement to stimulate economic growth and recovery.

The consultant will also document other facets of the economy, including the enterprise zone areas, participation in the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) and Cumberland, Frostburg, and Hagerstown participation in the Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) program.

Gregg is hopeful the TCC will be awarded a substantial amount of the Title IX funds because of the "sudden and severe" economic hardship in western Maryland when Kelly-Springfield, Mettiki Coal, Sterling Processing, the Celanese, Fairchild and other firms laid off substantial numbers or all of their personnel. He also feels it to be a positive sign that the TCC has received the initial money.

The state verbally committed $75,000 to the TCC project and each county may be asked to contribute about $5,000 to complete the combination of local, state and federal funding needed to obtain the federal multi-million dollar funding.

Our Turn

This column, collaborated by two mothers (closet writers), is dedicated to anyone who is a mother, has a mother, or ever plans to be a mother.

Susan Alvarez and Pam Ashby, both mothers of three children, will be alternating authors of this column for a few weeks, in lieu of spending time at the "home" recuperating from perpetual motherhood.

The "With-it" Quiz
by Susan Alvarez

Being "with-it" is being aware of all the current trends and fads. There are several unmistakeable signs to being "not-with-it," so I have designed the first "with-it" quiz (quizzes, by the way, are very "with-it") to give you an idea of your current status.

What do you do?

1. When your daughter comes home from school and asks, "Have you heard of the 'moon walk'?"
   (a) Say, "Yes, Neil Armstrong, July 1969."
   (b) Show her the rug burns on your feet.
2. When your mother-in-law shows up at your front door with a single white glove in her hand?
   (a) Panic and say, "I confess! I haven't dusted in three weeks!"
   (b) Put the glove on your right hand, snap your fingers and sing "Beat It."
3. When you overhear some teens talking about how frightening "Gremlins" is?
   (a) Commend them for thinking about compact car safety.
   (b) Ask them about midnight snacks.
4. When a group of friends is discussing the Nautilus?
   (a) Butt in and proclaim "Wasn't that Captain Nemo's vessel?"
   (b) Say, "Yes, and I'm up to 30 reps on my leg extensions."
5. When your son comes home and asks if you know Boy George?
   (a) Say, "No, but I know A Boy Named Sue."
   (b) Run immediately to see if there are any dresses hanging in his closet.
6. When you are invited over to a friend's house for Trivial Pursuit?
   (a) Go, expecting to see the latest new TV soap.
   (b) Run out to buy one of those new cheater's books.
7. When your daughter bags you for Candies and Jellies?
   (a) Enroll her in the latest quick weight loss plan.
   (b) Invest in plastics.
8. When your neighbor asks if you have any pedal-pushers?
   (a) Go out and inspect your flowers for aggressive bees.
   (b) Hunt up your old clam-diggers.

Now, if you are unfortunate enough to have answered "A" to all of the above questions, I suggest that you get out your Lawrence Welk video, curl up with a nice, warm, non-herbal cup of tea and polka, oops! I mean, boogie the night away.

Volunteer Boat Inspection Attracts 30 August 11, 12

Approximately 30 boat owners defied the rainy weather to attend the first volunteer boat inspection held at Deep Creek Lake State Park August 11 and 12. The inspections were cosponsored by the Department of Natural Resources, Coast Guard auxiliary and the Property Owners Association of Deep Creek Lake.

As a spokesman for the Property Owners Association pointed out in a letter August 13 to Dr. Torrey Brown, DNR Secretary, one of the older police patrol boats caught fire early Saturday morning.

The letter, written by W.B. Burke for president Richard L. Barnes, went on to say that the association would appreciate it if Dr. Brown would see to it that another boat, new if possible, be dispatched as soon as possible.

The letter also reminded Dr. Brown that at the last meeting with the POA, he promised immediate help if one of the Deep Creek boats should become disabled or unsafe. Burke also informed Dr. Brown that the fire was due to old and brittle wiring, and has a "dangerous list due to, no doubt, a worn fiberglass bottom."

ANOTHER HONOR was bestowed upon a Garrett County resident this week for the major role he played in saving the life of a driver involved in an accident last June along U. S. Route 40, east of Cumberland. Daniel W. Klotz, left, was awarded a Maryland House Resolution by Delegate George Edwards. Klotz came upon the accident which involved a tractor trailer that went out of control on wet pavement, traveled up an embankment and flipped over, pinning the unconscious driver, Travis D. Alvarez, 42, Houston, Tex., inside the wreckage. A fire broke out and Klotz remained with the victim until he and two other passers-by were able to pull Alvarez from the cab of the truck.

Commission Gets Update On Sewer, Water Projects

The Garrett County Sanitary Commission members were brought up to date on county projects August 7 including Kitzmiller, Bloomington, and Gorman.

Documents have been submitted to the Farmers Home Administration following last week's preconstruction conference with contractors for the Kitzmiller water system. Once the documents have been approved, notices to proceed can be given to H. J. Schneider for the treatment plant and storage tank; and Frank Arnold for the distribution system.

The notice to proceed is expected to be granted this week, according to Wendell Beitzel, sanitary district administrator.

Recent state laws prohibiting discharge of chlorine into state waters affect three sewer projects. Bloomington, Kitzmiller and Gorman plans all call for the chlorine disinfection process, but the state edict now means the plant designs must incorporate de-chlorination processes or make use of another means of disinfection.

Greenhorne & O'Hara, engineers for the Bloomington system, have already indicated this edict will lead to additional design work and necessitate an increase in fees for the project.

The same indication was given by Thomas Bourne, engineer for the Kitzmiller sewer project, and Franklin and Associates for Gorman.

Bloomington Water

The commission was apprised of a letter of commitment from the Farmers Home Administration granting approval to award a contract for completion of the Bloomington water system. Work will be done to construct a water intake structure on the Savage River.

Gorman Water Lines Uncovered

Because of freezing problems last winter, the sanitary commission ordered that some water lines in the Gorman system be dug up and repaired this summer. When lines were uncovered, it was discovered that instead of the minimum 40-inch depth, some lines were laid at depths of less than two feet.

The sanitary commission will be discussing with its attorney, Gorman Getty, III, whether action may be taken against the firm of Thomas Bourne which provided inspection services during construction. The contractor, Uwchland Construction, is possibly no longer liable for the work since more than a year has passed since completion.

Computer System

For the past seveal months, the commission has been exploring various computer systems to streamline billing and other work in the office. It now appears the commission has settled on an in-house Zenith system to be obtained from Buzz Updyke. The various alternatives have not been finalized as yet, Beitzel stated.

July 24 Meeting

A sewerage agreement with Mt. Lake Park, the upcoming public hearing on the Upper Yough facility plan, the Bausch and Lomb interceptor line and computers were among the topics taken up by the Garrett County Sanitary Commission July 24.

The town of Mt. Lake Park has executed an agreement with the Garrett County Sanitary District to provide sewerage treatment to the town for the coming fiscal year, 1984-85.

Last year the town had hesitated before signing the annual agreement due to a dispute over sewerage payment rates.

So far this year, the town of Loch Lynn has not signed the agreement with the sanitary district to provide similar service to that town from the Trout Run treatment plant.

The members of the sanitary commission signed the agreement Tuesday night during the regular session.

ARC Grant Expected

The commission is hopeful that notice will be received very soon on award of an Appalachian Regional Commission grant award for construction of an interceptor line for the Bausch and Lomb treatment plant and for aeration of the lagoons at Trout Run to increase treatment capacity.

The sanitary commission had requested $250,000 in grants for the construction and in anticipation of the funding, had requsted engineering proposals for the project. The commission took no action on the five proposals received pending official ARC grant award.

Zoning Board Decides Seven Of Eight Cases

One hearing was continued, four requests were granted and three others denied by action of the Deep Creek Watershed Board of Zoning Appeals August 7.

The public hearing had been scheduled August 2 on eight requests but decisions were not announced until after an executive session the following Thursday, according to John Nelson, county zoning administrator.

An application by Wanda Maphis for a special exception to place a mobile home on her property in Green Glade was denied. The board reasoned that the trailer would not be in keeping with the character of the present neighborhood and the trend toward more permanent types of homes.

A request for a special exception made by Henry Greig to replace a mobile home on Harvey's Peninsula with a larger mobile home was approved. The board felt that the proposed home is an improvement over the present structure, and several persons also testified in favor of the replacement.

Charles R. Eppley, of the Mayberry-Poland Subdivision, was granted a special exception to permit installation of a mobile home on his property. The home will be placed in a heavily wooded area and will not be visible from the lake or public highways.

A request by Walter Ramsey, State Park Road, for a variance to expand the floor area of a guest cottage was denied as the board felt no proof of hardship was shown.

A variance for Larry Lewis to construct a residence within 25 feet of the Penelec line along Lake Shore Drive was approved. The board noted the location would bring the dwelling more in line with property on either side, and that the buffer strip in front was relatively wide.

An application by Frederick Warther for a variance to permit him to construct a gazebo in Hickory Ridge subdivision was denied after the board found that no proof of hardship had been demonstrated.

Charles G. Railey was granted variances for five lots from side yard and front yard setback requirements. Railey wishes to construct homes on the lots to replace trailers. The lots are "grandfathered" in size since they existed near Deep Creek bridge before the one-acre lot size regulation took effect.

The hearing on an application by Jonathon Kessler for a variance from the minimum number of back lots which can use a common area has been continued to the September 6 meeting. Kessler wishes to establish a subdivision containing a total of ten lots, each having access to a 200-foot common use area. Two of the lots are divided by a right of way. The property is along Paradise Gardens Subdivision Road.

Japanese Teenagers Visit County; Experience Life, Culture In America

by Joan Sussman

Two teenagers from Japan are getting a glimpse of life in America as they spend a month with the Allen Brenneman and Harley Brenneman families in the Bittinger area.

The two teenagers are participants in the LABO Program, the name of which is derived from the Japanese abbreviation for Language Laboratory. The program is almost 50 years old, and its stated objective is to foster international friendship through a home stay program. Its goals include the establishment of close relationships with people of other cultures, along with a better understanding of their own culture. Many participants in the program save money from an early age to pay their way. American youth are eligible to travel to Japan as part of the program.

Thirteen-year-old Kaori Asana, of Fukuhica, Japan, is a guest of Allen and Virginia Brenneman and their two children still at home, Faith and Angie. Kaori speaks a little bit of English, but Brenneman family members said that they have been doing most of their communication through sign language and use of the dictionary. "We've been doing pretty well. It's hard at times but we usually get through to each other."

Since arriving in the county July 25, Kaori and her host family have visited the Wild Kingdom near Oakland, taken a trip to Washington, D.C. with other members of the exchange program from Maryland and Pennsylvania, taken in the sights at the Garrett County Fair, and enjoyed rural pursuits such as taking long walks and canning applesauce. The Brennemans and Kaori watched Japan win the individual gold medal in men's gymnastics during the Olympics, with Kaori's reaction described as "very happy."

Chie Ito, a 14-year-old from Wakayama, Japan, is visiting with the family of Harley and Joyce Brenneman, which includes twelve-year-old twins, Pam and Tammy, and seven-year-old Todd, plus a crowd of brothers already on their own.

Mrs. Brenneman said that Chie arrived with more gifts for her host family than clothes for herself, including a watch that has a snap-off face that turns into a robot when removed from the band. Other gifts included handmade jewelry, calculators, and games and toys.

Chie has been instructing the Brenneman family in the Japanese art of paper folding, teaching them to fold rice paper to create objects such as birds, hats, and human figures.

She is also an accomplished calligraphist.

The Brennemans visited a McDonald's restaurant with Chie, who told them that the restaurants are very popular in Japan, where the hamburgers and cokes are much smaller than in America.

Chie's older sister participated in the exchange program three years ago, staying with a family in Louisiana. She said that she has studied English "a little bit" since she was eight years old. She enjoys ice skating and baton twirling with a group from her school.

She said that Japanese teenagers love many of the same things enjoyed by their American counterparts, including Coca-Cola, Michael Jackson, and Boy George. She will return to Japan with T-shirts with typical American logos, Michael Jackson tapes, and other souvenirs.

Joyce Brenneman said that she was impressed with the foreign students' knowledge of American history and Washington, D.C., when the group toured the capital in July. "They seemed to know more about it than my own kids," Mrs. Brenneman said.

Other activities enjoyed by the Brennemans and Chie included a trip to Swallow Falls, the film, "The Neverending Story", the county fair, and a shopping trip.

The two teenagers will return to Japan on August 20.

Both Brenneman families said that the experience has been very rewarding both for them and for their guests. "I think everyone is learning something about life in other cultures. It creates a bond of understanding between people of different nations," Joyce Brenneman commented.

Virginia Brenneman, whose family has hosted three other Japanese visitors in past years, said, "We miss them very much when they go. Four weeks can really go by in a hurry."

ON THE MERRY-GO-ROUND at the Garrett County Fair Tuesday were Japanese exchange student Chie Ito, and hosts Pam and Tammy and Todd Brenneman. The Brennemans showed Chie the sights at the Fair, including the carnival, exhibits, livestock, and other attractions. Parents of the Brenneman children are Harley and Joyce Brenneman, Bittinger. Pictured below is Kaori Asana, who is visiting the Allen Brenneman family, also of Bittinger, including Virginia Brenneman, partially concealed, and her daughters, Faith and Angie. Kaori examined T-shirts with a variety of logos as possible souvenirs to take back to Japan. Salesman Lynn Brenneman is the son of Harley and Joyce Brenneman, who hosted the other Japanese student visiting the county as part of the LABO program.

State Police Notes Creation Of "TIPS" Line

Have you seen a boat at night without its running lights on, or a boat in need of help but those on board refusing help? Maybe you have heard an airplane flying at night, but could not see the navigational lights. If so, you may have seen people trying to smuggle illegal drugs into Maryland.

These are just a few of the indicators that State Police are looking for to combat drug smuggling that has worked its way up the Atlantic Coast from Florida.

To gather information about suspected smuggling operations, the Maryland State Police has instituted a toll free "TIPS" hotline. The number 1-800-492-TIPS will be manned 24 hours per day, every day, by investigators trained to receive and record information reporting suspected drug related criminal activity. In addition to suspected drug smuggling operations, State Police are seeking information on illegal drug sales as well.

According to Colonel W.T. Travers, Jr., Superintendent of the State Police, "We know the citizens of Maryland want to do whatever they can to help eliminate the trafficking of illegal drugs. With this new toll free number, we are making it easy for those who see something suspicious to contact specially trained investigators."

To publicize the TIPS number, posters are being displayed in marinas, airports, and other places that might be used for illegal drug deals.

The TIPS program is not intended to replace calls to local or State Police installations for service or investigation of crimes. The program is designed to target drug related crimes and make it easy for persons to report suspected criminal activity. Any person calling the new TIPS line will not be required to furnish his name or any information that would jeopardize his anonymity.

To Celebrate 50th

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Meyers will hold a dinner in honor of their parents who will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, September 2. The event will be held at 2 p.m. at the Meyers residence along Teets Road near Friendsville.

The family invites all friends and relatives to attend.

Library Corner

by Pam Hardesty

The Ruth Enlow Library of Oakland's Reading Club children have been learning a variety of performing skills this summer through weekly workshops led by such area experts as Lisa Savage in dance, Ben Sincell in magic, Greg Carrico in juggling, David Zimmerman in music, and Frances Acton in acting.

On Tuesday, August 21 at 2 o'clock, 18 of these children, ages 6-13, will have a chance to show the public their new talents in a library Talent Show. These children have signed up to perform such varied acts as singing, dancing, telling jokes, acting, playing the kazoo, twirling the baton, and performing a puppet show.

This Talent Show has been planned as an opportunity for children to have the experience of performing in front of an audience in a spirit of fun, not competition. All performers will win a prize. Librarians have asked that all performers be at the library at 1:30 to get ready for the show. All children who have signed up to perform and have decided not to participate should contact the library as soon as possible.

After the show, all children who have completed the Reading Club program for the summer will receive certificates and other prizes. Preschool children should bring their completed lists to the library for the awarding of their prizes. After all awards have been distributed, a party with refreshments will be given for Reading Club children and their families. The library would like to thank all workshop leaders, parents and media personnel for making this summer's program such a big success.

The Garrett County libraries have been popular places during recent wet weather, and for good reason. Besides their wide collection of cozy reading material, they offer a great variety of indoor entertainment, including video cassettes, 16mm and 8mm films and projectors, slides and filmstrips, records, 8-track tapes and cassettes, and jigsaw puzzles. The Oakland library hosts several weekly programs for children, including free films every Saturday at 1:30. This program, which lasts about an hour, is led by Mrs. Helen Friend of Mt. Lake Park, a former teacher and an enthusiastic library volunteer.

Or, you can get Personal Comprehensive Protection—PCP. PCP, from Continental Insurance, is the insurance package that protects your home, car, liability and more in a single policy. With PCP, you automatically get many coverages that are optional on standard policies. Such as automatic replacement cost protection for your home and most personal belongings. State Issues Warning Against Handling Animals

Joseph T. Horman, DVM, MPH, Public Health Veterinarian for the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, this week issued the "strongest possible warning" to Maryland residents against the capturing and keeping of wild animals.

Dr. Horman said that the warning applies most directly to raccoons, currently the principal carriers of a rabies outbreak that has reached an epidemic stage in this state.

"There have been reported incidents recently," Dr. Horman said, "where raccoons have been taken into households with children present and where the raccoons have since been destroyed and tested as positive for rabies.

"In an incident in Howard County," Dr. Horman said, "where a young raccoon was held in captivity, and which was subsequently found to be rabid, more than thirty people, including children, were exposed and put under treatment.

"The over ten thousand dollars cost for treatment aside," Dr. Horman said, "this incident points out the extreme danger from exposure to rabid wild animals and I must advise in the strongest possible terms that they be avoided entirely."

Dr. Horman said he is particularly dismayed that since the rabies outbreak began in 1981, there have been six known captive raccoons that were found to be rabid.

"Five of these," he said, "occurred in 1984, even after there has been an enormous amount of publicity about rabies."

Because of these six captive raccoon incidents alone, almost fifty persons have been exposed to rabies and put under treatment.

Dr. Horman said that since the outbreak began there have been, to date, 1,445 laboratory confirmed cases of rabies in raccoons.

"It should be noted also," he said, "that in Maryland it is illegal to keep wild game animals without a permit from the Department of Natural Resources."

That department, he said, is no longer issuing such permits for raccoons. Furthermore, there is no approved anti-rabies vaccine available for wild animals.

"No doubt baby raccoons are cute and attractive," Dr. Horman said, "but if you see one, leave it alone, because most likely the mother is nearby anyway. If the animal appears injured or sick do not under any circumstances handle it or take it into your home. Call an animal humane society or the local animal control office."

"...AND REMEMBER TO SHOW EACH FATHER THE CUTEST ONE."

Thefts From Boats Continue At Deep Creek

Thefts from boats docked at Deep Creek Lake top the list of reports from the Maryland State Police again this week.

Edward John Gray, Jr., Gaithersburg, reported that someone had removed an AM/Fm stereo cassette player and four waterproof speakers from his boat that had been docked at Harvey's Peninsula. Loss is set at $600.

An AM/FM eight-track stereo with four speakers valued at $300 was removed from a boat belonging to Ralph Waldo Schmidt, Towson. His boat was also docked at Harvey's Peninsula.

Harvey's Peninsula was also the scene of yet another theft on August 6. Robert James Jones, Apollo, Pa., reported that someone removed an eight-track stereo with four speakers and that they had also damaged his glove box. Loss is set at $275.

Sgt. C.H. Hinnant investigated all the incidents that occurred at Harvey's Peninsula.

Mirdza Odins, Silver Spring, reported Sunday that a man with a rifle approached her on July 21 while walking in a field near her summer home at Paradise Point. The man, a white male, 17-19 years old, approximately 5' 9" tall and weighing about 130 pounds, reportedly accosted Ms. Odins from behind and asked, "Do you live here?" The victim gave a negative reply and the man grabbed her arm and tried to force her into the woods. Odins asked, "Do you want to kill me with that gun?" The man replied, "Maybe." Odins screamed causing the man to flee on foot. Odins then reported the incident to a friend and they both returned to the scene but were unable to locate the man.

An investigation by the Maryland State Police is continuing.

Assessment Answers & Tax Talk

ON THE FILING DEADLINE FOR HOMEOWNERS TAX CREDITS

by James Burley

How would you like to save $402 on your property taxes? How would you like to save as much as $1,200 on your property taxes? Those two questions might sound like a good introduction for a commercial. Actually, they are not a come-on but very valid questions and property owners do save these sums on their property taxes. Unfortunately, some people who could, do not save these amounts for no more reason than they fail to file a timely application. Frequently, they are the ones who need the help the most.

The $402 figure is the average credit paid out last year under Maryland's Homeowners Property Tax Credit Program. The $1,200 figure is the maximum payable under the program. Statewide, nearly 100,000 homeowners, or about one out of ten property owners received a tax credit of some size last year. There is no accurate way to count those who miss out through failing to file on time - or even to file at all - but judging by those who make the attempt after the filing deadline which is September 1, the number is, sad to say, significant.

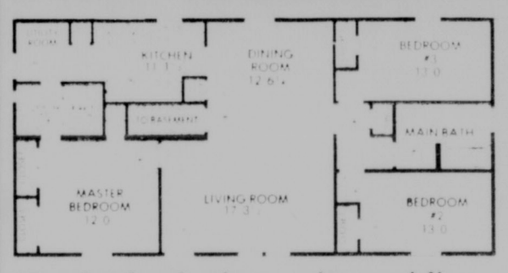
The Homeowners Tax Credit Program, which many call the "Circuit Breaker," has been a state program since 1975. It provides tax credits to homeowners who meet certain income requirements. The plan is now based strictly on the relationship between the owner's income and size of the property tax bill. The age and disability limitations were eliminated several years ago.

As an illustration of how it works, a qualifying homeowner with an annual gross income of $5,000 would be entitled to a credit against the amount of the property tax that exceeded $65. If the tax were $865, the credit would be in the amount of $800, and the owner would pay only $65.

The scale is graduated according to the owner's income. Thus, for a homeowner with an income of $10,000, the credit would be applied against the amount that was greater than $280. If the tax were $865, the credit would be $585, and the owner in this example would pay the $280. Based on the same income, if the tax were $1,480, the credit would be $1,200, or the maximum credit allowance.

Those homeowners who received a credit the preceding year, automatically receive an application the next year. But whether you have been in the program before or not, you must apply by September 1, every year.

In applying, you must meet these basic requirements: You must be the owner and the dwelling must be your principal residence where you live at least half of the year, including July 1, unless your health prevents this. And your net worth, not including your home, must be less than $200,000.



Anyone can pick up an application at the local Assessments Office, or one can be obtained by calling the State Tax Credits Telephone Service. The number in the Baltimore Metropolitan area is 321-3750. Owners living in other areas of the state can dial a toll free number. That number is 1-800-492-3790. The people at the Telephone Service will also answer any pertinent questions concerning the program.

September 1 is fast approaching. If you have not filed your application, do yourself a favor and do so immediately. And, if you know someone who would be helped by the program, do them a favor and remind them too.

GOLF TOURNEY RAISES $1,500 — The first Coors Invitation Golf Tournament, sponsored by Lohr Distributing Company, Oakland, and the Coors Company, was held at the Oakland golf course on Friday. All of the profits from the event, which amounted to approximately $1,500, will be divided and donated to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad and the Heart Fund, according to Bob Lohr, president of Lohr Distributors. The tournament was won by the team of Pearl Daniels, Ken Maloney, Henry Trickett and Don Stemple, Sr., after seven holes of sudden death playoff against the second place team of Larry Layman, Dale Sweitzer, Jeff and June Gangler, and the third place team of Jim Simms, Kitty King, Roger Glotfelty, and Dan Daniels. There were 64 entrants in the event. Pictured above, left to right, are Lohr, Dan Daniels, who won a golf bag for hitting the longest drive of the tournament, and Scott Finch, winner of the sailboat which was raffled. Unique Fishing Map Of Lake Now Available

Appalachian Background, Inc., of Oakland, has recently published a pictorial fishing map of Deep Creek Lake. The need for such a guide to the best fishing spots on the Lake, according to ABI president Ivan Rowe, was recognized several years ago.

The research to verify fish nesting and gathering spots of each type of game fish as represented on the Fishing Map was begun by Rowe early this year. Data was compiled on the daily and monthly fishing calendars and underwater environmental factors, with special concern given to the various depths at which certain fish are usually caught in Deep Creek Lake. The fishing information was garnered from many sources including: government agencies, wildlife technicians, fish biologists, secretive anglers and local antiquarians.

The Fishing Map of Deep Creek Lake is now on sale at bait shops and marinas around the lake, and at the Appalachian Book Shop in Oakland.

Other sports-minded businesses throughout Garrett County will soon have the map for sale.

Rowe says he believes that this map will be recognized as the "most complete, useful and least expensive guide" to the successful catching of game fish in Maryland's largest lake.

Appalachian Background, Inc. is a local corporation, established by Ivan and Virginia Rowe in 1982, to research and publish historical and recreational material relating to Garrett County ABI's first venture was the reprinting in 1982 of Forty-Four Years of the Life of a Hunter, by Meshach Browning.

Rowe directed his own documentary research firm in New York City in the 1950s, worked as a script writer in Paris, and was later involved in motion picture production in the states during the 60s. He moved to Garrett County in 1970, where he and his wife began the Arts 'n Crafts Centre and the Appalachian Book Shop.

Exercise Book Now Available

"Even moderate exercise helps people live longer" is the conclusion of a long-term study recently reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The 24-year study demonstrates a direct relationship between the amount of exercise a person does, and how long he or she lives.

The Healthy People Project, of the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, strongly urges Marylanders to feel trimmer, more energetic, and more alert by trying some form of regular exercise.

The Healthy People Project recently produced Getting Fit Your Way, a 53-page book to help persons ease exercise into their lives.

Getting Fit Your Way will show how to choose exercises that will be enjoyable; how to tailor an exercise routine to fit into a personal schedule; and how to stick with the exercise program.

Snowy Meadow Park Ballfield Ready To Grade

Volunteer workers have readied the Snowy Meadows Park project near Crellin to the point where earthworming equipment can grade the ballfield.

The National Guard Company C unit has agreed to provide the grading and ditching necessary to prepare the field for seeding at no expense to the project committee. Guardsmen are expected to begin work next month.

After the grading, the volunteers will begin the grass seeding and place sand on the infield. The sand has been donated by Silver Knob Sand Co., according to Barney Bolyard, chairman of the park project committee.

Bolyard expects also to install the chain link fence around the ballfield this fall, but was unsure whether the dugouts would be completed.

Next year the committee will begin work on picnic areas and a pavilion.

Active volunteers for the project in addition to Bolyard are Rev. Ray Beahm, Fred Fulk, Clifford DeWitt, Mrs. George Zimmerman and Jim Zimmerman.

Total cost of the project, which will eventually include a softball field, dugouts, backstop, fencing, restrooms, concession stand, well, septic system, parking area and drainage, is $37,306. The state Program Open Space provided some $27,979.95, and the project committee has been sponsoring numerous fundraisers to obtain the rest of the money.

Anyone interested in helping with funding or with the labor may contact Barney Bolyard at 334-4955 or Rev. Ray Beahm at 334-3867.

Honoring Maryland's Olympians

by Charles McC. Mathias, Jr.

Those of us who are engaged in political life, often think that the Capitol is the center of the universe and the object of all attention. But we have learned differently during the past several weeks by the great attention that has been given to the Olympic Games.

I personally take great pride in the fact that our capital city of Annapolis is one of only three sites outside of Los Angeles to host an Olympic event. Six first-round soccer matches were played in Annapolis. For many who visited the soccer games and who watched the outstanding sportsmanship; this was a once in a lifetime chance to see Olympic competition in person. Thousands came to Annapolis from all over the East. And after watching seven of the finest soccer teams in the world, these visitors left with an appreciation of why soccer is the most popular international spectator sport.

Meanwhile, those of us who have been watching the Games in Los Angeles, have had the pleasure of rooting for our fellow Marylanders who are members of the Olympic Team. They are outstanding representatives of the State and the nation and we are all extremely proud of them. These Marylanders have provided some of the most memorable moments in the Olympic spectacle. They have been thrilling, poignant and moving.

I particularly note the achievements of Theresa Andrews, a swimmer from Annapolis. She is one of those remarkable young people who dedicated this past year of training to her brother, who himself is unable to participate in athletics because he was paralyzed in an accident last summer. I think very few will soon forget the sight of Ms. Andrews, fresh from victory in the meter backstroke, going to her brother in a wheelchair at the side of the pool and presenting him with the gold medal that she had just won. This action tells us something about her spirit and the spirit of the family from which she comes. Ms. Andrews also went on to win another gold medal by swimming the opening leg in the women's 400 meter medley relay. It is a confirmation of the ancient wisdom that we only keep that which we give away.

There were other Maryland women who distinguished themselves in the Olympics. Betsy Beard of Chestertown and Kathy Keeler of Chevy Chase were key figures in the dramatic, one second victory of the United States in the eight-oars rowing competition. This was the first time that the United States had ever won a gold medal in women's rowing.

Maryland men were also well represented at the Olympics. Bob Stull of Damascus served as the non-competing captain of the modern pentathlon team, winner of a silver medal. Scott Steele of Annapolis competing in the yachting windglider class, also earned a silver medal, and Bruce Merritt of Ridge made an excellent showing in canoeing. Many of the Maryland Olympians, in fact, seem to reflect the close relationship of Marylanders with the water.

Other sportsmen included Norman Bellingham of Rockville and Schnurrenberger of Mt. Airy in the men's kayak, Patrick Kennedy of Cockeysville in the men's 200-meter butterfly and Carl Schueler of Silver Spring in the 50-kilometer walk in the men's track.

Schueler of Silver Spring in the 50-kilometer walk in men's track.

Maryland is proud of its olympians and takes pleasure in sharing the exhilaration of their accomplishments.

grader in the Grantsville area that was 19 years old.

Three boom choppers for cutting brush were purchased, replacing three 13-year-old choppers which cost over $19,000 to maintain in FY '82-83.

A vibratory roller for service to the county's central area was also purchased. Previously the central area had no roller for the compaction of fill material, dirt roads, shoulders, etc. The roller includes a watering system that make it adaptable for use in the application of bituminous concrete.

Three four-wheel-drive pickups were purchased for the use of the three area supervisors. A roads department spokesman said that the four-wheel drive option was necessary for winter service supervision.

A grader for the Grantsville area was lease-purchased to replace a 14-year-old grader.

Three fuel dispensing and inventory control systems for all garages were purchased. The systems were justified by the large budget expenditures for fuel that make such inventory control imperative.

Sixteen abrasive spreaders were built with county roads department labor, realizing a savings of $700 per spreader, costing $11,000 less than if the units had been purchased instead of built.

Fifteen dump trucks were completely painted, also with county labor.

Improvements to county roads property included the construction of a new, modern body shop at the Oakland garage, installation of equipment in the washing and maintenance area, the repainting of the interior of the Granstville garage, the installation of three phase power supply at Grantsville, and improvements to the communications system of the department.

The top floor of the Grantsville garage was rehabilitated in response to an OSHA citation regarding unsafe working conditions in that area in the spring of 1983, although county roads administrators said they were well aware of the deficiencies before the OSHA citation was issued.

A specially designed excavator to facilitate bridge replacement and other projects was purchased last year. According to a roads department spokesman, replacement of bridges by county personnel rather than outside contractors would not be possible without the machine, which previously had to be rented. Bridge replacement by the county can result in substantial cost reductions in bridge projects, according to the spokesman.

Two bridges were replaced last year, including the Mill Run Bridge and the Silver Knob Bridge. The replacement of the Meadow Mountain Run Bridge near the Deep Creek State Park was virtually completed last year, and was opened to traffic several weeks ago.

Three small bridges were converted to culverts last year.

Replacement of the Limestone Bridge near Friendsville is slated for completion in the next few weeks, with the Maple Grove Bridge also currently in the process of renovation.

Construction of the replacement for the Glendale Bridge is expected to begin in the summer of 1984.

The county's solid waste disposal program was the subject of efforts to streamline and increase efficiency last year. Collection sites were substantially reduced, and the responsibility for collection from the sites was placed in the hands of a local contractor.

The roads department and the county commissioners began efforts last year to expand the capacity of the Round Glade Landfill, and pursued an investigation of alternatives in the establishment of another landfill site in the county. Those efforts are currently in the hands of an engineering consulting firm, which officials called a "positive step."

Bituminous concrete overlay was applied to 16.30 miles of county roads, with about five miles of roads receiving major construction and relocation.

Bank easement to enhance drainage and winter service was performed on almost 20 miles of road.

Routine roads maintenance for the year included the grading and stabilization of 240 miles of county dirt roads a minimum of two times during the year.

Shoulder and ditch line maintenance was performed on about 200 miles of county roads.

Winter service, including plowing, abrasive application, and other winter tasks accounted for a large portion of the roads budget for the year, with most expenses incurred in labor and equipment operation.

Efforts to pave unsurfaced county roads received increased priority last year, resuling in the surfacing of more than 17 miles of road.

The roads department will continue to implement the Board of County Commissioners strategy to convert and upgrade as many roads as possible during the upcoming year, according to sources at the Commissioners office and the county roads department. Efforts to pave unsurfaced county roads have been stepped up this year, as surfaced roads are less expensive to maintain in the long run.

About 35 miles of road are scheduled for conversion from dirt to hardtop this year, with nearly 24 miles already completed, according to the latest report from the roads department. Seventeen miles of road are to receive asphalt overlay.

Among the roads currently being converted from dirt to hardtop are Graham Road, Dilly Road, Fosters Inn Road, Pocahontas Road, Lowry Road, Blocher Road, Landons Dam Road, Fricks Crossing, Garrett Road, Frank Brenneman Road, Potomac Camp Road, Reeses Lane, Nazelrod Road, Harry Deal Road, Bear Hill Road, Stockslager Road, Virts Road, Bayard Corraunna Road, Holly Lane and Brenneman Road.

"While paving and surfacing projects are in progress, the department's response to specific concerns of citizens is necessarily less rapid than usual, although those concerns are dealt with as soon as possible," a roads department spokesman said, asking for the cooperation of the public by being patient in those matters.

RECEIVES STATE BEAUTIFICATION AWARD — Hartman and Sons Auto Wrecking, between Deer Park and Swanton along Route 495, was presented the Maryland Auto and Truck Recycling Association (MATRA) award for 1984 for beautification efforts. The award was presented to owners Mr. and Mrs. Junior Hartman during ceremonies at the annual convention in Ocean City July 20. The company, the first to receive the award in this county, had recently planted approximately 1,000 six-foot pine trees and had constructed a new 100 by 200 storage building and 40 by 60 office, and has attempted to comply with all state and county regulations regarding junkyard management, according to Mrs. Hartman. There are four full-time employees at the Hartman yard.

Commissioners

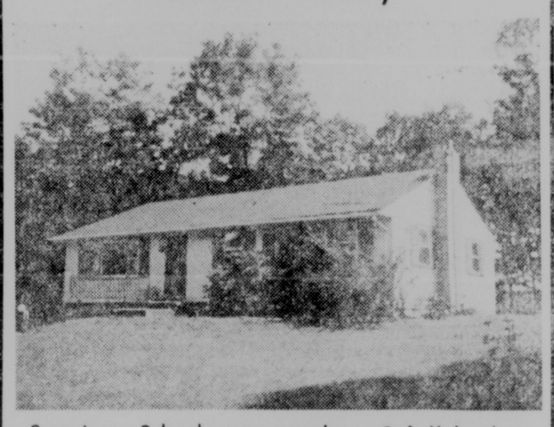
serve on the board." He also recommended Anna Mary Fratz, Accident, to provide representation from the central area of the county. Mrs. Fratz and Fridinger were among the three county residents that submitted resumes and letters of interest to the agency in response to its request for applicants.

The third area of appointments which resulted in a split vote Tuesday was the appointment of Paul Sanders to the county's Civil Service Commission, which is the advisory board for policy, procedure, and hiring practices for the county. Commissioner Braskey had moved that Robert Stemple be re-appointed to the board. "I felt he was an asset to the board with his previous experience and continued willingness to serve," Braskey commented.

In other business Tuesday, the commissioners met with state Department of Natural Resources representative Frank Oslislo regarding appointments to the Yough River Advisory Board. According to the commissioners office, Oslislo requested that the commissioners reconsider appointing Jack King and Jack Fridinger to the board, as requested by DNR Secretary Torrey Brown.



No action was taken by the commissioners on Oslislo's request.

PITCHFORKS AND CURRYCOMBS were in evidence everywhere at the Fair this Tuesday as 4-H and FFA members put the final polish on their livestock entries before judging began Wednesday. The youthful exhibitors are responsible for keeping their animals and stalls fresh and clean throughout the course of the Fair. The pride they feel for their animals is reflected in the grooming and barn cleaning that continue unabated even after judging is completed. Entries in the youth division were higher than ever this year, according to a spokesman for the Fair board. Preparation for entering a livestock exhibit in the Fair is a process that begins months in advance, as owners train their animals to lead, groom them daily to put a shine on their coats, trim their feet and clip off excess hair. Show day finds exhibitors busy plying the tricks of their trade to emphasize their animals' good points while minimizing their faults. They are trained in showmanship skills so that their animal can be shown to the best advantage possible. Many classes are filled with closely matched entries, and the skill of the showman and the cleanliness and presentation of the animal can make the difference between a blue ribbon and no prize.

Participation Of County Residents Makes The Fair A Family Affair

by Joan Sussman

The 1984 Garrett County Fair swung into full motion Tuesday as about 650 county residents of all ages braved mud and occasional lines to enter exhibits that ranged from rabbits to exquisite needlework. 4-H and FFA members, amateur gardening experts, farmers of all kinds, housewives, artists, senior citizens and craftspeople descended on the Fairgrounds at McHenry to compete for prizes and show off their handiwork.

The Fair is very much a family affair. Scenes at the main entry tables included harried parents trying to coordinate the entering of everything from the second grader's school art project to the fifteen-year old's steer, including Dad's hay, Mom's canned goods and a few items in between.

Butch and Dorla Buckel and their five children that range from twins, aged five, to a daughter, 15, raided their "small" two acre garden to enter more than 15 different kinds of vegetables, ranging from asparagus to zucchini. "We love working in the garden, it's kind of a family project," Mr. Buckel said, adding that the family sells some of their produce in their market in Grantsville. Other fair entries by the Buckel family included "Hayburner," the baby beef steer owned by 14-year-old Brian, and a market lamb owned by Vicki, 15. They are both members of the Udder Joy 4-H Club.

The dairy, beef, horse, sheep and swine barns are always hotbeds of family activity, with many families entering numerous animals in a variety of divisions. Some ambitious 4-Hers have entries in both the beef and horse barns, for example. "I don't know how we're going to keep the kids clean long enough for them to show their animals," one mother commented, looking forward with apprehension to Wednesday, when most livestock judging took place. Mud several inches deep in places on Tuesday easily explained her concern.

Last minute clipping, bathing, grooming and training efforts were in evidence everywhere, Tuesday, as livestock emerged from trucks and trailers spattered and stained. Many families will spend most of their waking hours at the fair this week caring for their show stock, competing in judging contests and other special events, showing, and just hanging around the barns, a favorite activity of teenagers in the horse, dairy and beef barns.

The 4-H and FFA programs are one of the driving forces at the Fair. Participation by members is always high and is better than ever this year, according to Alice Hevner, extension agent, who was busy Tuesday coordinating set-up efforts in the 4-H Exhibit Barn.

Members of the Ryan's Glade, Red House, and Grantsville 4-H Clubs accounted for at least thirty-five entries in the Baby Beef division. Those 4-Hers will face the sale of their very pampered projects this Saturday at the 4-H and FFA Livestock Sale, an event that often brings tears as well as financial reward to those involved.

"It's a good bunch of kids with a good bunch of parents," said Becky Sanders, leader of the Red House 4-H Club, which has 19 entries in this year's Baby Beef Show. The Red House club attracts membership from outside the Red House area because of its emphasis on beef projects. Other county 4-H clubs, including Udder Joy, the Shepherds, and the Saddle Tramps, specialize in the various popular livestock species.

Prize money can mount up, especially for those with entries in a variety of areas. One year a 4-Her was able to buy a pair of cowboy boots she coveted after picking up her premium check Saturday evening.

Entries arriving in the home arts area Tuesday as usual reflected the solid tradition such as quilting, crocheting, needlepoint, and other crafts have always enjoyed in the area. A mother accompanied by an entourage of her own, and a few borrowed children in tow entered an array of handmade clothing ranging from very small to adult in size. Apparently next stop was the quilts department, since one of the children was busy keeping a quilt in her charge out of the mud while her mother checked in the clothing entries.

Civic and community organizations were on hand in the food booths that are the major fund-raising project for some groups. Many hours of volunteer labor go into the food preparation and sales at the booths that dot the Fairgrounds, selling everything from fried clams to hot sausage sandwiches. The Oakland Mountain Lake Park Lions Club Chicken Barbecue, a fair tradition for 25 years, expects to sell about 2,000 dinners this week. Another long-time fair favorite, the Oakland Rotary French fry booth, will fry up about six tons of potatoes this week.

Tuesdays of Fair week are a very hectic experience for the volunteer superintendents, hosts and hostesses of the various departments, who are busy from early morning til at least 6 p.m. assigning, arranging, and keeping records on the flood of incoming entries. "Well, we lived through another one," one harried superintendent said as she closed up shop at the end of the long day.

"I'm exhausted and it's only Tuesday," commented one mother of several 4-H livestock exhibitors, and for the small army of exhibitors, parents, leaders, fair volunteers, directors and others that make the Fair happen, that seemed to sum things up pretty well.

Many people do not realize how dangerous periods of high temperature and high humidity can be. Hot weather can place a dangerous strain on the body, especially the heart. It can make you sick, or even kill you, and often the victims are elderly.

Heat stress is of particular importance in the summer—high temperatures occur and proper cooling is not always possible, either due to unavailability or high cost. However, by being aware of the facts about heat stress, individuals may be able to cope with it more effectively.

Temperatures above 90° are especially dangerous, particularly when the humidity is high. Crowded living conditions and a sudden increase in temperature also increases the danger. However, it doesn't take a "killer" heat wave to kill you—if you are feeling hot and uncomfortable, take steps to avoid heat stress.

Heat stress can cause both physical and mental changes. Among these are the hot and uncomfortable feeling that comes with heat, a lack of energy, loss of appetite. Other signs that are more serious are dizziness, rapid heartbeat, diarrhea, nausea, throbbing headache, dry skin, chest pain, weakness, breathing problems, vomiting and cramps.

If you recognize any of these symptoms, try to stay as cool as possible. Spend as much time as you can in cooler surroundings, such as a cooler room in your home, an air conditioned shopping mall, senior center or library. If possible, cool with fans. They can draw cool air into your home at night or help to provide good indoor air circulation during the day. Cool baths and showers also provide good relief from heat. Cool water removes extra body heat about 25 times faster than cool air. In the heat, light weight-loose fitting clothing is more comfortable. Hats or umbrellas also are effective for protecting the head and neck.

In hot weather, your body needs more water. Drink often and in reasonable amounts. Also watch what you eat; avoid hot foods and heavy meals. Use your stove less, cook your meals during the cooler part of the day. The avoidance of alcohol and excess salt is also recommended.

Another way to keep cool is to slow down your physical activity, especially at the beginning of hot weather when your body is less prepared for the heat. Physical activity produces body heat.

Heat stress can affect almost anyone, but especially the elderly. Your chances of getting sick in hot weather are also increased by a weak or damaged heart, hypertension, circulation problems, diabetes, obesity, a previous stroke, infection or fever, diarrhea, consumption of alcoholic beverages, sunburn or any skin diseases which may reduce sweating.

For more information about heat stress, contact the Cooperative Extension Service office at 11 Prospect Square, Cumberland, Md. 21502, Phone: 724-3320; or 202 South Third Street, Oakland, Md. 21550, Phone: 334-2145; or Telephone: 895-3124 at Grantsville, Maryland on Mondays and Fridays.

Bambacus, Bolden, Durr To Attend GOP Convention

Sen. John Bambacus, Garrett County businessman and former delegate DeCorsey Bolden and Sen. John Durr of Frederick will represent the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland at the Republican National Convention in Dallas beginning August 20.

100-YR. TRADITION CONTINUES AS NAYLORS CELEBRATE A BIRTHDAY

by Pam Ashby

ON HIS 100TH BIRTHDAY IN 1961 A. D. Naylor recreated his early career as a blacksmith for the public. The town of Oakland celebrated A. D.'s anniversary with scenes from yesteryear as they watched him shoe horses and listened as he spun tales of good ol' days. The business he founded, the A. D. Naylor Company, is now celebrating its 100th birthday with many special events.

It was a cold day on March 12, 1884, when A. D. Naylor swept the snow out of his windowless building and opened a new blacksmith shop on Liberty Street in Oakland. Little did he know that his descendants would one day celebrate a centennial of the Naylor Company.

A. D. (as he was affectionately called for most of his 103 years) leased and then purchased the business from Mrs. Leah Sincell, the widow of Charles Sincell, a blacksmith who had moved from Frederick to Oakland.

Born in 1861 in Hedgesville, Va., A. D. learned the "smithy" trade as a young boy from his father, Jacob.

A. D. married Artie Bartlett soon after he moved to Oakland and they had two sons, Arthur and Paul, who both began working with their father at tender ages.

After Artie Naylor died, A. D. married Mary Elizabeth Townshend. The couple had five children: Mary Drake, Townshend, Playford, Rebecca, and Justis. Justis died at age two, and Playford, an attorney, died at age 40. Mary Drake and Townshend both worked for their father.

As with the family, the A. D. Naylor Company grew and grew. A. D. first expanded the blacksmith shop where, in addition to shoeing horses, he repaired farm and household equipment.

Then in 1899, A. D. took the plunge and erected a three-story building that included a hand-operated elevator. He purchased railroad cars full of disassembled farm wagons, horse-drawn vehicles, surreys, sleds and sleighs. His son, Townie, assembled the parts on the third floor and displayed them on the second floor. One of those original surreys is now on display at the Garrett County Historical Museum.

In the meantime, A. D.'s brother, Ellsworth, took over the blacksmith shop and moved it to Third Street, where Shaffer Ford now stands.

Further expansion of the Naylor Company took place as they began doing plumbing and electrical work.

Mt. Lake Park was growing rapidly at that time and Naylor's employees would walk to the Park every morning with tools in hand to work on the new homes and cottages. Naylor's also contracted work as far away as Romney, W.Va., and their employees either went there to live or travelled back and forth on weekends by train.

Some employees of Naylor's branched out and started businesses of their own. Grover Stemple and Tom Compton each started plumbing businesses and Frank Piper opened his own lumberyard.

A. D., seeming to have great foresight, always kept a year's worth of stock on virtually everything, thus, during World Wars I and II he was able to supply county residents with many items not procurable at that time. His bulk-buying policy even kept the company going during the lean years of the depression.

Foresight also spurred A. D. to buy land. Not long after he moved to Oakland, A. D. bought ten parcel lots around the Pennington Street area for $500, known as the Naylor sub-division. As the years passed he bought much more acreage in southern Garrett County.

When A. D. first moved to Oakland he built a small house on the corner of Center and Wilson Streets where the Masonic Temple now stands. Paul Naylor had built a larger home on that corner years later and willed the property to the Oakland Masonic Lodge No. 192 upon his death.

A. D. then purchased a more spacious home on Crook's Crest for his enlarged family and then finally moved to a house on Fourth Street where his daughter, Mary Drake, now resides.

The Naylor Company kept pace with the changing times and purchased old houses around the B & O Railroad tracks to keep ample stock of their expanding line of merchandise. When electric appliances came into vogue they built a three-story building on the corner of Liberty and Wilson Streets, calling it Naylor's Appliance Store. Tornadoes sliced the third story off that building twice, so A. D. decided not to replace it the third time.

A. D. died in 1965 leaving a legacy of more than money and property. He was a hard-working, community-minded man who set a fine example for his heirs. He had been a state senator, a representative of the House of Delegates, was the president of the First National Bank, held many top positions in local clubs and was a devoted member of St. Paul's Methodist Church in Oakland. He sang in the church choir well past his 100th birthday and went to work at Naylor's nearly every day until the day he died.

After A. D.'s death, the family had differing views on the business. The elder Naylors wanted to keep things as they were. The younger Naylors wanted to build a new store. Therefore, when the most spectacular fire in Oakland's history totally destroyed Naylor's Hardware Store in 1975, the younger Naylors, although deeply saddened about the loss of so many priceless antiques, saw it as a mixed blessing. Now they would have to rebuild and they could move to a new location.

It seemed as though the entire community was on hand during and after the fire to help with the extensive clean-up. Every fire company within a 20-mile radius came to extinguish the fire. The Mennonite Disaster Service turned out in full force immediately to begin the clean-up and salvage operations. The Beachy Lumber Company provided storage and trucking service, and one week's worth of labor. It was truly heart-warming to see a community rally around the Naylors and help them rebuild.

The decision was made. Property the Naylors owned on Third Street would be the new store location. Arthur Naylor, Jr.'s brother-in-law, Ron Yingling, designed the store and the late William A. Shirer built the structure which was officially opened in the fall of 1977. The Naylors are firm believers in tradition and they wanted their new store to harmonize with the old stores in Oakland; hence, the new store with an old look.

The business that grew from one employee to 70 employees and saw the need to computerize ledgers rather than handwrite them is still thriving after 100 years of service to the community.

The Board of Directors at Naylor's Hardware Store now includes Art, Allen and Howard Naylor, grandchildren of A. D.; Janna Naylor, great-grandchild of A. D.; and Rodger Upole, long-time employee of Naylor's.

Naylor's is celebrating its centennial with a photo and antique exhibit at the store. They are also holding drawings for free merchandise in the store each week.

A brochure on the history of the family store, written by Mary Love, will be on sale at cost late in August.

Report Predicts County Employment To Rise 25.4 Percent By 1990

Garrett County's total non-agricultural wage and salary employment is expected to expand by 1,757 new positions by 1990 - a jump of 25 percent - according to a labor market analysis prepared by the Department of Employment and Training.

This rate of growth will be substantially higher than both the statewide rate and the rates of growth from the other western Maryland counties. Maryland overall is expected to see a 12.9 percent employment growth; Allegany County 12.6 percent, and Washington County 18.2 percent.

The coal mining industry is projected to out-distance all other sectors in employment expansion, with the high quality metallurgical expected to be in great demand nationally and internationally. The report qualified these predictions by saying this growth will take place if the world economic recovery continues.

Next largest employment growth is predicted for production/maintenance workers, while the least growth is predicted for professionals. Production and maintenance workers are expected to increase by 29.5 percent with 768 positions to open; managers and officers should increase 26.8 percent with 157 positions; technical workers 34.8 percent with a growth of 47 positions; clerical 24.8 percent with 312 new positions, sales 30 percent and 149 positions; and professionals 5.3 percent, with 42 positions.

The DET report predicts limited opportunities in wholesale trade and government.

Production and maintenance workers will make up the largest occupational group in the county, and growth will be centered in the mining industry. Nearly one-half of all new jobs will be in mining, according to the report, while another ten percent will be in the related field of construction. This would appear to mean that the demand for heavy equipment operators and truck drivers will be higher than for such occupations as sewing machine operators.

In the service market, demand will be greatest for nurse aides and orderlies and for janitor, porters and cleaners. The service industry is tied to the tourist industry at Deep Creek Lake, retirement centers, and the ski resort areas.

Clerical personnel will find employment opportunities in the secretarial field, as well as cashiers and general office clerks. Both the services and retail trade industries will provide a substantial number of new positions for these types of workers, although employment growth for positions requiring specialized skills will be slow.

The report went on to forecast that demand for professionals such as physicians, accounts and systems analysts will be quite low. Personal, business and social services will be the major employers of managers in the county. The retail trade sector will be the primary employer of managers outside the services sector, with retail store managers having the best job prospects.

More than 50 percent of the new sales employment opportunities are to be for sales clerks. With replacement demand, the requirement will be up to 170 new positions. by 1990.

The specific occupations with large numbers of jobs in 1990 will include heavy equipment operators 440; sales clerks 330; janitors and cleaners 320; truck drivers, 260; sewing machine operator and garment workers 220; cashiers 210; nurses aide and orderly 200; secretary 180; general office clerk 160; and retail store manager 140.

Among the occupations which are expected to show little or no growth by 1990 are accountants and auditors; butchers and meat cutters, cooks for institutions and cafeterias; dining room or cafeteria attendant; managers for eating and drinking establishments; refrigeration and air conditioning mechanics; shipping and receiving clerks; inspectors; machine tool setter; gardeners and groundskeepers; and key-punch operators.

The population is expected to grow from the 26,498 counted in 1980 too 28,399 by 1985 and to 30,200 by 1990. Total western Maryland population is expected to reach 227,498 by 1990, up more than 7,000 from the 220,132 counted in 1980. Statewide, the population is expected to climb to 4,535,456 from the 4,216,975 counted in 1980.

For the entire Western Maryland area, the DET report predicts that all major industrial sectors will increase employment levels through 1990, with the construction industry having the most rapid rate of expansion. The largest number of new opportunities, however, will surface in the area's retail trade sector.

Total employment is expected to increase in all major occupational groups, with the largest number of new positions again to be for production and maintenance workers.

Statewide, manufacturing payrolls are forecast to decline moderately, by 1,866 jobs, over the forecast period. With this decline, manufacturing's share of total employment will fall from 13.3 percent in 1982 to 11.7 percent in 1990. All other industry groups are expected to increase employment levels with growth rates ranging from 7.2 percent to 46 percent.

Services and retail trade, which collectively employ over 50 percent of the state's work force, will account for more than two thirds of the total employment growth over the projection period. Statewide, job increases will be lowest in the mining and transporation sectors.

Nearly 50 percent of all new jobs will be for clerical and service workers in the occupational group statewide.

The report also notes that Maryland's nonagricultural employment totaled 1,626,221 in 1982 and is expected to grow to 1,836,466 by 1990. In addition to new jobs, employment opportunities will be created as people leave the work force, so that growth and replacements needs will provide more than 610,000 employment opportunities between 1982 and 1990.

The data used to compile the predictions did not include farm, self-employed and unpaid family workers. The following industries were also not included: agriculture, private households and railroads. The data was in response to labor market information mandated by the Job Training Partnership Act and the projections were designed primarily to assist in understanding Maryland's future economy and insure a productive labor force to staff it.

POSTER TO BE DISPLAYED — A poster created by Danita Friend, a senior student at Northern High School, will be on display at the Maryland Association of Boards of Education Convention to be held in Ocean City in October. The poster, which will be hung as Garrett County's contribution to the convention's celebration of Maryland's 350th birthday, was completed this summer under the guidance of Ms. Friend's art teacher, Margaret "Maggie" Pratt. Ms. Friend has studied under Ms. Pratt for three years, and will be enrolled in Art IV this year. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Friend of Blooming Rose Road, Friendsville, Ms. Friend was selected to complete the project because of her outstanding work in commercial art display.

KEEPING IN SHAPE

Rita and Paul are just one of the couples in our neighborhood who jog together to keep in shape. They say the first week was so exhausting they almost gave up. Now that mile or so every morning gives tone and zest to the rest of the day.

What jogging does for the body, worship does for the soul. Our spiritual energies need to be used, enriched, renewed. Jesus himself confirmed the ancient principle that man does not live by bread alone but by God's revealing Word.

Naturally if a couple have been away from church a while it takes real resolve to rebuild their worship-life. After a few Sundays our time with God becomes the source of power and strength for every day's challenge.

WHAT SHOULD YOU DO IN HOT WEATHER?

Summer heat can have a telling effect on your body and it is important to take normal precautions to reduce this effect. You must realize that you burn up just as much energy in heat as in cold, so you should keep up a normal diet. Dressing properly can help. Remember that even a single layer of clothing helps protect you against heat reflections as well as from the direct rays of the sun.

You lose fluid in the heat and so you should drink plenty of water to avoid dehydration when you are perspiring heavily. When it is really hot, guard against heat and sun-stroke by avoiding exhausting work or exercise — even in the shade. Finally, remember that we carry many products for making hot summer living more comfortable.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE WAY TO GROW
August 19, 1984

Background Scripture:
2 Kings 21:1 through 23:30.

Devotional Reading:
2 Kings 21:1-9.

Most of the most deeply spiritual people I know were not born that way. Rather, it seems that as they have met opportunities and challenges in life, they have responded by growing in ways that have led to new levels of maturity and spiritual vitality.

Correspondingly, most of the un-spiritual people I know were not born that way either. They have encountered similar opportunities and challenges along the way, but they have not responded by growing in the way of spiritual maturity.

REPAIR THE TEMPLE!

When Josiah became king of Judah at the age of eight, who could have predicted that this boy would prove to be one of Judah's greatest kings? His great grandfather had been the beloved Hezekiah, but his grandfather Manasseh had been one of Judah's worst kings, and his father Amon was also a disaster. The nation was headed downhill. How could this mere child halt this downward slide?

At the age of 18 Josiah made a momentous decision when he decided to have repaired the temple which had fallen into disrepair and decay during the idolatrous times of his father and grandfather. This decision itself was hardly an act of piety on his part, but it was a first step that started the young king in the right direction. He realized that his people needed the temple worship that had fallen into disuse in the past two reigns.

Furthermore, because Josiah made this decision to repair the temple, his life moved into a whole new level of spiritual growth. For, during the repair of the temple, Hilkiah the priest found an ancient scroll upon which was discovered the Deuteronomic law that apparently the people of Judah had forgotten.

Now, Josiah might have said the Biblical equivalent of "Isn't that interesting?" and let it go at that. But, according to 2 Kings, his reaction was dramatic: "...when the kings heard the words of the book of the law, he rent his clothes" (22:11). Hearing the ancient laws for the first time, Josiah realized how far his people had drifted from their God and he was distraught.

HEART AND SOUL

At this point in his life, the young king made another dramatic leap forward in his spiritual growth. Gathering the people of Judah together in Jerusalem, Josiah read the book and took the lead for his people by personally renewing the covenant that his forefathers had made with the Lord. He and his people joined together in pledging themselves to live by the book and the commandments of God.

It had all started with a decision to repair the temple. And each time Josiah took a step deeper into his own path of spiritual growth and development. He wasn't born a better and more devout king, but he became that way because he was willing to grow.

DON'T FORGET CLOSING COSTS

You have saved $20,000 and now want to buy a home or condominium in the $100,000 range because you hear that you'll need a 20% down payment. If that is the last penny of your savings, you had better set your sights a little lower. You do not want to get into a financial bind due to closing costs. You should know exactly what they will be BEFORE you commit all of your savings for the down payment.

Closing costs, which include but are not limited to a title search, prepayment of taxes and interest, attorney's fees and documentation preparation, will vary from sale to sale.

Lenders are required to provide you with a good faith estimate of closing costs within three days of your application. Then you'll have a good idea of what the additional expenses will be before passing title.

Although closing expenses cannot be pinpointed to the penny until the actual passing, an experienced Realtor can provide you with a reasonable estimate of such costs for an anticipated purchase at any time.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone one of our offices.

Rebecca S. Wolf, Melvyn D. Sines Exchange Vows In May 12 Event

Rebecca Sue Wolf became the bride of Melvyn Douglas Sines II in a 2 p.m. candlelight ceremony at the Loch Lynn Church of God on May 12. Rev. Robert H. Fletcher officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fredolen L. Wolf Jr., Pleasant Valley. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvyn D. Sines, near Loch Lynn.

Given in marriage by her parents, and escorted to the altar by her father the bride wore a floor-length gown of white knit chiffon, with a Queen Anne neckline, baby doll ruffled yoke of Chantilly lace and full bishop sleeves trimmed with lace. The skirt featured ruffles of Chantilly lace and a chapel train. Her hat was designed to match her gown. The side flipped brim was covered with Chantilly lace and a fingertip veil edged in satin ribbons.

The bride carried a silk bouquet of pink and lavender daisies accented with baby's breath and matching streamers. She carried her sister's white bible along with her bouquet.

Marcia Ashby, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Tina Green, friend of the bride, Cathy McHale and Beverly Ahern, cousins of the bride. Patty McGee, friend of the couple, was the flower girl.

The maid of honor, bridesmaids and flower girl gowns were all of Southern Belle Style in pink and lavender taffeta, accented with wide white lace and silk bows. Each carried matching bouquets of silk daisies. All the attendants' gowns were designed and made by Mrs. Sonja Shreve.

Serving as his brother's best man was James Sines. Ushers were Lee Wolf, brother of the bride, Richard Coddington and Marty Wilt, friends of the groom. Shannon Lee, cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer. The groom wore a white tuxedo and the best man, ushers and ring bearer all wore grey tuxedos.

Clifford DeWitt provided traditional wedding music and accompanied Mrs. Karen Scheermesser and Mrs. Jody Welch vocalists, who sang "The Wedding Song," "I Pledge My Love", and "The Lord's Prayer". During the ceremony the couple lit the wedding candle.

A buffet reception followed at the Deer Park fire hall. Lois Williams, aunt of the bride, and Rena McGee cut and served the seven-tier cake, featuring a bridge and stairway with the wedding party in miniature. The top tier had the traditional bride and groom and the cake featured silk flowers of pink and lavender daisies. The cake was baked and decorated by Lois Williams. Norma Harper and Chris Rodeheaver, aunts of the groom, served the punch.

Karen Wolf, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book. Tina Legeer, Rhonda Wolf and Becky Ahern distributed programs, scrolls and birdseed packets.

A rehearsal dinner was served at the Loch Lynn Church of God Fellowship Hall. Assisting with the dinner was Edna Wolf, Geraldine Wolf and Jackie Fletcher.

The bride wore a burgundy and white silk dress with a corsage of pink and lavender daisies as a going-away outfit.

After a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls, Canada, the coupel now resides near Swanton.

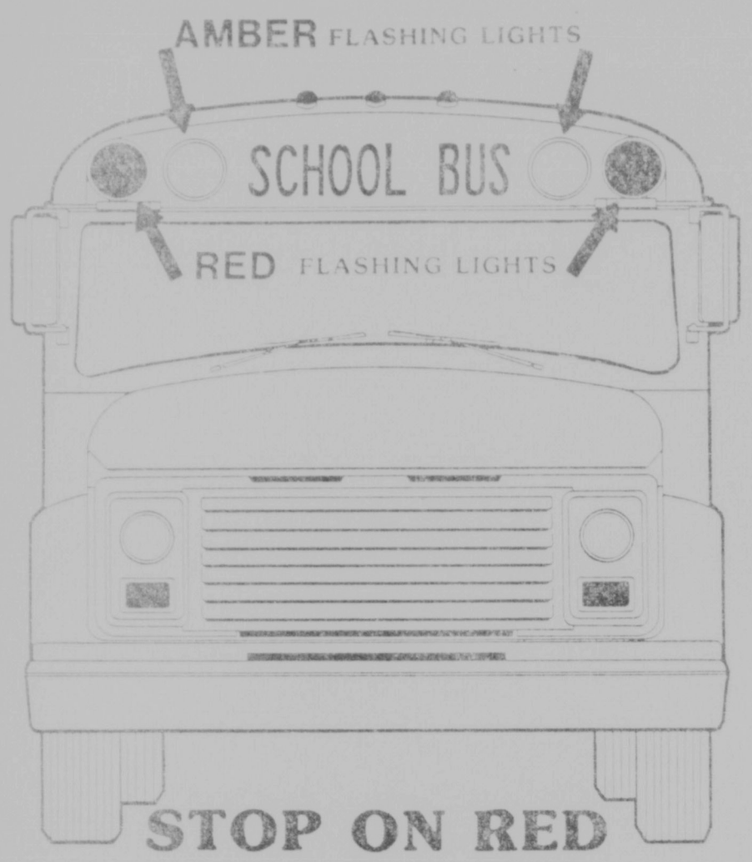
Downed Electric Wires Can Be Deadly!!!

What To Do If A Fallen Wire Comes In Contact With Your Vehicle



If an overhead electric line falls or comes in contact with your car or truck, DON'T PANIC! The safest thing to do is STAY IN YOUR VEHICLE until your utility company turns off the power and confirms that conditions are safe. Instruct all other people in the area to stay away.

If there is immediate danger, such as fire, then you and any passengers must jump completely clear of the vehicle. JUMP WITH BOTH FEET TOGETHER AND ARMS IN THE AIR AWAY FROM THE VEHICLE. DON'T ALLOW ANY PART OF YOUR BODY TO TOUCH THE VEHICLE WHILE ANOTHER PART TOUCHES THE GROUND. After hitting the ground, move away slowly taking small steps. Each person in the vehicle must follow this procedure individually. DO NOT ATTEMPT TO TOUCH ANOTHER PASSENGER IN THE VEHICLE AFTER YOU ARE OUT. Be sure not to touch or step on any other wires which may be dangling or on the ground.

We suggest you keep this information in the glove compartment of your car or truck.

STOP ON RED

WHEN AMBER LIGHTS FLASH

BE PREPARED TO STOP AND DO NOT PASS THE BUS

NEW WARNING SYSTEM FOR SCHOOL BUSES — Some new school buses arriving in the county for the upcoming school year to begin August 29 will be equipped with a new warning system for motorists, according to Mike Sines, transportation director for the Board of Education. The change is the result of legislation introduced by State Senator John Bambacus which passed the state legislature this year. Thirty-eight states, including Pennsylvania, Delaware, and West Virginia, have enacted similar legislation. New buses will have an eight-light warning system, which includes two red and two amber lights on the front and rear ends of the bus. Older buses have only two red lights on the front and rear ends. Sines said that the old buses will not have to have their systems replaced. The amber lights will begin flashing about 100 feet before the bus comes to a stop, with the red lights starting to flash when the bus stops. The amber lights will warn the motorist to be prepared to stop, and not to pass the bus. When the red flashing lights are on, the motorist must stop. Sines said that the transportation office will be working with drivers and parents to make any necessary route adjustments as soon as possible after the new school year begins. PRESIDENT REAGAN addressed a group of State Future Farmers of America presidents, officers and vocational education professionals from across the nation July 24 in the Rose Garden at the White House, Washington, D.C. The meeting was arranged during the week-long State FFA Presidents' Conference July 22 through 27, sponsored by Chevrolet to give officers a better knowledge of the FFA and national agricultural issues. Above with President Reagan are Ron Wineinger, National FFA President; Rhonda Scheulen, National Vice President; Carol Irvine, National Vice President; Chuck Duggar, National Vice President; Melody Lawson, National Vice President; and Bill Caraway, National Secretary. Below with John Block, a speaker at the conference, are Karen Hamilton, State FFA Secretary; and Margaret Flanigan, State President. Miss Hamilton is a daughter of W. Brooks Hamilton, Jr., Oakland, and is among the officers meeting the President. In his 10-minute speech President Reagan said that in 1982 nearly one-fifth of the world's agricultural products were shipped from American ports, and that the country will continue to move in a positive direction, pursuing new export markets and working to remove export barriers. Already, Reagan said, Block has negotiated new import quotas with Japan that will lead to near doubling of beef imports and a 54 percent increase in citrus exports over the next four years. "On another front, we've demonstrated our determination to aggressively maintain exports, including a strong American challenge to the European community's subsidy program . . . Now that we've regained our reputation as a reliable supplier, we mean to maintain that reliability and that image."

Three Mason Holsteins Qualify For Gold Medals

Three Holstein cows from the herd of Charles and Lorraine Mason, Ch-Lo-Ma Farm, Oakland, were recently qualified for Gold Medals from the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

A Gold Medal is the association's highest recognition for superior genetic transmitting ability and cows chosen must have made a primary contribution to the genetic merit of the Holstein breed.

The Gold Medal recognition will be added to the association performance files and listed on any performance inquiry, including pedigree.

To qualify, each cow must have at least three daughters milking or two daughters milking and one son in AI service. Cows and daughters must meet minimum production requirements which means their average Modified Contemporary Deviation (MCD) for milk must be in the top 30 percent of the breed.

Minimum type requirements are that the classified daughters must be included and the average of the Contemporary Deviation for Type (CDT) must also be in the top 30 percent of the breed.

Mason's cows are MD-Oakview Vernon Pal, which has four daughters in the Mason herd, +2.8 CDT and 1,735 MCD; Ka-Be Pepi Charlea, which has three daughters, +5.3 CDT and 1,114 MCD; and Ch-Lo-Ma Indicator Gee Gee, which has +4.6 CDT and 1,914 MCD and three daughters in the herd.

Mason noted this is the first time in his 26 years as a dairy farmer that any of his cows met all the requirements for qualification.

Farmers Reminded Of Conservation Reserve Guidelines

Participants in the 1984 feed grain and wheat programs are reminded of the requirements for maintaining their acreage conservation reserve. The provisions for conservation management of these acres are part of the acreage reduction program contract, according to Olin S. Davis, Jr., chairman of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization Concervation Committee.

Participants were required to establish a conservation cover on the idled acres to protect them from erosion prior to June 10. However, the management of ACR acres doesn't end with the establishment of cover. "Participants must control weeds, insects and rodents, in a timely manner," said Davis. "ASCS employees will be spot checking ACR fields throughout the summer to be certain that weeds are not allowed to form seed. Farmers who fail to control weeds in a timely manner will be out of compliance and could lose program benefits," he said.

"The cover on idled acres should be maintained through December 31, 1984, except for fall plantings which may begin after September 1, 1984," said Davis. Producers who need to disturb the conserving cover prior to September 1, must get prior approval from the County Committee.

Over 22,500 acres have been idled in the 1984 reduction program in Maryland. Some of these acres are being used for wildlife food plots, or have been devoted to permanent conservation practices such as trees, sod waterways, and filter strips.

Davis urged participants to check their ACR fields to be certain that the cover is free from weeds forming seed.

Hamilton, Wassell Attend FFA Leadership Meet

The 1984-85 state Future Farmers of America officers attending a National FFA Leadership Conference for State Officers at the National FFA Center Leadership Conference for State Officers at the National FFA Center in Alexandria, Va., the second week in August included Karen Hamilton, state secretary, and Dove Wassell, vice president for Region I.

This is one of nine national conferences held across the nation, designed to improve leadership and communication skills, develop an understanding of state officer responsibilities and prepare state officers for more effective leadership roles in their state FFA association.

A highlight of the conference was the opportunity to work with National President Ron Wineinger and National Officer Rhonda Scheulen of the Central Region. Besides the training sessions, the 1984 program included a public speaking workshop, on FFA quiz contest, a banquet program and many other leadership activities designed to improve communication skills.

The National FFA Leadership Conference for State Officers is sponsored by the Merck Company Foundation as a special project of the National FFA Foundation, Inc.

Expected Crop Yields Now At Record Levels

The average per acre yield of corn, soybeans, and hay in Maryland will equal or top previous records if current conditions prevail throughout the remainder of the growing season.

The Maryland Crop Reporting Service estimates the average corn yield at 106 bushels an acre, based on August 1 conditions. Aggregate production of corn in the State, at 62.5 million bushels, based on this August 1 projected yield, will be up 69 percent from the relatively small 1983 crop, but five percent below 1982's output. The acreage of corn intended for grain, 590,000 acres, is up eight percent from last year, but eight percent below the 1982 acreage.

The State's soybean crop will also be at record levels if expectations based on conditions at the first of August are realized. The average yield is expected to be at 32 bushels an acre, matching the previous record set in 1978, and seven bushels greater than last year. This average yield, combined with a record 430,000 acres for harvest, results in overall production of almost 13.8 million bushels, up by nearly a half from last year and in excess of the previous state high by 13 percent.

The other major field crops are also performing well this year. Wheat yielded an average of 42 bushels per acre, equal to the record high set in 1982. Total wheat production, at 5.7 million bushels, is up six percent from 1983, but one percent less than the 1982 output.

Barley production is also at the highest level in history. A state total of 5.5 million bushels is estimated, two percent more than the record harvest of 1982. Production is 11 percent above last year. The average yield, at 58 bushels an acre, is up three bushels from last year.

Oats production is up nine percent from last year, but down eight percent from 1982.

The hay harvest thus far has been excellent. Yields per acre are expected to be at a record 2.72 tons. Overall projected production, at 626,000 tons, is up 11 percent from the production of 1983.

Nationwide, corn for grain production is forecast at 7.67 billion bushels, 84 percent above last year's drought stricken crop. The acreage of corn intended for grain, 7.1 million acres, is up 38 percent. The forecast yield is 107.9 bushels per acre, up 33 percent from a year ago.

Soybean production is forecast at 2.04 billion bushels, 30 percent larger than 1983, but seven percent smaller than 1982. Indicated soybean acres for harvest, at 66.8 million acres, is up eight percent from last year. The forecast yield of 30.5 bushels per acre is up 21 percent from a year ago.

All wheat production is forecast at 2.53 billion bushels, four percent more than 1983.

Hay production is forecast at a record high 153 million tons, up nine percent from 1983 and three percent above the previous record set in 1982.

Meat Production Statistics Noted

Maryland-Delaware commercial red meat production in June totaled 4.6 million pounds, down 14 percent from last month and down 48 percent from last year.

The January-June red meat production totaled 31.7 million pounds, down 41 percent from a year ago.

The June 1984 production changes from a year ago by individual species were: beef, down 11 percent; veal, down 17 percent; pork, down 84 percent; lamb and mutton, down 49 percent.

United States commercial red meat production in June 1984 totaled 3.20 billion pounds, down six percent from last month and down three percent from last year.

Talk Of The Towns

Jones Informs Accident Council Of Central Park Marketing Efforts

The following items were discussed by the Mayor and Town Council of Accident during the August 9 monthly business meeting. In attendance were Mayor Wayne Fratz and Councilmen Richard Carlson, Dave Davis and James Smith.

Industrial Park

The council reviewed a letter from Tom Jones, director of the county economic development department, outlining the Garrett County Economic Development Department's efforts to market the Central Garrett Industrial Park for those manufacturers requiring property for new construction. Jones furnished a supply of a recently printed promotional brochures on the Enterprise Zone used in the targeted mail marketing program.

The county's Economic Development Department has also submitted a request to the Tri-County Council for a focused study on the Central Garrett Industrial Park/Interprise Zone through the Economic Development Administration Title IX and Maryland Industrial and Commercial Redevelopment Fund studies.

Old School Property

The council was briefed on the status of Community Action's efforts to renovate the old school property. Community Action, through the County Commissioners has submitted an application for HUD block grant funding. The portion requested from HUD is approximately $132,000 of a total project cost of $535,000. If funding from HUD is approved, it will be used toward the Senior Citizen and Community Center and Day Care/Head Start Center, as well as design work for the residential apartment section of the old school building. A decision on the HUD block grant will not be known until around mid-November.

The town received a request from Habitat for Humanity to use the former kindergarten building as a temporary storage area for building materials donated to the organization. With concurrence from the Community Action agency, the request was granted until such time as renovation work begins on the school building, or other approved usage is granted.

Following repeated correspondence and telephone inquiries, the town received an August 2 letter from the state of Maryland, Department of General Services, stating that the relocatable classroom building owned by the state will be removed and transported to Hagerstown for use by the state Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services.

According to the state, the relocation is to take piace upon resolution of the awarding of the contract. The state received on June 14 five bids to move the building ranging from $64,500 to $148,500. The town had submitted a request to the state in April 1984 asking that the building remain on the site as headquarters for the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, Accident station. The town's request was denied.

Town Park

Mayor Wayne Fratz reported that electrical service to the park has been installed to serve the two buildings and a dusk-to-dawn pole light. Directional signs to the park have been ordered and will be placed at the corners of U.S. Route 219 and Deakin Street and the Accident-Friendsville Road and North Street.

Town Pond

On August 1, personnel from the State Department of Natural Resources, Maryland Inland Fisheries, sprayed the Accident Town Pond for aquatic plant control. The town purchased the chemical for spraying. No fishing was permitted until 10 days following application.

Water System

Following an electrical storm, there was an equipment failure at the two water pumping stations. The water level at the storage tank became very low during the morning hours of August 3. The town has requested the services of a Maryland Environmental Service technician to repair the automatic pumping systems and to present a proposal for the installation of a flashing light and alarm system at the water tank to alert the danger of low levels of water in the storage tank.

Sewer System Survey

In an on-going program to correct the excessive inflow and infiltration of water into the town's sewage system, the mayor and town council have authorized a survey to locate water entering the system that does not need to be treated. Examples could include roof downspouts, foundation drains, or other sources of surface runoff or groundwater. Edgar Harman of the Garrett County Health Department will be providing assistance to the town in conducting a survey of all residential, public, and commercial property connections to the town's sanitary sewer system.

The mayor and town councilmen, whose dwellings will be the first to be evaluated, requests the cooperation of all property owners in providing assistance to Harman and the town employee, Vaughn Sweitzer, in evaluating their property. The survey is scheduled to begin the week of August 27.

Financial Management Assistance

As a followup to the town clerk's attendance at a training session in Cumberland in June, Marjorie Fratz met on July 10 with Lenny Gold and Jim Cooper, instructors and consultants to the Maryland Center for Environmental Training, Charles Community College. The town had requested assistance in reviewing its water and sewer annual budget, rate structure for water and sewer services, schedule of fixed assets, and water and sewer ordinances. Cooper has offered his services as a Municipal Management Consultant. By the end of August, the town will know if any funding is allocated by the training center for consulting fees. The clerk was directed to pursue the obtaining of the consulting services.

Summer Employment

The town hired Randy McCord of Accident, as a temporary summer employee. His primary responsibility is mowing of the town-owned properties and public library area. Through the Western Maryland Consortium's Summer Youth Employment and Training Program, Duane Hare of Grantsville and Dean Lytle of Friendsville are also working for the town under the supervision of Vaughn Sweitzer.

Deer Park Adopts County Stormwater Ordinance Monday

Town officials at Deer Park agreed during a meeting August 13 to be governed by the county's stormwater management ordinance.

The agreement brings the town in compliance with a state law requiring all municipalities and counties to adopt stormwater management regulations.

Although no quorum of officials was present, discussion was held on obtaining liability insurance for the town. Municipal coordinator Wendell Keaton will obtain proposals and report in the near future.

The mayor and council will serve as hosts for the September meeting of the Maryland Municipal League at Starlite Restaurant in Oakland.

Town workmen are awaiting some pipe to finish the sewer rehabilitation work underway below the railroad tracks, according to clerk Mary DeBerry. Work will begin soon on repair of the bathroom at the town hall, with Councilman Ed Sollars to obtain the materials and do the work.

The town's next meeting will be September 10.

Friendsville May Be Headquarters For Association

Officials from Friendsville gave wholehearted support to a proposal from the Friend Family Association of America to locate its national headquarters in that town during the council meeting Monday.

Byron Friend, president of the association, promised to provide more specifics after getting association approval for the move.

Act On Planning Recommendations

The mayor and council acted on the Anderson and Sturgill zoning requests Monday. Following the recommendation of the town planning commission, the town granted approval of a request by Wayne Alexander for rezoning of his property from residential to commercial.

The council also followed the planning commission's recommendation when it denied a request by Rick Sturgill to rezone a former hotel on Riverside Drive from residential to commercial.

The council, acting as the planning commission, had rejected Sturgill's proposal in view of the overwhelming opposition of residents in the immediate vicinity.

During the water and sewer session Tuesday night, Paul Bernard, representing Eastern Utility Specialists, Inc., a consulting firm for collection system rehabilitation, gave the town some advice on working on its sewer system.

In the near future, Bernard is expected to present a proposal for cleaning, televiewing and grouting the trouble spots in the collection line.

Eastern Utility is presently helping the town of Grantsville determine trouble spots in its system.

Adopts Ordinance

The council agreed to adopt the county stormwater management ordinance rather than prepare its own version. The ordinance will be effective immediately and requires that grading or building permits for land development may not be issued unless a stormwater management plan has been approved by the county.

Maryland Retains Triple A Bond Rating For Sale

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced that Standard & Poor's, a major bond rating agency, has joined Moody's Investors Service in awarding the State of Maryland the Triple A rating for the general obligation bond sale scheduled for Wednesday, August 15.

The Board of Public Works, consisting of Governor Harry Hughes, Comptroller Goldstein and State Treasurer William S. James, accepted bids yesterday on $138,990,000 in general obligation bonds.

"The Triple A rating is important to Maryland taxpayers, because it is the best you can get, and means that Maryland usually receives the best interest rate available when we sell bonds. This saves our taxpayers millions of dollars each year," Goldstein said.

"Maryland remains one of only nine states in the nation to retain the coveted Triple A rating for general obligation bonds," Goldstein said. "In order to retain that rating, members of the Board of Public Works and other state officials met with representatives of the rating agencies in Annapolis on August 2nd to answer their questions about our state's finances and economic prospects."

Proceeds from the bond sale August 15 will be used as follows: $64.8 million for general state construction; $24 million for public school construction and $50.19 million for a variety of state and local projects, including community colleges, water quality projects and state local jail facilities.

Ginseng Season Starts Monday

Maryland's annual ginseng gathering season will open Monday, August 20, and last through December 1, according to Robert Wood of the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

Wood issues the yearly ginseng gathering permits which have been required under Maryland law for the past few years.

The $2 state permits are needed by gatherers of the rare and fabled root to legally sell their harvest in commercial channels. Buyers are required under law to record the permit numbers and identifications of their suppliers when they seek a Federal export permit for the root.

In 1983, according to Wood's records, some 141 collecting permits for ginseng were issued in the state. Forty of the permit holders reported selling 112 pounds of root at an average price of $120 per pound.

"The plant is uncommon enough that a pound or two of dried roots represents a great deal of effort," Wood says, "and searching for ginseng is obviously not a way to become wealthy. It does provide a good excuse, if one is needed to get out into the woods."

Wild, American ginseng is prized in parts of the Orient and the best price for the root is paid by exporters who cater to those markets. In Maryland ginseng is found mostly west of Frederick in the rich soil of shady hardwood Appalachian forests.

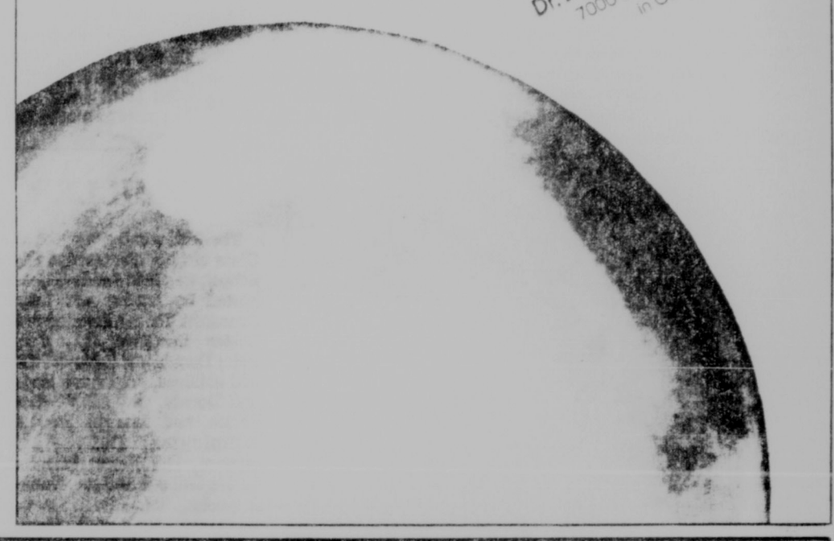
Oakland Police Arrest Seven For Disturbing Peace

Seven men from the Oakland area have been arrested for disturbing the peace and destruction of property by Cpl. Ron Beeghly of the Oakland City Police.

Those arrested include: George A. Sheffield, 19, Robert Kisner, 20, Richard L. Stemple, 20, Harold E. Dillsworth, 20, Jeffery W. Dillsworth, 20, and Sonny Ray Bowman, 19, and Curtis Bowman, 18.



The department received a call from Jay Moyer on August 5 at 11 p.m. stating that he had been awakened by some boisterous men who were in a brown Chevy pickup in the parking lot at Hometown Market.

Robert Boal also called the department and stated that the men in the same pickup had just driven by his house waking him. He also reported that the men allegedly threw an ashtray from their pickup striking his vehicle, causing minor damage.

In other Oakland Police news Chief John Sines stated that, despite repeated requests from the department, some business persons are habitually leaving their store windows open at night. He went on to say that this carelessness leaves an establishment wide open to easy theft.

District Court Results Noted

In regular Garrett County District proceedings held August 7 Judge Jack Turney found Karl William Wilson, Jr., 43, Oakland, guilty of trespassing and battery.

The case stemmed from an incident on June 18 when Wilson entered the Garrett County Sheriff's Department while intoxicated and assaulted and battered Deputy Larry Gnegy. Judge Turney has ordered a pre-sentence investigation in the case.

In other proceedings, Judge Turney found Josephine I. Resh, 39, Accident, guilty of battery.

Resh committed battery on Jessie M. Resh, Accident, on May 7. Judge Turney handed Resh an 89-day jail sentence and 10 months supervised probation. She is also to pay a $25 fine plus court costs and is ordered to make restitution to Resh in the amount of $764.49. Resh has filed an appeal and bond for the restitution has been posted.

In a case resulting from the same incident on May 7, Jessie M. Resh, 64, Accident, was given 12 months unsupervised probation before judgment for battery upon Josephine Resh. Both parties have been instructed not to have contact with each other.

Judge Turney also placed James Ronald Heath, 53, Deer Park, on 12 months unsupervised probation before judgment on a charge of trespassing. Heath trespassed at the home of Helen O. Heath on June 28. Heath was ordered to refrain from molesting, harassing or contacting Helen Heath in any way.

STATE POLICE TO HAVE NEW LOOK — Beginning with the 1984 model police cars, state troopers in Maryland will have a new look due to a change of car colors. The new patrol cars will be light tan and have a distinctive black and brown stripe, replacing the solid yellow color car that was adopted in 1972. This new design brings back the traditional black and brown colors seen on state police cars from 1935 until 1972. The new color scheme will be phased in over a three-year period. State Police Patrol Car Colors Change

Beginning with the 1984 model police cars, State troopers in Maryland will have a new look due to a change of car colors.

The new patrol cars will be light tan and have a distinctive black and brown stripe, replacing the solid yellow color car that was adopted in 1972. This new design brings back the traditional black and brown colors seen on State Police cars from 1935 until 1972. The new color scheme will be phased in over a three-year period.

In addition to the new color patrol cars, approximately 60 of the automobiles will be retrofitted with airbags as part of a two year U.S. Department of Transportation study. This brings the total number of State Police cruisers retrofitted to 75.

The airbags will be located in the steering wheel, and the automobile will also be equipped with three sensors; one under the dashboard and one under each fender. The airbag will only activate if the sensor under the dashboard and one other sensor is triggered. These sensors are designed to activate at a crash speed of 12 miles per hour or more.

Also taking part in this special study with the Maryland State Police are police agencies from Arizona, Ohio, Mississippi, Wisconsin and California.

According to Colonel W.T. Travers, Jr., Superintendent of the State Police, "The use of a passive restraint system such as airbags, along with the safety belts, can significantly reduce the number of persons seriously injured or killed on our highways."

Graham Assumes Position With A&A Realty

C.F. "Tom" Graham has accepted the position of sales manager with A & A Realty, which has offices along U.S. Rt. 219 just north of Oakland and a branch office in McHenry on Deep Creek Drive.

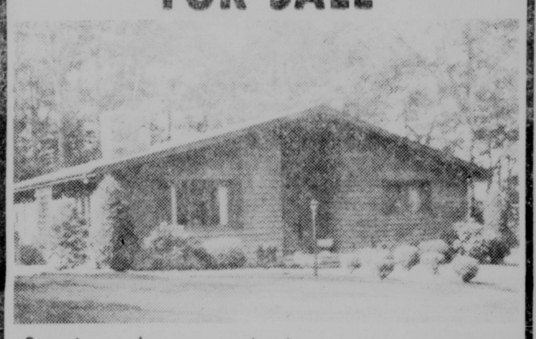
Graham will manage all sales activities at both offices while directly supervising the Lake branch. His special function in the new position will be to conduct training programs for all office licensees on a regular basis.

This move into sales management complements over 12 years experience in real estate sales in Garrett County as both a sales agent and associate broker. In addition to his sales experience, Graham is a graduate of the Realtor's Institute and was formerly the manager of Sky Valley, as well as the Four Hooppole South Condominiums.

Graham has been active in civic affairs through the years as an officer of the Lions Club and member of the Chamber of Commerce. He aided in the development and promotion of the Autumn Glory Festival and has served as president of the Deep Creek Lake, Garrett County Promotion Council.

Liquor Board Denies Sharpless Carry Out Request

The Board of License Commissioners for the county acted Friday to deny an application by JoAnn Sharpless for a class A offsale beer license in Deer Park.



The board cited Section 52, Article 2B of the Annotated Code of Maryland which requires that an applicant for an alcoholic beverage license in Garrett County must have been in business for one year immediately preceding the application. The board felt that Ms. Sharpless failed to meet the requirement and so the application was denied.

Sharpless had sought to establish the Deer Park Carry Out on Peach Street.

Winds Gets Draft

The Winds Restaurant near McHenry obtained a draft beer license Friday. Owner Herb McCrobie made the request of the board. The restaurant recently obtained a class D beer and wine license.

Garrett Mfg. Will Not Close

Garrett Manufacturing, a shirt manufacturing plant in Deer Park that was slated for closing due to disputes between labor and management, will not close after all, according to statements by the manager of Garrett Manufacturing's sister plant in Cumberland, Nikki Inc.

The two plants were scheduled for shut-down as of last Friday, but votes by the workers at the plants last week reportedly resulted in the acceptance of a piece rate pay proposal that averted the closings.

Workers at the two plants are members of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union. A union representative told local news media yesterday that all issues have not been settled but that negatiations are continuing.

Oma Everly, manager of Garrett Manufacturing, could not be reached to confirm the reports.

McHenry Park To Be Dedicated September 8

Dedication of the McHenry Area Community Park on Bumble Bee Road has been scheduled for September 8 at noon, according to Paul E. Miller, president of the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club.

The Lions Club has been the sponsor of the park throughout its two-year history, constructing a ball field as well as a picnic area and rest rooms.

Total cost of the project is expected to be $38,594 and when completed, the 32.5 acre site, about one and a quarter miles from Garrett Community College, will also include a pavilion, a volleyball court, a multi-use field for smaller children, and possibly an open air theatre.

The state's Program Open Space fund is expected to reimburse the club for 75 percent of the entire project cost. The club provides the remainder of the funds through various projects such as Winterfest, Las Vegas night and a chicken barbecue at Autumn Glory, and also provides the manpower needed for all improvements to the property.

The community is welcome to attend the dedication, conducted by Lions Club members, and the old-fashioned picnic served in the picnic area following the ceremonies.

Vehicle Mishaps Involve Drivers Charged With DWI; Several Injured

Two men have been charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol this week in connection with two separate automobile accidents.

Nathaniel David Ayre, 35, Vienna, W.Va., was charged with DWI on August 16 by Tfc. R.J. Resh of the Maryland State Police after Ayre lost control of his 1985 Buick Skylark on the Ben DeWitt Road. Ayre claimed he swerved to avoid hitting a deer that had crossed the road causing him to skid and into an embankment and collide with a guidewire of a Potomac Edison electric pole. The vehicle finally came to rest suspended over a ditch.

In another accident, Charles Dwight Bowser, 62, Meyersdale, Pa., was travelling westbound in his 1984 Chevrolet Impala on Route 40 just east of the Finzel Road when he crossed the center line striking a 1984 Chevrolet Chevelle operated by William Thomas Boyd, Jr., 32, Wheeling, W.Va. Bowser was reportedly taken to Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland by the Frostburg Rescue Squad. Bowser was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol and failure to keep right of center by the Maryland State Police.

The Sand Flat Road was the scene of another automobile accident which occurred on Friday. Tfc. D.G. Riggleman reported that Thomas Samuel Wolfe, 20, McLean, Va., was northbound on the Sand Flat Road when he lost control of his 1985 Dodge Challenger and left the right side of the road, veered back onto the road, lost control again and struck a ditch overturning the vehicle. The Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad responded to the scene and transported Wolfe and a passenger, Jeffery B. Feick, 22, Pittsburgh, Pa., to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where both men were treated and released. Wolfe was charged with negligent driving.

Details are still sketchy in an accident involving a 1984 Mack truck operated by Robert Wayne Martin, 28, Culloden, Commissioners Ask For Meeting With Forest Rep.

The Board of County Commissioners will be forwarding a letter to Donald MacLauchlan, director of the Maryland Department of State Forests and Parks, requesting a meeting of department representatives, county government. and concerned citizens regarding access of three-wheeler and snowmobile enthusiasts to state forests in the county.

Commissioner John Braskey said Wednesday that he has received many calls and complaints alleging that the Forest and Parks service wants to keep them out of the state forests, and is more concerned with cross country skiers than county residents.

Commissioner Braskey said the board is requesting the meeting to give citizens a chance to voice their concerns.

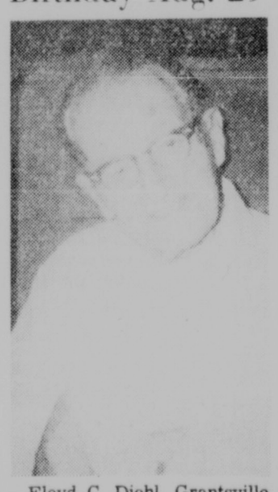
Four Garrett Projects Rank High For Funds

Garrett County projects filled four of the 17 slots in the state's Water Supply Financing Program administered by the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's Office of Environmental Programs, says Jeff Follweiller, program coordinator for the Water Supply Financing Program. This is more than any other county received.

The Shallmar project remains rated number one, and although funding amounts are not definite, the town is preliminarily scheduled to receive a water supply grant of $276,000. Other sources will provide the remaining $39,000 of the estimated $315,000 needed to provide a safe supply of drinking water for the town.
provide a safe supply of drinking water for the town.



Kitzmiller is ranked number two on the priority list, slated to receive a water supply grant of $262,000. Total estimated cost of the project is $1.4 million with the Farmers Home Administration to provide a $422,000 grant and a $180,000 loan. The ARC and other sources will provide $554,000, according to Follweiller.

The Grantsville project to disinfect the water supply has been tentatively granted $320,000 to install a chlorinator and increase the water system capacity. However, Follweiller pointed out that the town's plans for chlorination were not clearly outlined so the amount to be granted was not definite. Grantsville placed ninth on the list.

No. 16 was Bloomington, which is seeking to complete the final phase of its water system by installing a pumping station. That town is destined to receive a $60,000 grant from the water supply financing program and a $50,000 loan from the Farmers

Yough River Appointments Still An Issue

Appointments to the Youghiogheny River Advisory Board continue to be an issue between Department of Natural Resources Secretary Torrey Brown and the Garrett County Board of County Commissioners.

Commissioner John Braskey said at a press conference Tuesday that he discussed the issue with Secretary Brown at the 28th annual Maryland Association of Counties Convention in Ocean City last week, and that Brown is concerned about the stalemate concerning the appointments.

Dr. Brown has requested that the Commissioners approve the appointment of Jack Fridinger and Jack King to the board, which will oversee the management of the Youghiogheny River. The Yough has been designated a Wild and Scenic River under the control of the Department of Natural Resources since 1976.

The Board informed Frank Oslislo, director of Land Planning Services for DNR, by telephone yesterday that they will not compromise on the composition of the Yough River Advisory Board. Commissioner Braskey said Wednesday that the board reached that decision after discussing the issue with concerned citizens and among themselves.

The commissioners and Dr. Brown have been engaged in a back-and-forth struggle regarding the appointments since April, when the board submitted a list of nine names to DNR, and recommended their appointment to the board.

Brown responded with a list of twelve names, including King and Fridinger, which the commissioners say DNR want included to represent environmental interests.

"If you allow some interests to be represented on the board, then you should allow others," Commissioner Ernest Gregg said Tuesday, listing rafters,

W.Va. Woman Arrested After High-Speed Chase

A 21 mile highspeed chase ended early Sunday morning on U.S. Route 219 north with the arrest of Nancy L. Delauder, Terra Alta.

Deputy Charles Nolan of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department reported that he began pursuit of Delauder in Oakland and chased her to the three-lane highway on U.S. Route 219 north of McHenry where he overtook her car. Delauder then slowed and turned around headed for the Rt. 219 bridge where Deputy William Thomas had set up a road block. Delauder was finally stopped and a search of her automobile revealed a number of concealed weapons.

Delauder has been charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol, driving 96 miles per hour in a 50 miles per hour zone, failing to keep right of center, reckless driving, fleeing or eluding a police officer and carrying concealed weapons. She has been released on $200 bond.

Lake Business Owners Dissatisfied With Proposed Lake Regulations

Approximately 50 business and property owners gathered at Silver Tree Inn Monday to discuss the impact of proposed lake regulations and problems they may have with the proposals. The group also appointed a panel of four representatives to represent their group at an upcoming public meeting on the regulations.

The four-man panel, which will provide a concise list of objections and points requiring clarification, consists of Ed Scofield, Bob Railey, Bill Sisler and Jack Lear.

The four will have to work fast to outline their questions and suggestions by the time of the public information meeting scheduled by the Department of Natural Resources for August 26 at 1 p.m. at Garrett Community College auditorium.

For most of the business owners, Monday was the first time they had seen the completed proposal of regulations which were formulated over the past three years by the Deep Creek Lake Advisory and Review Committee with assistance from the DNR. The DNR is now responsible for lake management since Penelec leased the lake to the state.

Business group spokesman Ed Scofield, of Mountaineer Marine, said Tuesday that various problems can be found with the regulations throughout the 34-page document, from "unenforceable rules to usurping of existing zoning laws." "Who is the final authority? Will there be dual permits?" are only two of the many questions business and property owners want answered.

Scofield pointed out that marina owners feel there will be numerous problems with enforcement of a 40 mph speed-limit suggested by DNR but not backed by the advisory committee. This is a delicate issue, particularly since most boats do not have speedometers as standard equipment.

The property and business owners group sent a copy of the regulations Tuesday morning to John Nelson, county zoning administrator, to ask his help in pointing our discrepancies between lake management proposals and current zoning laws.

In addition, boat dealers and owners are unhappy with the 25-foot maximum size for all but pontoon boats. They had voiced these problems at a meeting last October with advisory board members but their suggestions were ignored, Scofield said.

His contention was backed by Bill Sisler, owner of Bill's Marine Service and also a member of the panel chosen by the business association.

Sisler said that the 25-foot length becomes discriminatory when it favors pontoons over another type of boat as the safest. Sisler is also very concerned over the regulation permitting only one engine per boat. Right now the major marine motor manufacturers are making no provisions for bigger eight-cylinder engines needed to power ski boats or larger family runabouts.

This would leave many boats underpowered, say both Sisler and Scofield, and consequently unsafe because of their slower speed and because bows would be in the air, obscuring vision.

Scofield went on to say that although he recognizes that the lake has a saturation point, this particular set of rules will instead kill the lake with over-regulation. He went on to point out several examples of over-regulation in Ohio. "Overregu-

Lake Property Owners Meeting Slated August 25

The Property Owners Association of Deep Creek Lake will hold a meeting this Saturday, August 25, beginning at 10 a.m. in the Garrett Community College auditorium.

Items on the agenda are proposed lake regulations, the sewer project and problems in cleanup after construction; zoning matters, including the Patterson boat appeal outcome; boating safety and the new Department of Natural Resources patrol boat which arrived Wednesday.

A drive for additional members is now underway. Dues are $10 and are payable to the Secretary-Treasurer, Property Owners Association of Deep Creek Lake, P.O. Box 103, Oakland.

School To Open With Half-Day Wednesday, 29th

Garrett County children will return to books and classrooms on Wednesday, August 29, as the 1984-85 school year gets underway. Students will be dismissed at 1 p.m. on the first day.

School will be in session for a complete day on Thursday and Friday.

There will be no school on Monday, September 3, in observance of Labor Day, with school resuming a normal schedule on Tuesday, September 4.

Commissioners Eye User Fees At County Landfill

Commercial refuse haulers may soon be subject to a user fee at the county landfill, the Board of County Commissioners announced this week.

Commissioner Ernest Gregg said that the fee may be necessary to offset the additional costs generated by the large number of tree stumps, tires and other large items deposited at the landfill.

He said that the county can get a burning permit to dispose of tires and tree stumps, but such burning would have to be carefully controlled. "I feel that a fee would be justified to help offset those expenses," Gregg commented.

Garrett County is one of the few counties in the state that does not charge commercial user fees, according to Gregg, who added that Allegany County is in the process of implementing a user fee system. He said that the board will consult with Allegany County about the logistics of the fee system.

FIGHTING FIRES and rescuing stranded kittens are not the only duties undertaken by volunteer fire departments as was evidenced this past weekend by members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department. In response to the recent tragic flood in Hyndman, Pa., a food drive was quickly organized by several OVFD members, coordinated by Jim Crabtree. Food and money were collected in downtown Oakland on Friday and Saturday and then delivered to Tom Cunningham, mayor of Hyndman, on Sunday afternoon. The drive netted two full pickup loads of food and household items, plus $500 in cash for the Hyndman Disaster Relief Fund. Crabtree stated that Cunningham was "delighted" to accept the food and money and said he "couldn't believe that a town so far away as Oakland would respond so graciously to the needs of the citizens of Hyndman." Crabtree said that the food will be used to feed the volunteers who are working in the Hyndman area as well as displaced families. In the photo, left to right, are Chris Crabtree and Mark Welch, both members of the Oakland VFD.

Maryland, West Virginia Reviewing Fishing Regulations For Bloomington

Maryland and West Virginia officials are presently reviewing a proposal compiled by the latter state to set uniform fishing regulations for the Bloomington Lake, which has one shoreline in Maryland and the other in West Virginia.

When the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers designed and constructed the 952 acre lake which was completed in 1981, there was no thought given to fishing regulations because the Corps felt mine runoff would kill the fish.

However, the pH of the water has remained relatively neutral and both states have stocked fish of various types. These thriving fish are an invitation to anglers but no one is sure of the creel limit or fish size rules.

In Maryland, a fisherman may keep five bass a day, and the fish must be at least 12 inches in length. In West Virginia, regulations allow anglers to keep eight bass a day and there is no minimum size limit.

West Virginia Director of the Department of Natural Resources Willis Hertig has signed the document which reportedly would bring regulations in line with Maryland law.

Assistant Maryland Attorney General Tom Deming said recently from his Annapolis office that he had just received the agreement and would be reviewing it as soon as possible.

Sen. John Bambacus had written a letter August 21 to Stephen H. Sachs, Maryland Attorney General, asking Sach's advice and assistance in resolving the legal confusion around the Bloomington Lake.

Sen. Bambacus also offered his services should there be any way in which he can facilitate promulation of the regulations.

Both states say they are still enforcing their respective regulations.

Vandals Wreak Havoc On Cars In Oakland Area

A rash of vandalism that took the form of smashed windows in parked automobiles in the Oakland area is currently being investigated by the Garrett County Sheriff's Department. Eight such cases have been reported this past week.

James E. Holland reported that someone broke the driver's door glass on his 1978 Oldsmobile while it was parked on the Zeddock Miller Road on August 14.

Norma J. Fike, Oakland, reported that the rear cab window of her 1978 Ford pickup had been shattered on August 14. Damage is set at $100.

Rebecca Lee Knox, Oakland, reported that the window on the driver's side of her vehicle had been broken while it was parked on Fifth Street on August 19. Total damage was $150.

Eva Mae Coddington, Mt. Lake Park, also reported a broken window on the driver's side of her 1978 Plymouth Horizon on August 19.

Christopher C. Feller, Oakland, reported that the window on the driver's side of his 1975 Chevy Nova had been broken while it was parked on Ninth Street in Oakland. Estimated damage is $100.

Brenda Davis, Oakland, reported that a vehicle belonging to Benjamin Franklin Shaffer, Deer Park, which was parked in front of her residence on Fifth Street had a window broken on the driver's side. The incident occurred on Saturday.

Joseph E. Mayne, Oakland, reported that someone had shattered the window on the driver's side of his vehicle while it was parked at the intersection of Broadford Road and Memorial Drive. Damage is set at $100.

George D. Welling, Mt. Lake Park, also reported that the driver's door window on his vehicle had been shattered on August 13. Damages totalled $100.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department is continuing the investigation into all of these incidents.

In other department reports, William Railey of Railey Dimension Mills stated that someone had stolen a 1983 Dodge pickup from his place of business on August 14. The vehicle did not display registration tags. On August 15, Dennis Stahl, an employee of Railey's found the missing vehicle in a wooded area near the mill.

On Saturday, Railey reported that his vehicle had been totally destroyed by fire while it was parked on the Shady Dell Road.

Paul Edgar Wilhelm, Swanton, reported that sometime on Saturday someone pried open the door of a metal cabinet in his garage and took two coffee jars full of money. One jar contained $96 in quarters and the other $10 in pennies.

Charles Albert Overton, Crellin, filed a report stating that on Saturday evening he was awakened by some noise outside his home. Upon investigating Overton found two men standing by his 1975 Chevy Blazer. He chased the men but they eluded him. When he inspected his vehicle he found that they had taken an AM/FM cassette stereo, an Interstate Electric Supply business check and a blue windbreaker with VEPCO printed on it.

The Sheriff's Department is continuing its investigation.

Local 1829 Ends One-Day Walkout

Striking miners ended a one-day walkout Wednesday morning at Laural Run Mines near Mt. Storm, W. Va. Mine superintendent John Ely said the men were in disagreement with an outside contractor laying track.

The strike began with the 7 a.m. shift Tuesday, and miners of United Mine Workers, Local 1829 met later that day in Thomas, W. Va. for further discussion and voted to return to work. Miners showed up for work at 7 a.m. Wednesday, Ely said.

The disagreement was over work being done by an outside contracting firm, Moreland Sidetrack, Paw Paw, W. Va.

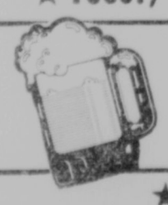
Hughes Reappoints Bambacus To Fire, Rescue Task Force

State Senator John N. Bambacus has announced that Governor Harry Hughes has asked him to serve another year on the Task Force for State Support for Volunteer Fire, Rescue and Ambulance Companies.

The governor, in re-authorizing the Task Force for a second year, acknowledged the accomplishments of the panel in addressing a number of difficult issues, while at the same time indicating that more work remains to be done. Senator Bambacus stated that he has accepted the appointment "with enthusiasm."

"Legislation embodying the Task Force's recommendation to make the Emergency Assistance Trust Fund (EATF) a permanent program was passed by the General Assembly during the last session," Bambacus recalled. "However, the Fundaddresses only a limited part of the overall equipment and facility needs of the volunteer companies, and I am pleased to know that the governor is committed to proceeding with a comprehensive State fire protection aid program."

Bambacus further commented on the role played by several volunteer companies during the recent flood emergency in Allegany County. "Once again, we have witnessed the commitment and dedication of our fire and rescue services in responding so well to community needs. We owe them more than a debt of gratitude—we owe them our financial support as well," the senator pointed out.



In his charge to the Task Force, Governor Hughes asked for legislation that provides for an equitable aid formula that maximizes local effort, an administrative framework for distributing funds, a description of eligible items for expenditures, and oversight or accountability provisions.

Tractor Pulling Winners Listed

Andy Mason was the highest money winner at the Garrett County fair tractor pulling contest last week, while Jeremy Martin was awarded a $100 savings bond during the event which did not end until the wee hours of Wednesday morning.

The savings bond was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Gary Broadwater and family in memory of their late son, Richard, who competed in the 7,000 pound class last summer. The Broadwaters requested that the bond go to an entrant under the age of 16 in the 7,000 pound class.

A total of 151 pulls were counted by Charles Mason, superintendent of the event, with approximately 30 tractors in competition. Pulling began Tuesday afternoon with the lightweights and was not over until about 4:30 a.m. Wednesday. Approximately 1,000 spectators stayed until the end, Mason noted.

The fair association purchased a sled this past summer and another pull is scheduled during Autumn Glory Week.

Zoning Board Denies Bennett Request

An application for a special exception permit for Mary Naylor Bennett to install a mobile home on her property along Broadford Raod was denied by the Mt. Lake Park Board of Zoning Appeals last Thursday.

Ms. Bennett requested permission to temporarily place a mobile home on the property to prevent squatters from using the six-acre tract.

A spokesman for the zoning board said this morning that because of nebulous plans on the size of the mobile home and duration of its placement, and because no squatters have been seen on the propety, the board denied the request. Several neighbors expressed opposition to placement of the mobile home but offered to patrol the property to prevent misuse.

Two of the three zoning board members voted against the proposal and the third abstained. Members are Dan Elmlinger, Charlotte Griffith andBill Clary.

The first rhubarb plants in America were shipped in 1770 from Benjamin Franklin in England to John Bartram in Philadelphia.

A Favorable Ruling...

The Maryland Court of Appeals, the state's highest court, ruled this week by a vote of 6-1 that Maryland State Police roadblocks designed to detect and deter drunken drivers are legal and are only a minimal intrusion on individual freedoms.

Although we admit that the argument against these surprise roadblocks has its merits, we are pleased with the court's ruling on this matter.

Opponents of the roadblocks believe that such activity of the police is in violation of the Fourth Amendment, which prohibits unreasonable searches. They are of the opinion that there are other less intrusive means of removing drunk drivers from our roadways and the roadblocks have yielded a relatively small number of arrests. In the 20 months since the roadblocks were initiated, 22,203 vehicles have been stopped at 52 checkpoints and there have been only 161 drunken driving arrests.

However, we believe that the real value of the roadblock lies not with the arrest results, but with its preventative characteristics. It is impossible to determine how many drunk individuals have refrained from driving knowing that they may be stopped at one of the roadblocks.

As for violation of the Fourth Amendment, we believe that there is no violation because there are no searches conducted at the checkpoints. In response to the question of inconvenience, we maintain that every citizen should willingly accept a little inconvenience for such a worthy cause, the protection of our citizens against the number one killer on our highways.

Jean Heald, president of the Maryland chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD) stated that the checkpoints are no more of an intrusion than the checkpoints one must pass through when about to board a commercial airline. We agree.

Maryland has been labled as one of the four toughest states against drunk drivers and we are proud of that designation. Everytime an innocent life is lost because of a drunk driver behind the wheel, it is one unnecessary tragedy too many.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

To the one who wrote about the vagabonds on the streets in Oakland:

I have lived in or around Oakland since 1941 and I have never seen such a scene as you describe in Oakland.

If you treat even a drunk with respect, he will treat you the same. Has anyone ever stopped and talked with them and helped them get a job or ask them to go to church? After all, they are human and they are God's people and someday, who knows, they might be in a position to help you.

As you know it says in the Bible the first shall be last and the last shall be first. They are down and out now, but who knows, you may be down and out tomorrow.

In God's Love
Ruth Lloyd

To the Editor:

As a parent, I would like to express my appreciation to the Garrett County Fair Board for choosing Gambill Amusements to provide games and rides at this year's Fair.

Unlike previous years, the operators of these rides and games were courteous, friendly and extremely helpful. An example of this was evident when my mother took both my nine-month old and three year old on the merry-go-round. Knowing that she had small children to watch on the ride, the operator stood next to my children to help if needed throughout the ride. In previous years the operators took the tickets, let the children fend for themselves and sat on the railings the entire time. This year, not only were they helping children in and out of rides (which in itself must be quite monotonous after awhile), but they did so with smiles and friendly joking with the kids.

This company and its employees conducted themselves in a professional manner which extended even to their neat appearance. I sincerely hope they will be asked to return in future years.

Thank you,
Dawn Ashby
Accident

Dear Ms Ashby,

We also noted that they did not charge adults who held their children on the horses of the merry-go-round. Such was not the case in previous years.

To the Editor:

The U.S.A. took a giant step backwards in controlling violent crime when the death penalty was abolished. Now, capitol punishment is making a comeback, but slowly, compared to a race; a turtle would be a sure winner.

There is a point to be made here in the state versus Richard Tichnell for murder. The fact that Tichnell is a cold-blooded, ruthless killer was demonstrated very clearly by the mindless brutal murder of Officer Livengood, who put his life on the line for a safer society. From that day right up to now the criminal coddlers have been going full blast with Tichnell on a merry-go-round of trials and retrials, court after court, appeals and more appeals, loopholes and technicalities. The last technicality is one of the weirdest that ever got in the books. Some official forgot to keep his mouth shut about the execution date and that stopped the legal process dead in its tracks.

Maybe someone paid him to forget to keep his mouth shut. Maybe Tichnell will die of old age yet. The governor of Maryland might decide to commute his sentence to life behind bars, which usually means back on the street sooner or later to do his thing.

It has been said that the death penalty is a cruel and unusual punishment. But that statement is no comparison to the brutal, degrading and agonizing death that Stephanie Roper was forced to endure as life slowly ebbed out of her body and her young and innocent heart finally stopped beating forever.

Harlan Miller

To the Editor:

I wonder how many of your readers know the true meaning of a caretaker? Caretaker in my dictionary is: one who looks after and has charge of a person or thing.

Now in my opinion we have carelesstaker at the Fairview Cemetery.

This isn't the first time, but this time it hasn't been three months since Memorial Day, and every artificial flower (except for one bunch encased in glass) has been removed and thrown over the hill, even the marker sprays and the flowers in the marker vases. Those were in the way of caring or mowing the grass.

The last token of love we can show is placing flowers on the graves, be they live or artificial.

I feel there are several folks not aware of the removal of their flower arrangements.

If this is the way our graves are going to be cared for, especially considering the cost of flowers, I'd say leave the flowers there; it will be taken care of and made attractive and done so with love and affection, not for money.

We place arrangements on our loved ones graves more than once a year, as I notice some other folks do too.

If you, the reader, are a caretaker of any cemetery, please don't be a carelesstaker. Remember we are all born to die. How do you want cared for?

Very concerned,
Shirley Harsh
Aurora, W.Va.

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to Name Withheld By Request concerning the vagabonds roaming around the streets.

I would like to say those poor rejected souls are not bums; they are souls that need someone to love them. They are what they are because of people like you and others that are so quick to judge them.

The Bible says "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." I am saying this in love, God loves a crow just as much as a dove. So instead of cutting them down, give them a loving hand, help feed them, give them clothing, help find them suitable living quarters.

The T-shirt idea is a good one; at least they would feel wanted and useful. If you would look at their past, you would probably find out they are more of a citizen then you. It will take more than a soap dish to clean your condemning heart.

So don't be so quick to judge, because one day it could be you in their place. Show them love, they need it.

Tex Lloyd and
Rev. Glenn E. Dumire

To the Editor:

At a recent zoning hearing the citizens on our street had a chance to voice our concerns over proposed changes in the zoning of a property on our street. A request had been made to change this property from residential to commercial. Twenty one of twenty-three residences were represented either by petition or in person. We stood together as friends and neighbors.

My thanks to the Zoning Commission, the Mayor and Council of the town of Friendsville, on their decision resulting from that hearing. Democracy is not dead in our town. Elected officials do listen and hear the voice of the people. These officials give endless hours attending meetings and doing the menial jobs that must be done to keep the town functioning. This is time taken from their families and in many instances their place of employment.

I am proud to be an American and I am also proud I live in Friendsville. I do not live here because I have to but because it is my town and I love it. My thanks again to all those who gave us their support. It showed you care.

Sincerely,
Mary Friend

To the Editor:

This letter is addressed to you, Mr. Drunk Driver; I'm wondering if you remembered the next morning what you had done! Do you remember wrecking into my car? And if you do, do you remember speeding off after I asked you for your insurance card and suggested that we call the police? Do you remember the obscenity you shouted at me as you gassed your car and squealed away?

I want you to know that you really messed up my 1984 Dodge Charger, to the tune of $1,000! I thank God I'm still alive! You're lucky this time! I called the police and they said because I didn't get your license plate number in the 10 seconds you stopped, then there was absolutely nothing they could do about it!

I guess you're feeling pretty good about the whole thing. Did you laugh about it the next day? Was it a big joke?

Believe me when I say I will be looking for your car as I drive through Lonaconing and Midland in the future! How many blue bottom white top cars can there be that are all smashed up with my black paint all over them?

You really make me sick! You could have killed me! Let me lay that one on your carefree, nonchalant conscience!

To anyone who might have seen such a car, please contact the state police or me at 334-8646.

Thank you,
Lisa Frazee

Accident Mayor Takes Issue With Mt. Lake Park Tax Statements

A Mt. Lake Park council member's remarks about a tax differential have sparked off a reply by Accident's mayor recently.

Mt. Lake Park, which is the only town in this county to seek a tax differential, claims a situation of double taxation when citizens are taxed for some of the same services county government provides. In a recent newspaper column by Margo Vandiver for that town, Mrs. Vandiver concluded her remarks by saying "Why aren't other towns in Garrett County more willing to do their homework and save tax dollars for their residents?"

In a lengthy letter addressed to Mt. Lake Park Mayor Russell Alexander, with copies sent to the county commissioners, Sen. John Bambacus, Del. George Edwards, Circuit Rider, Wendell Keaton, and to officials of the towns of Oakland, Friendsville, Loch Lynn, Grantsville, Deer Park and Kitzmiller, Mayor Wayne Fratz of Accident outlined the steps taken by his town in deciding against the tax differential.

Saying that the town normally does not respond to published newspaper articles but decided in this particular instance that a response was necessary, Mayor Fratz detailed the history of House Bill 321 and Senate Bill 277 on the tax differential approved by the Maryland General Assembly in 1983. Seven counties including Garrett are covered by the legislation after 16 exempted themselves.

In answer to Mrs. Vandiver's final statement, Accident's mayor said "We believe that we are saving tax dollars for our residents . . . We did our homework and determined that the county is providing the residents of our town far more in services than we are able to justify in applying for a tax differential."

He went on to cite a partial listing of the obvious services the taxpayers receive from county government, such as police protection by the sheriff's department; fire protection, for which the county collects a five-cent tax for distribution to the volunteer fire companies; planning, through staff assistance to update the town's plan and consultation any time needed; staff services for all zoning matters and Program Open Space matters.

The county roads department provides road repairs and snow removal for the Accident-Bittinger Road and Accident-Friendsville Road within the municipal limits of the town. In addition, the town received $19,230 in highway user revenue.

Also, the service of the county's animal control officer and animal shelter are available to the town.

The letter also stated that the circuit rider program is supported by a cash contribution from the county and by in-kind contributions of office space and clerical staff. Even though Accident joined Loch Lynn this year in not participating in the program, the program remains available to any municipality which chooses to participate.

In a concluding paragraph Fratz says "It does not take much homework, rather basic logic, to determine that the taxpayers of Accident currently receive far more services from county government than could ever be offset by a tax differential or rebate. Consequently we can find no argument with the county's position that should a town pursue a tax differential, then they in turn are obligated to pay for any special services the county is providing to that municipality."

Mt. Lake Park had previously requested a .15 cent tax differential (bringing the town rate to $2.68 per $100) from the county commissioners but were denied when the commissioners went along with a decision by Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer that the differential would not go into effect until July 1985.

MURDERING MICE
By Pam Ashby

Every winter my family unwittingly entertains a new family of mice. When the snow begins to fly my husband purchases two or three mousetraps and goes through the ritual of smearing them with peanut butter, setting the snare and carefully placing them in strategic corners of the house.

Unfortunately (for me), one winter my husband was working nights and I found myself keeper of the mousetraps.

After finding evidence of a new mouse family in my silverware drawer, my tea towel drawer and my bread drawer, I bravely set about the task of manning the mousetraps. (No pun intended)

Having acquired three broken fingers in the process, I placed the traps in strategic corners and went to bed secure in the knowledge that those cruel traps would do their evil deeds. My husband would discard the corpses in the morning.

CLACK! I eyed the clock. Three a.m. "What was that rustling and squeaking under the kitchen sink? Please don't let it be a mouse." It was a mouse.

I forced myself to trek down the hall to the kitchen where I opened the cupboard door and stared in horror and disbelief at a mouse caught across his back in the menacing trap.

He looked up at me those tiny brown eyes as if to say, "Please help me. Kill me swiftly so I won't have to suffer any longer."

What else could I do? I figured if I bopped him on the head it would kill him instantly. The only weapon I could find was a flyswatter.

Gritting my teeth, I swatted him right on the head. He was still alive. So again and again and again I smacked him on the head. Ten minutes later he was dead. Mustering all the courage I had, I scooped him into the dust pan and took him outside for a proper burial in the trash can.

I had a difficult time falling asleep again, but somehow I knew I done the right thing. I couldn't have let the poor little creature suffer. Could I?

To this day, though, I can't understand why my husband, upon hearing of my humane act, shook his head and said, "Honey, if I ever become terminally ill please let me suffer."

Can you imagine that?

"BITS AND PIECES"
by William C. Hogan

Recently, Dr. George Gallop, one of the nation's leading pollsters, said that his research has shown "a great misunderstanding on the part of the public towards education." He said this was the case partly because of the mass media's failure to regularly report the complex issues surrounding education.

Gallop criticized the media for emphasizing school problems and for not adequately reporting on what schools are doing to promote quality education.

"The more people know about schools, the more supportive and approving they are," stated Gallop.

"No Respect"

Another survey nationwide, conducted by Louis Harris and Associates, shows that teachers overwhelmingly support reforms in education, although they feel their profession suffers from a lack of respect and financial support.

The survey showed that far from resisting change, teachers want to be at the forefront of improvement in public education, even though some of the changes will "no doubt require sacrifices and extra effort from the teachers themselves."

The poll concluded that teachers see real and positive results from a whole range of proposed changes in the education system, including training and evaluation of teachers, and the ultimate accountability of teachers themselves.

In other areas, the poll showed that a majority of teachers surveyed feel they are not respected in today's society, and a majority said they would not advise a young person to pursue a career in teaching. Almost two-thirds of those polled said teaching does not allow them to earn a decent salary.

The poll also showed that 95 percent of those surveyed supported a much higher priority for school discipline and safety and 91 percent favored tightening graduation requirements to include more academic subjects. Those polled also favored minimum competency testing and more homework for students; they opposed a longer school day or year and tuition tax credits.

One of the controversial findings of the poll was that a majority of those surveyed "would welcome periodic retesting of teachers in their own subject areas."

THE HORSE PULL, a favorite event of many fairgoers each year, provided its usual quota of thrills as teams of draft horses weighing about two tons pitted their strength against a sledge loaded with cement blocks. The winning team, pictured below, named Chief and Doc, owned by Harry Faucett, Friendsville, pulled 8,500 pounds to win the event. Mr. Faucett, said that his team, which consists of five and six-year old geldings, has never competed in a horse pull before. Their attempts to move the sledge in the final moments of competition caused one horse to twist and pull loose one of his heavy iron shoes.

Mt. Lake Park Reviews Yough Plan, Permits

The Upper Youghiogheny Facilities Plan, a permit from the State Highway Administration, and a building being erected without necessary permits were all part of the discussion during the August 9 meeting of the mayor and council of Mt. Lake Park.

The building under construction in the floodplain area without permits from the Water Resources Administration and a permit for a sewer tap was discussed at length. The building is owned by Charles Tressler.

The town clerk was instructed to write a letter to Tressler, who is a resident of Loch Lynn, and inform him of the necessary permits, but no response has yet been received from the property owner.

A building permit for John Justice to construct a home on B Street was approved.

The mayor and council discussed a letter from Earl Quance, program administrator for construction grants for the state Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, outlining 48 points which must be addressed in the Upper Yough Facilities Plan before the plan can gain state approval.

The town in turn had sent a letter to the county Sanitary Commission listing eight items which the town officials feel must be answered satisfactorily before the town will approve the facilities plan.

The stipulations range from the concept that new areas to be sewered be in a separate sanitary district to the requirement that the town will absorb absolutely no cost for sewer lines in these areas and the state must notify the town that the moratorium in Mt. Lake will be eliminated once the Trout Run plant is updated.

A permit was received from the State Highway Administration to cross old State Route 135 to install sewer lines under the rehabilitation project.

The next meeting will be September 13.

designed for treatment of 50,000 gallons per day. The rehabilitation will halt infiltration and inflow through old, leaky lines and the town is hopeful that at some future time the treatment plant can also be updated.

The street blacktopping project has been put on hold until the sewer project is complete, Mayor Holliday noted

The next meeting of the council will be Tuesday, September 4, due to the Labor Day holiday. The council meeting begins at 7 p.m. in the council room.

Talk Of The Towns

Grantsville Gets Project Updates

The Grantsville mayor and council heard a complete update on the town's sewer rehabilitation project at Monday night's meeting with the contracting and inspection firm representatives.

Progress is basically on schedule, according to Mayor Fred Holliday. Trimble Construction has until next June to complete the rehabilitation. Spokesman for the firm Monday was Bob Bronder, who told the town officials that work will be complete at the lower end of town in the near future, and the firm will soon begin to make sewer hookups in that area.

A dust problem encountered on roadways has been solved by the use of calcium, according to Bronder.

Andrew Miller is responsible for inspection of the system for the town.

The heavy rains encountered earlier this month pointed up the need for the rehabilitation, when the line flowmeter showed 3,000,000 gallons flowing to the treatment plant, which is

Bloodmobile To Visit Grantsville Friday, Aug. 30

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will visit the Grantsville Fire Hall from noon to 6 p.m. on Friday, August 30.

"We need everyone who can donate to do so at this visit," Mrs. Lela Bender, Garrett County Chapter blood services co-chairman, explained. "Having an adequate blood supply over the Labor Day weekend is crucial," she stated. "Hospitals must be prepared in case of accidents and emergencies."

The Johnstown Region of the Red Cross, of which the Garrett County Chapter is a participating member, must collect at least 400 units of blood each weekday to meet the needs of patients in 54 hospitals in 28 counties in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio and West Virginia. The goal for the August 30 visit is 140 units.

"Anyone from the age of 17 to 70 who weighs at least 110 pounds and is in generally good health can donate blood every 56 days up to five times in a 12-month period," Mrs. Bender noted.

She added that donors of all types are needed. "The region has been in a 'stage-four'—potentially serious—blood shortage for much of the summer. With summer vacations and school breaks, it's always difficult to get enough donors to meet the need."

Mrs. Bender explained that giving blood takes less than an hour from resgistration to canteen. She added that the actual donation time is six to ten minutes.

"Remember," she said, "patients' blood needs never take a vacation. Blood is needed every day of the year. So please give blood on August 30, It's a breeze!"

Second Annual Triathlon Set For Saturday

Seventy-six men and women are registered to test their strength and will against each other and the rugged Garrett County terrain when the Deep Creek Lake Pacers Running Club, Inc., Lohr Distributing and Miller Brewing present their second annual Miller Beer—Western Maryland Triathlon this Saturday, August 25, at McHenry.

The contest, a challenge of all-around strength and versatility, will begin in the parking lot of Wisp Ski Area at 10 a.m. From there, participants will proceed to McHenry Cove of Deep Creek Lake where they will swim ½ mile across the water. Once across, they will mount their bicycles and proceed on a 13-mile course that will take them on Deep Creek Drive, Rock Lodge Road, Mosser Road and back to the Wisp. The route is rolling to hilly, and promises to be the longest part of the race.

After completing the ride, the racers will return to the Wisp parking lot for a three-mile run up and down Marsh Mountain, home of Wisp Ski Area, Maryland's largest ski resort. The run features some steep grades and loose footings. It is during this part of the test runners will find out if they have paced themselves well enough through the previous sections and have the strength to finish the race, according to race officials.

The race course will be patrolled and medical personnel will be on hand.

Spectators are welcome.

Plans Finalized For Regional Bass Tourney

The Deep Creek Lake/Garrett County area is prepared to host the Eastern Division Championship of the Bass Anglers Sportsmen Society (BASS), slated for August 25 - September 1, at Deep Creek Lake. The event is sponsored by the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council.

Winners of qualifying tournaments in 11 surrounding states are expected to be traveling to Garrett County this week to compete for cash and prizes and the grand prize, the opportunity to compete in the National Bassmasters Classic to be held at Pine Bluff, Arkansas, later this year.

More than 275 persons are expected to be part of the tournament this year, including 96 participants, their families and BASS officials.

The participants will rise each morning at 4:30 for breakfast and be on the lake beginning at 6:30 a.m. For later rising spectators, the days' catches will be weighed at Crystal Waters Marina beginning at 3:15 p.m. throughout the competition.

Families and others with the tournament will be treated to a full week's worth of sightseeing and activities in Garrett County.

Garrett County's own William Deckman, Deep Creek Lake, will compete as a member of the Maryland delegation. Deckman, a member of the Garrett Bassers Association, qualified for the tournament during the Maryland BASS Federation Tournament held on Deep Creek Lake this past May. He is the first local angler to advance in the Bassmaster tournament.

For more information about this event, interested persons should call the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council at 334-3888.

Oakland To Host Mt. Savage; Eyes Playoff Position

Oakland will host Mt. Savage this Sunday afternoon at the Southern High School diamond and attempt to move into fourth place in the Pen-Mar Baseball League standings. The doubleheader will get underway at 2 p.m.

The recent rainy weather and the flood which devastated Hyndman forced a number of schedule changes in the League, as well as a change in the league playoff situation. Previously, there was to be a regular tournament involving all nine teams in the league, plus a championship tourney involving only the top four teams. The championship tournament will be played as planned, however the regular league tournament will now involve only the bottom five teams. Both events will be played the weekend of September 8-9.

Oakland, which currently holds a 16-12 record, will attempt to replace the present fourth place team, Moorefield, which has an 18-10 record and faces some make-up games, including a doubleheader with Tri-Towns. After the pair of games with Mt. Savage on Sunday, Oakland is tentatively slated to face Hyndman on September 3 in a 2 p.m. doubleheader.

Offensive leaders for Oakland include Francis Mouse, who is batting .472 and leads the team in hits (42), doubles, home runs and RBIs; Tim Mouse, who is hitting .387; Phil Caruso, .358; and Lawrence Nesselrodt, .333 and leading in at bats, walks and runs scored. Ed Wildesen leads Oakland in triples.

Defensively, former Southern High standout Mark Rodeheaver is sporting a 4-0 record from the mound.

hunters, and other groups as possible interested parties.

"In my opinion, the property owners we appointed are as pro-environment as you can get," Gregg added. "A great disservice has been done, and we are trying to rectify it as best we can. It is our intent to serve our constituency, and many of the people involved feel that this is county government's only voice in the Yough issue."

Senate Bill 285, which was passed in the state legislature this spring, calls for the appointment of membership to the board by DNR, "with the advice and consent of the Board of County Commissioners."

The commissioners and Dr. Brown agreed on the appointment of ten individuals, including three contiguous landowners, Hazel Duvall, Donald P. Sebold, and Mary Jane Yoder. Non-contiguous landowners accepted by both parties included Melvin Dunithan, Deborah Pepper, Brison Thomas, and Robert Thomas. Dr. Brown and the commissioners also agreed on the two members from the County Soil Coservation District, John E. Hinebaugh and Shaun Sanders and on the appointment of Commissioner Elwood Groves to represent the local governing body.

Lake Business

lation in turn would have a significant effect on the county. The lake is essentially the tax base for the county," Scofield concluded.

Both spokesmen for the group also have problems with the non-conforming use clause which they say would, in five years, eliminate the rights of property owners with frontage of less than 100 feet to have docks. Sisler wants to see this and other types of non-conforming use turned into a "grandfather clause" which would allow existing lots to maintain dock privileges and boats currently in use to remain in use.

Sisler said that "This whole thing comes off to me as an attempt by DNR and the lake advisory board, with some very hard work, to bring the lake into line ten to fifteen years from now. With the meeting slated Sunday, there is not enough time for the business committee to come into the plan with their suggestions."

Both Sisler and Scofield said they feel all the previous input had been ignored as the advisory board put together the proposal. The business community around the lake was represented on the advisory committee by Del Carpenter, Helmuth Heise and Bob Railey. The latter two were present Monday to help provide clarification of some points in the proposed regulations.

Drivers Charged

W.Va.

Martin was reportedly eastbound on Route 48 when he lost control of his truck striking the Bear Creek Bridge. He then veered the truck striking the median strip guardrails at which time the truck came to rest on its left side. Martin was apparently pinned in the vehicle for some time.

Tfc. Dale Williams is continuing his investigation and charges are pending.

Mystery surrounds yet another vehicular accident which occurred on Saturday afternoon. The Maryland State Police reported that Philip H. Williams, 14, Towson, Md. who was operating a Honda four-wheeler on the shoreline of Deep Creek Lake near Harvey's Peninsula, attempted to climb a steep hill causing the vehicle to overturn. The vehicle landed on Williams and a passenger, Stephen J. Zook. The Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad transported Williams to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where he was listed in satisfactory condition and then reportedly taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by Medevac but that facility can only confirm after three phone calls that a Phil Williams, aged 4, was treated and released there on Saturday afternoon.

A Cumberland newspaper reported that a Philip H. Williams, aged 24, was listed in satisfactory condition at Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a four-wheeler accident Saturday afternoon and then transported by Medevac to Cumberland Memorial Hospital.

Apparently, Philip H. Williams, aged ?, is in good condition.

Four Projects

Home Administration, Follweiller said this morning.

The Kitzmiller and Bloomington projects are scheduled to come before the state Board of Public Works August 26 for final approval.

Shallmar had received 260 out of a possible 270 points, based on project need, financial capability, previous efforts to rectify the problem, and small community preference.

Not appearing within the fundable range were Oakland, ranked 23rd and Friendsville ranked 25th.

The priority list will remain effective until July 5, 1985.

Those projects above the cut-off line will immediately be considered for funding. Others will be considered, by priority ranking, if funds become available, according to Dane S. Bauer, program administrator for the health department's inspection and compliance division program.

Bauer said "The project funding cut-off line provides an estimate of which projects will be funded under the program. Those projects above the line are most likely to receive funding. The line was established based upon applicants' requests for funding and the $5 million appropriation list, less a 20 percent reserve commitment.

"The reserve commitment may be increased and will be used to cover cost increases, unanticipated contract modifications and emergency projects."

Officials also emphasized that appearance on the fundable list does not constitute a commitment for funding.

Local officials are presently developing necessary paperwork to secure funding commitment and securing remaining funds since no projects will be totally funded by the state through the Water Supply Financing Program.

Preston Board Offers Services To Handicapped

The Preston County Board of Education will offer special education programs and related services in excess of 180 days per year to severely handicapped students. To qualify for these extended year services three eligible criteria have been established by the Board.

First, students must be considered either severely and profoundly impaired by mental retardation or severely emotionally disturbed.

Second, the students must have self-sufficiency goals as a part of their individual education program. Self-sufficiency has been defined as the areas which will lead to a degree of independence from caretakers in muscular control, toileting, feeding, dressing, physical mobility, personal hygiene, impulse control, basic communication and interaction with peers and/or adults.

Finally, there must be documented evidence of regression in self-sufficiency skills caused by interruption in educational programming and the student's limited capacity to recoup lost skills.

Parents who feel that their child may meet the eligibility criteria should contact the special education department in their local school or contact, in writing, David Temple, Director of Special Education, P.O. Box 566, Kingwood, W.Va. 26537. Placement Advisory Committee meetings will be scheduled for these children after November 1. The placement committee will determine the placement of children in extended year programs.

Farming in Maryland

Queen Criss Reigns Over Fair, Will Seek State Title Sunday

Criss Kepple, newly crowned Garrett County Farm Queen for 1984, reigned over activities at the Fairgrounds in McHenry last week, and also attended Orientation Day Tuesday at the State Fairgrounds in Timonium. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kepple, who own a horse-breeding operation at Route 1, Oakland, and also produce hay and grain. Criss will represent Garrett County in the State Farm Queen contest, scheduled for this Sunday, August 26, at Timonium.

First runner-up, Dove Wassell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wassell, Bittinger, also assisted with activities at the local fairgrounds.

Other contestants were Amy Margroff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Margroff, Accident, and Daina Savage, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Savage, Swanton.

The queen received her crown and a $50.00 check from the Garrett County Farm Bureau, (plus traveling expenses for the year,) and Sarah Conventry Jewelry and a jewelry box from Norma Frazee, Sarah Conventry Jewelry Demonstrator, from Friendsville. The queen was presented an arm bouquet of red roses from Flowers by Webers of Oakland, and a free portrait from Crabtree Photography. Her banners were made and donated by Webers of Oakland, and the County Extension Service. Corsages for all of the contestants and those participating in the program were donated by Arts 'n Crafts of Oakland and the Farm Bureau. Each of the other three contestants was given a $20.00 check from Farm Bureau and a gift certificate for Sarah Conventry Jewelry from Norma Frazee.

Following welcoming remarks by Clark Kolb, State Farm Bureau Director, guidelines for the contest were presented by Donna Glotfelty, state Director and Garrett County Women's Committee Chairman, who later introduced the contestants. Mrs. Glotfety also publicly thanked Butch and Carolyn Helbig's Carpet Shoppe for donating carpet for the stage at the Fairgrounds, the Fair Board for improved stage lighting, and Julie Uphold for designing the programs. Gifts of appreciation were presented to Dot Leuba, who has coordinated the contests for many years, and to Lillian Reckner, who has provided music for many contests in the past.

Valerie Loughrie Frazee, 1976 Garrett County Farm Queen and 1st Runner-up in the Maryland Farm Queen Contest, was mistress of ceremonies for the Sunday evening contest, and interviewed the contestants on stage. Each girl had already been interviewed personally by the judges, allowing time to answer questions about herself, her community and school activities, farm and home responsibilities, etc.

Judges were Mrs. Barbara Holloway, wife of Maryland Farm Bureau president, Henry Holloway, of Darlington in Harford County; Hilda Miltenberger, wife of Allegany County Farm Bureau President, Jack Miltenberger; and Donald Mallow, owner of Mallow Landscaping of Cumberland, and a member of Allegany County Farm Bureau. Karen Hamilton, 1983 Farm Queen, presented each of them with a gift of appreciation from the local Farm Bureau organization.

Henry Holloway was guest speaker for the evening while the judges were making their final decision. He discussed the 1985 Farm Bill, and urged members to keep in close contact with legislators on issues affecting agriculture in this part of the State.

Karen Hamilton gave farewell remarks, stating that she has "had a great year representing Garrett County Farm Bureau", and challenged the contestants to "take advantage of every opportunity to gain valuable experience."

Programs were distributed by Christy Fratz, 1982 Farm Queen, and Johnna Jones, Farm Queen for 1980. All former Farm Queens were asked to stand and be recognized. Prior to the contest Sunday evening, a covered-dish dinner was served at the Lion's Club Pavilion at the Fairgrounds for the speaker, judges, contest committee, participants in the program, Farm Bureau officials, and a few guests.

Wanda Guard served as Contest Chairman, assisted by Farm Bureau Directors, Carol Umbel, Betty Guard and Debbie Stemple.

Queen Criss and her court participated in the Annual Parade Thursday evening at the local Fairgrounds and plan to join the Autumn Glory parade in Oakland in October.

Farm Bureau T-shirts are still available at $5.00 each, and members and other interested persons are asked to contact Donna Glotfelty at 245-4345 to purchase the shirts or receive more information.

Members are also being reminded to support the local bloodmobile when it visits the Oakland and Grantsville areas soon, to register and vote in the fall presidential election, and to submit names for the local Farm Bureau ballot.

Late Acreage Reports Will Be Accepted

Olin S. Davis, Jr., Chairman of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said some farmers in Maryland have not filed a crop report this year. Although, July 15 was the final day for farmers to report their 1984 planted acres of feed grains, farmers are encouraged to file late reports because the 1984 reported acres will be used to determine the 1985 base acreage.

"Late-filed acreage reports will be accepted as long as the farmer pays the cost of verifying the acreage and there is physical evidence of production," Davis said. Late reports are subject to mandatory spot check.

He said farmers who did not plant program crops this year should submit a "zero" report to protect their base and future program eligibility.

ASCS uses crop reports to determine program compliance and to document crop acreage bases. Before program participants receive price support loans, deficiency payments and other benefits, they are required to report crops and acreages planted, the uses to be made of these crops, and cropland acres to be devoted to the acreage conservation reserve.

Friend's Aware Residents Visit Ganoe Dairy Farm

A group from the LaVale Friend's Aware group home and supervisors Benay Hoffman, Libi Williams and son, Richard, toured the El-Gay-Knol Dairy Farm recently as part of Allegany County Farm Bureau's Farm-City Week activities. The Ganoe farm is located approximately five miles west of Frostburg in Garrett County.

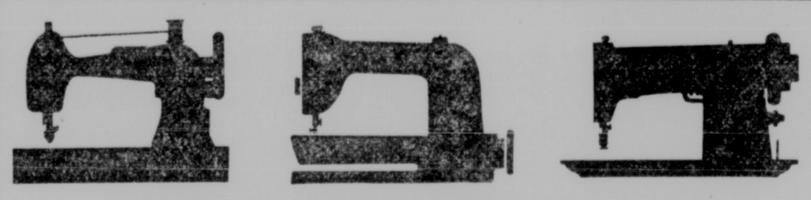
Ernest and Carolyn Ganoe and son, Daniel, operate the 300-acre dairy farm with a milking herd of 150 Holstein Cattle. Mrs. Ganoe is Chairman of the Allegany County Farm Bureau Women's committee.

Mrs. Ganoe welcomed the group and conducted the tour. The members of the group saw the dry cows, helped to feed a newborn calf, visited the milk house, milking parlor and the barn.

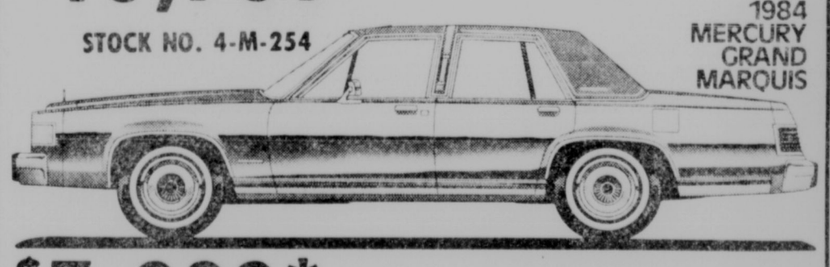
A sample of the feed, given as a daily ration to the dairy cows, was explained by Mrs. Ganoe. The rations consist of dairy grain (pellets), corn silage, haylage, minerals, salt and hay.

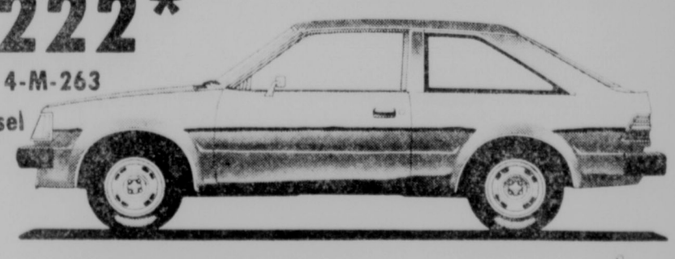
The men were harvesting haylage during the visit and the group saw the alfalfa grass being mowed and then after being chopped by the harvestor into a wagon it was blown into a silo for storage and feeding.

Mrs. Ganoe explained how the different pieces of machinery were used to plant the oats, rye and corn fields.



The group then visited the farm pond where they fed the fish.





Mrs. Ganoe served the group "Sip-Ups", the new UHT milk processed by Dairymen, Inc., ice cream and cake, to complete the day's activities.

Mrs. Ganoe's sister, Avonne, is a resident of the home and is a frequent visitor to the farm. She assisted with the tour.

Mrs. Ganoe invited the women to return and said she would welcome other groups interested in learning more about agriculture to visit their farm.

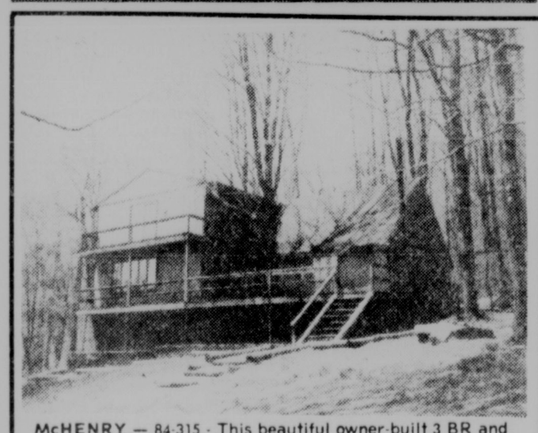
Kimberly received a diamond necklace, a tiara, and a trophy as the state winner. Her father, Francis Grimm, was honored with a trophy when he was selected "Father of the Year" through an essay Kimberly had written and sent to the nationals. Maryland Sells Bonds For Low Bid Of 8.7811%

The Maryland Board of Public Works, consisting of Governor Harry Hughes, State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and State Treasurer William S. James sold $138,990,000 in triple A rated general obligation bonds for a low interest bid of 8.7811% on Wednesday, August 15. The low bid came from a syndicate headed by Citicorp and Chase Manhattan Banks, including First National Bank of Maryland. A total of three bids were received at the Annapolis meeting of the Board.

The triple A rating is the best available and Maryland remains one of only a handful of states in the nation to retain the triple A designation. In awarding the triple A rating Moody's Investors Service said, "Stable and diversified economy generates prosperous resource base and foundation for good credit. Application of sound debt and financial policies further enhance security standing to prime grade."

Merrill Lynch in describing the issue, pointed to Maryland's . . . strong economic performance . . . indicated by rising levels of employment, consistent growth in personal income and increasing retail sales activity . . . "



Proceeds from the bond sale will be used as follows: $64.8 million for general state construction; $24 million for public school construction; and $50.19 million for a variety of state and local projects, including community colleges, water quality projects and state and local jail facilities.

It isn't a very long sentence. As the judge said: "It will give you time to think . . . to make some long-overdue decisions about your life."

But there are better times and places to do our thinking.

This young man and his parents realize today why our churches and synagogues place so much emphasis on early and continuing religious education. Learning of God, of his will and his way, guides our thinking and our growing in the right direction.

Worship and religious training should have priority in your family's life.

WE WILL NOT STOP TALKING ABOUT V.D.

It must seem that everywhere you turn somebody is harping to you about venereal disease and especially gonorrhea. We admit to being an active public pleader on the subject. But frankly its importance is really overwhelming. It can actually effect the whole basic health structure of our country.

We could quote you a whole lot of frightening statistics, but statistics do not seem to impress people to action unless they or someone close to them becomes one. Don't let it happen. Become an activist in a fight where nobody can win and everybody can lose. If anyone you know has a VENEREAL DISEASE urge them to consult a physician.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

CONSEQUENCES
August 26, 1984

Background Scripture:
2 Kings 24 through 25.

Devotional Reading:
Jeremiah 12:8-16.

The tragedy of Judah under Zedekiah doesn't seem all that remote to us. The last days of Judah as recorded in 2 Kings 25 are not all unlike what some of us have witnessed in our own century: a brave defense, ultimately overwhelmed, a city and nation devastated.

For Judah it was no halfway measure. The army was utterly defeated. The king was captured, forced to watch the execution of his sons and then blinded. The Babylonians destroyed the temple, the king's palace and the walls of Jerusalem. And the population was carried into captivity with only a few peasants left to inhabit the once-proud capitol.

WHAT WAS EVIL

What happened to Jerusalem and Judah was no mere accident. Nor was it fate, for the writers of 2 Kings make it clear that all of it could have been avoided if the people had changed their ways. No, it was neither chance nor fate that brought upon them this great disaster. It was, however, a matter of consequences. Judah finally paid the check for its moral and spiritual decline.

Like almost all the kings that had preceded him, Zedekiah "did what was evil in the sight of the Lord" (24:19). The writer of 2 Kings doesn't tell us what that was, but simply "according to all that Jehoiakim had done." In other words, it was more of the same moral sickness that had inflicted Israel almost from its very beginning.

But Judah suffered the final disaster, not just because of an evil and foolish king, but because the people followed him down the road to decline. Under his leadership, they also "did what was evil in the sight of the Lord" and the disaster that followed was simply the consequence of that decay.

INTO EXILE

Life is a series of consequences for choices we have made and courses we have taken. Racial problems in our country today are largely the consequence of slavery. Many of our deepest concerns of today are obviously the consequences of discarded standards that have not been replaced by something better. Drug addiction in our world is a consequence on our culture's growing dependence on chemicals to solve our problems (alcohol, nicotine, barbituates, etc.). And most of our international tensions and dangers are the consequence of societies that have placed material things ahead of spiritual values.

If we poison our atmosphere, if we irreversibly pollute our earth, if we destroy each other in one iridescent moment of nuclear madness, it will not have been either fate or accident. It will be a consequence of what we as a society have done, are doing and seem bent on continuing to do.

Exile was a picnic compared to what faces humanity today.

Let Us Pray . . .

For a renewed sense of spiritual contentment.

Hughes Says Tax Increase Unlikely

Governor Harry Hughes told the Maryland Association of Counties (MACO) August 18 that an improving state economy makes it unlikely that a major tax increase will be needed next year. In his address to the annual MACO summer convention in Ocean City, the governor also called for local help in a state campaign against child abuse and neglect.

"With continued prudence, we have a good chance to avoid any major revenue increases in the next session of the General Assembly while still maintaining existing necessary services to our fellow citizens and even addressing newly emerging problems," Governor Hughes said in remarks prepared for delivery to MACO's annual convention.

He said Maryland's "tradition of stable, prudent financing," the work of the new Department of Employment and Training, increased sales and income tax revenues and an improved general economy are responsible for the brighter outlook.

"Even to a greater degree than throughout the rest of the nation," the governor said, "in Maryland, employment is up and unemployment is down."

The address was the governor's last official act before the start of a two-week vacation at Bethany Beach, Del.

Among possible new initiatives, he cited MACO's recommendations to have the state assume some costs now borne by local governments. He said he hoped to reach agreement on part of a package to modify local financial responsibility for the orphans' courts, boards of elections, circuit courts and state's attorney's offices.

Governor Hughes also asked the local officials to join in the state's effort to address the "myriad problems threatening the safety and future of our children."

"Except for the problem of the threat of nuclear war and survival of the human race itself, no problem is more pressing than this," he said.

The governor cited "disturbing" statistics about increased numbers of missing children, cases of child abuse and sexual assault and the use of children for pornography and prostitution.

"In Maryland . . . reports of suspected child abuse have more than doubled in the last five reporting years and reports of suspected sexual abuse of children have increased by more than 50 percent," Governor Hughes said.

Calling this "a critical moment in our national life," the governor said the solution lies with individuals—parents, teachers and neighbors—as well as government officials.

He noted a campaign begun this week by his Task on Child Abuse and Neglect to increase public awareness of the problem through television announcements, brochures and other literature. The state has set up a hot-line for anyone needing help or wishing to report a case of child abuse.

The governor pointed out that just two days ago the Department of Human Resources created a Child Protection Review Panel. Its members will review the operation of day-care centers, foster homes and residential child-care facilities and will recommend steps to increase the protection of children against abuse.

Governor Hughes also called for prompt investigation of cases of missing children and tightened requirements to ensure reporting of child-abuse cases by the medical community. He also said more attention should be paid to "preventive education and social programs."

He noted that a year ago he asked for MACO's support for the program to save the Chesapeake Bay, and its members responded.

"We have dedicated ourselves to saving Maryland's most precious natural resourse—our Bay," he said.

"In a like manner, and with equal emphasis, we must now rededicate ourselves to the saving of our most precious human resource—our children."

NEW CARE LABELS IN CLOTHING

When buying a garment, if you like most people, you check what kind of care the garment will require. To make the labels as precise and complete as possible, the Federal Trade Commission put some new rules into effect early this year. A general explanation of these rules and an interpretation of terms follows:

•Care labels must state what regular care is needed for the ordinary use of the product.

•All elements of the care of a product must now be dealt with on the care label, including instructions for washing, bleaching, drying, and ironing. Any special instructions must also be included

•If no "Temperature" is mentioned, it is safe to use any setting.

•If no "Ironing" instruction is given, it should not be necessary to iron the product.

•If "Bleach" is not mentioned, any type of bleach may be used, when needed.

•If "No Warnings" are given, no adjustments are needed to the care processes listed on the label.

•Care labels must be visible at the point of purchase. If an item is packaged or folded so that the label is not visible, the information must also appear on the outside of the package or on a hang tag fastened to the product.

•The care label must remain fastened to the item and legible throughout the useful life of the product.

The new rules will help us, as consumers, to make better purchase decisions and to become more effective in maintaining our wardrobes.

Disaster Awareness Week Now Underway

Public Safety and Correctional Services Secretary Frank A. Hall announced this week the kick-off of a statewide campaign designed to better inform citizens of the hazards related to floods and hurricanes and to make citizens aware of a federally sponsored insurance program that could save time and money in getting flood related claims through.

Secretary Hall stated, "The best thing that residents of our state can do is to be prepared. In light of the recent flooding problems that we have had, the need has arisen to make sure that residents know what they can do for themselves before and during water-related emergencies. It may help to save a life."

In a proclamation presented to the State's Emergency Management and Civil Defense Agency, Governor Harry R. Hughes has designated the week of August 19 through August 25 as "Flood, Hurricane, and Flood Insurance Awareness Week." The Emergency Management Agency, in cooperation with the Water Resources Administration and the Federal Emergency Management Agency, is attempting to make the public aware of various types of flood protection measures, including flood-proofing techniques, flood safety procedures, and the availability of flood insurance.

Maryland has been relatively fortunate over the past two decades, Hall said, but floods are responsible for more damage than any other natural disasters that have occurred in this state. While this state usually receives the backlash of hurricanes in the form of tropical storms, the three tropical storms that have hit this region since 1972 have cost taxpayers ten million dollars in public disaster assistance.

Citizens are encouraged by Hall to contact their local emergency management office for details on flooding, flood protection, flood insurance, or hurricane protection information.

Free And Reduced Price Meal Policy Announced

The Garrett County Board of Education Local School Food Authority recently announced its policy for free and reduced price meals for school children unable to pay the full price of meals served in schools under the National School Lunch and/or School Breakfast Programs. The following household size income criteria will be used in determining eligibility:

Column 1 Household Size	Column 2 Free Meals or Free Milk, If Annual Income is Below This Level	Column 3 Reduced Price Meals* If Annual Income Falls Between Column 2 & 3
2	8,736	12,432
3	10,998	15,651
4	13,260	18,870
5	15,522	22,089
6	17,784	25,308
7	20,046	28,527
8	22,308	31,746
EACH ADDITIONAL	+2,262	+3,219

*A reduced price lunch shall be established at 40 cents and a reduced price breakfast at 30 cents.

Children from families whose income is at or below those shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals. Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies of the application are available at the principal's office in each school. Parents must answer all questions on the form. An application which does not contain the following information cannot be processed by the school: (1) the total household income must be listed by the amount received by each household member receiving income and the type of income it is (such as wages, child support, etc.) OR the food stamp case number if the household receives food stamps; (2) names of all household members; (3) social security numbers of all household members 21 years old or older or the word "NONE" for any household member who does not have a social security number; and (4) the signature of an adult household member. If information is missing children in the household cannot be approved for meal benefits. The information provided on the application may be verified at any time during the school year by the school or other officials. Households are required to report increases in household income over $50 per month or $600 per year and decreases in household size. If there is a decrease in household income due to unemployment or other reasons or an increase in family size households should reapply at that time. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility and verifying income.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, it should contact the school before completing the application.

All children are treated the same regardless of ability to pay. In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, national origin, age or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Under the provisions of the policy, the school principal will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent or guardian is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he/she may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If parents wish to make a formal appeal, they may make a request either orally or in writing to Richard G. Buckingham, Assistant in Food Service, Garrett County Board of Education, 40 South Fourth Street, Oakland, Maryland 21550, Telephone 334-8121, Extension 38 for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure. A complete copy of the policy is on file in each school and in the office of the Garrett County Board of Education, Food Service Department, where it may be reviewed by any interested party.

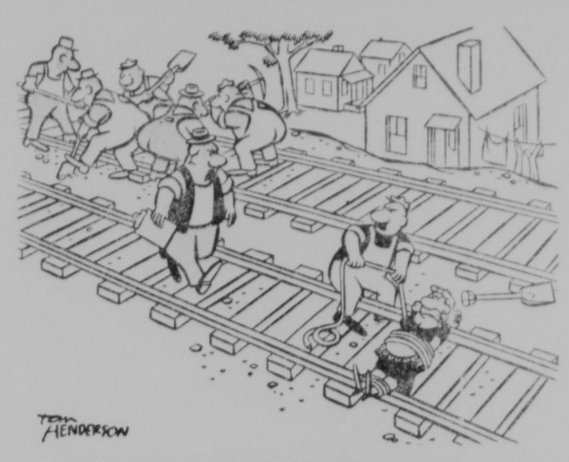
Child Protection Review Panel Created Recently

The appointment of a Child Protection Review Panel has been announced by Frank Farrow, executive director of the Social Services Administration, Maryland Department of Human Resources.

The purpose of the panel will be:

1. to conduct a comprehensive review of all state policies and procedures designed to prevent abuse of children who are receiving care in state-funded day care centers, day care homes, foster homes and residential child care facilities;

2. to recommend a structure for ensuring that any report of abuse in such out-of-home placements will be handled aggressively and consistently throughout the state; and



3. to make recommendations for additional actions which state agencies can take to protect children receiving care in these settings against the possibility of abuse. Such protections could include new policies in the selection and licensing of providers, the training of providers, and the supervision and monitoring of care provided children, as well as preventive education programs for both parents and children.

Membership on the review panel will include representatives from: the Maryland Departments of Education, and Health and Mental Hygiene, as well as DHR; the Governor's Task Force on Child Abuse and Neglect; the Foster Care Review Board; the University of Maryland School of Social Work and Community Planning; the Maryland Committee for Children; the Maryland Association of Residential Facilities for Youth; the Maryland Child Care Association; and the Maryland Family Day Care Association.

"We are confident that the great majority of day care centers, day care homes and foster homes are providing high quality care," Farrow said. "We know for the most part providers are very vigilant in guarding against child abuse, including sexual abuse," he continued. "However, this is an area in which it is not possible to be too careful. We have learned from the experiences of other states that it is important to take the initiative in this area. We believe that it requires a special intensive review of our policies and procedures to ensure that we are doing everything possible to reduce, and hopefully to eliminate, the potential for abuse in any facility in which we place the children entrusted to our care," he added.

Commenting on the appointment of the panel, Ruth Massinga, Maryland Secretary of Human Resources, said, "Creation of this review panel is one more element in the Governor's and this Department's plan to address the problem of child abuse and neglect. We want to take all possible measures, not only to deal with the ever-growing number of reports of abuse, but to put in place activities which will begin to prevent the occurrence of abuse."

Farrow indicated that the special review panel will build on the work that is already in progress within the Department. Over the past year and a half, for example, a special Institutional Abuse Project has developed training for child care workers and a program to involve members of the community as volunteer advocates for children in institutions.

With Columbia's Budget Payment Plan, your gas bill won't change with the seasons.
You can take the surprises out of winter heat bills with the Columbia Gas Budget Payment Plan. It averages your monthly natural gas bills over 12 months, so you pay a manageable amount each month.
It's easy to get on the plan, too. Simply pay the "Budget" amount on your August bill. There's no extra charge, and your meter will be read as usual. Each month's bill will continue to show the exact amount of gas used, along with your budget amount. A review in February determines if your budget amount needs to be adjusted because of weather.
At the end of the Budget Plan year — next July — you'll be billed your budget amount, plus or minus any difference between your total annual budget amount and the actual amount you used during the year.
So make your gas bills more predictable. Get on the Columbia Gas Budget Payment Plan. And to simplify bill paying even more, ask about Checkfree® at your Columbia Gas office or most banks. With the convenience of Checkfree, your bank pays your gas bill from your checking account each month.

Tips On Summer Pet Health Noted

Especially in summer, a veterinarian can be your pet's best friend. He can recommend the best care for your dog or cat and how to handle their enemies of summer which may include fleas, ticks, worms and problems due to the sun or heat.

Prevention is the key to caring for your pet. An annual checkup helps determine whether it has had vaccinations, or if it carries parasites such as the deadly heartworm, which if left untreated can be fatal.

These are some of the problems which may affect your pet during the summer season:

Heartworms—Worms can affect your pet's health; heartworms are among the most dangerous and are often fatal. They are more prevalent in summer and in warmer areas of the country.

Mosquitoes transmit the heartworm larvae. Pets may be kept on preventive heartworm medicine year-round or be put on this drug before the beginning of mosquito season providing a blood test for the heartworm larvae is negative. Signs of disease include lethargy or vomiting but by then it can be too late to save the animal.

Fleas and Ticks—Fleas are more prevalent in the summer because they reproduce faster when it is warm. It is important to rid your animal of fleas because if the animal is allergic its frantic scratching can tear out hair and infect itself when the skin is broken.

Dogs and cats react the same way to fleas as humans do to mosquitoes. The flea causes an intense itch by injecting an anticoagulant under the animals skin to aid in obtaining its "meal" of blood.

There are many products on the market—baths, collars powders and sprays to rid your pet from fleas and ticks. Pests develop a resistance to ingredients over time, so that non-prescription flea collars may have diminished effectiveness or may protect only the head and neck areas.

Prescription collars contain newer ingredients, which pests have not had a chance to grow resistant to. They therefore are more effective in protecting the entire body.

You can ask your vet for a flea control program which may include several different products to be used on the animal, in his living quarters and in your own living area. Each part of this program must be performed on the same day. Check labeling to be sure a product is safe for cats as well as dogs.

Grooming— Grooming your dog is important to catch any problems before they become serious. You can spot a tick before it burrows in the skin and infects your dog or spot the first signs of fleas.

Brushing a dog with the proper tool is highly important—this does not mean your everyday hairbrush—it means a brush designed to go through your dogs coat to the skin.

Shaving a long haired dog is not recommended because your dog may be subject to sunburn or razor burn. Believe it or not, a long coat may help to insulate your dog from the heat. Other dogs may be more comfortable if their hair is clipped.

Cats need assistance in grooming to keep them looking their best. Shorthaired cats should be brushed while long haired cats should be combed and brushed.

In The Car—Traveling with your pet on vacation can be delightful if you remember his needs as well as your own. Your pet needs ventilation in a hot car, adequate exercise and proper nutrition. Plan to stop often to take your dog out to stretch.

Instead of water, carry ice, which will stay cool longer. Take along your pet's regular food in case it is unavailable where you are traveling. To avoid car sickness, withhold food three to four hours before a trip and don't feed your pet while the car is in motion.

Sometimes your pet becomes over-heated or sick from a long hike or romp on the beach in the hot sun especially if it is not conditioned to such exercise. You may want to replenish lost minerals with an electrolyte solution (much like Gatorade) which can be obtained from the vet. Make sure your pet doesn't burn his feet on hot sand at the beach.

Beware of leaving your pet in a hot car with the windows up. It can die or suffer brain damage in a short time, because the heat builds quickly. If your pet won't stay in the car when the windows are down and you can't take it on a leash with you, you might try a traveling crate. You can use a space blanket, (a shiny silver blanket) to reflect sun off the crate, thereby keeping it 15-20 degrees cooler inside the crate.

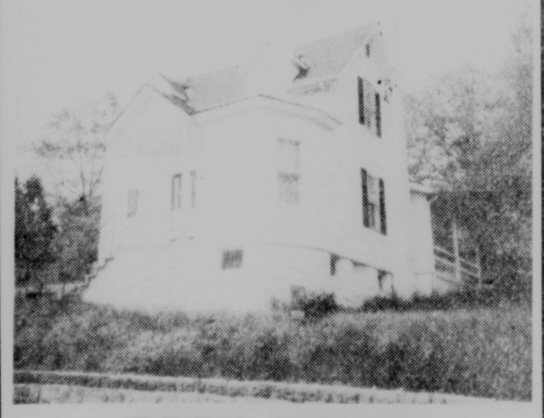
LOOKING FOR BUILDING LOT?

Not everyone wants to buy an existing home. Some prefer to buy land and build their dream house on it. If you are worried about building lot availability—don't. There is land to build on nationally and locally.



Want to talk big figures? The total land area in the United States amounts to 2.26 BILLION acres. This can be broken down into 703 million acres of forest, 587 million acres of grassland and ranges, 471 million acres of farmland and 345 million acres of urban land, deserts and swamps. Sixty percent of all the land is privately owned, 33% is owned by the federal government and 7% by state and local governments. Of all this land, only 5% is devoted to housing, manufacturing, shopping and transportation. Even though our population has tripled since 1900, 95% of all the available land is still undeveloped. That's a lot of land.

If you are looking for a building lot in this area, we may have fine lots available in various price ranges. Let's talk about it.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone one of our offices.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF GARRETT COUNTY

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Garrett County Board of Education is required by its own policy and by Federal and State Law to annually notify eligible students and parents who have children attending public school of the policy regulating the handling of student records and the information contained within them. Board of Education Policy #474.20 and Procedures 474.21, the "Confidentiality of Student Records Policy," establishes the guidelines that the Garrett County Public Schools employ.

The provisions of this policy are intended to preserve the right of students and parents to have full access to all official records about the student which are maintained by the Garrett County Public Schools; to have removed from these records any information about the student which is determined to be inaccurate or misleading; to enjoy confidentiality and privacy in regard to the disclosure of information contained in those records to outside agencies; and to provide for efficient student records management.

Individual pupil records maintained by teachers or other school personnel under the provisions of this policy are to be confidential in nature, and access to such records may be granted to professionals who are directly involved with the educational process of the individual student in a teaching, guidance/counseling, or consulting situation. Individual student records, with the exception of such records as are designated as permanent, and with such other exceptions as provided by the law, should be destroyed when they are no longer able to serve professionals who are directly involved with the educational process of the individual student in a teaching, guidance/counseling, or consulting situation.

Institutions of elementary and secondary education of the Board of Education of Garrett County shall not permit access to, or release of, education records of students, or personally identifiable information contained therein (other than directory information), without the written consent of the parents of the eligible student. Education institutions of Garrett County, however, shall make available to officials of other elementary or secondary school or another school system in which the student seeks or intends to enroll the cumulative records of that student. The institution of elementary and secondary education of the Board of Education of Garrett County will forward without consent cumulative records on request to a school in which a student seeks or intends to enroll.

Directory information means the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent school attended by the student, and other similar information. Directory information may be made public without the consent of parents or eligible students.

The policy goes on to spell out the types of data in a pupil record, the types of student records, and how the records are transferred between schools, individuals, institutions, and agencies.

If access to a student's records is desired by an eligible student or parent he/she should contact the appropriate school principal. In most cases there is a charge for copies of student records.

Ammons Receives ChFC Designation

Edward G. Jordan, president of the American College, Bryn Mawr, Pa., announced that Roger L. Ammons, CLU, RHU, has satisfied the academic requirements necessary for the conferment of the college's Chartered Financial Consultants' designation or ChFC. The diploma will be awarded at the conferment exercises this October in Toronto, Canada.

Ammons is married to Marilyn Fay Sheehe, former resident of Oakland. Mrs. Ammons is the daughter of Thomas Bernard Sheehe and Fay Sheehe, former residents and business owners in Oakland for many years. Ammons is the son of Thomas and Elva Ammons of Cumberland.

Ammons has been assigned as the servicing agent for "Orphaned Policyowners" in the Garrett county area. An "Orphaned Policyowner" is a New York Life policyowner who no longer has a servicing agent because of retirement, death, disabilty or career change of the original agent.

This marks the third professional designation earned by Ammons during the last five years. He earned his Chartered Life Underwriter, CLU, designation on October 16, 1979, and was conferred the Registered Health Underwriter, RHU, designation on July 16, 1981.

The Chartered Financial Consultant program consists of a 13 part examination series certifying academic competence in the financial services business and the financial planning process. Candidates must complete a prescribed program of study, as well as fulfill stringent experience and ethical requirements.

Ammons was a founding member and charter president of the Frankfort, W. Va., Kiwanis Club. After serving 18 months, he received the Outstanding President Award. He was also a founding member, and internal vice-president of the Frankfort District Jaycees, where he was awarded Keyman of the Year in 1977 for distinguished service to the organization. In the same year, he served as chairman of a project designated by the West Virginia State Jaycees, as Community Service Award project. He was awarded Spokesman of the Year in 1974, by the Greater Cumberland Jaycees, for organizing and chairing two Small Business Institutes in cooperation with the Small Business Administration, 1974 and 1975.

He has served as president of the Short Gap PTA, vice president of the Fort Ashby PTA, a member of the Mineral County Parents Advisory Councils, and as a Delegate to the County Council of PTA's for several years.

Senior Citizens Program Heads Named By CAC

Duane Yoder, executive director of the Garrett County Community Action Committee, has announced the selection of Margo Vandiver for the director position of the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging and Adina Drew for the position of coordinator of the Older Americans Act Programs. Vandiver and Drew will assume their positions October 1. At that time Community Action will become the Area Agency on Aging.

The transfer of the senior citizen programs to Community Action was initiated by the Garrett County commissioners in an effort to consolidate service which will result in more money available for direct service to senior citizens.

Vandiver states that her first priority will be "to ensure program continuity by maintaining the current level of service." Ways to expand senior citizen programs will also be explored.

Community Action will consolidate its internal transportation program to provide individualized transportation to senior citizens, Vandiver says she is "delighted to be working in such a meaningful area, with such a knowledgeable Aging program staff." She said she will operate the program with an "open door policy for staff and senior citizens."

Vandiver holds a master's degree in business management and supervision. She was previously employed for 12 years, by the United States Government as a management analyst. She has been a Garrett County property owner for 15 years. She resides in Mt. Lake Park where she is the owner-/manager of the Mt. Lake Emporium.

Adina Drew is a native of Frostburg. She has been an assistant unit supervisor at the Cumberland Senior Citizen Center for the past three years. She has completed the courses necessary for a practitioner's certificate in gerontology.

Persons wishing additional information about the transfer of senior citizen services may call the Community Action Office at 334-9431.

MIXED EMOTIONS peak on a day when a child goes to school for the first time. For the child, there is anticipation mingled with apprehension and new notebooks and shoes. For the parents, pride and sadness struggle for supremacy. Teachers say farewell to summer vacation and hello to the smell of chalk and a set of brand-new scrubbed faces. After the first few days, life settles into the educational routine with shoes scuffed and notebooks filled with information. Limestone Bridge Slated To Re-Open, Dirt-To-Hardtopping Nearly Complete

At county staff meeting Tuesday, Ken Metheny, county roads administrator, told the Board of County Commissioners that the Limestone Bridge, near Friendsville, is nearing completion, and should be open for traffic by late this week.

Metheny also told the board that the roads department's dirt-to-hardtop conversion project for the year is within four miles of completion, with portions of two roads in the Grantsville area still undergoing work.

Metheny said that he is meeting with representatives from the C&P Telephone Company to look into questions regarding the location of the underwater cable at the Glendale Bridge. He said that the phone company is unsure of the exact location of the cable, and discussion will center around issues such as who will locate the cable, and who will pay for the location efforts.

Assistant roads administrator Earl Foster said that computerization efforts at the roads department are progressing well, and that the old computer currently being replaced in the department is available to the commissioners' office at any time.

School Board

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, superintendent of county schools, told the board that the Gallop poll of the public's attitude about public schools was completed in the county last week, and cited parents from Broad Ford, Friendsville, and Kitzmiller Schools as having been exceptionally helpful in completing the poll. Ryscavage said that data from the county will be available in October, along with the results from the rest of the state.

Ryscavage said that the board is attempting to determine which students are affected in the boundary dispute between Allegany and Garrett Counties. Ryscavage said that when that is determined, the Allegany County Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Mitchell, will decide whether they will stay in Garrett County schools, with Allegany County paying tuition for them, or whether they will go to Allegany County schools.

He told the board that no bids were received to do heating work in the Dennett Road School Annex, and that they have reopened the bidding process on the project.

Health Department

County Health Officer Dr. William Pope said that as a result of the state's initiative to move patients into the community from institutions for the mentally ill, the mental health department has experienced increased demand for community mental health services. As a result, the health department is looking for a separate location to conduct a day treatment program in the downtown Oakland area.

Kitzmiller Man Fatally Injured In Auto Mishap

Milford Dale Paugh, 45, Kitzmiller, was fatally injured Saturday night while attempting to walk across Interstate 270 at Rockville.

When the driver of a vehicle traveling south on I-270 saw Mr. Paugh crossing the highway from the median, she slowed and swerved to the right to avoid hitting him, but according to Rockville police, Mr. Paugh ran into the driver's door and was knocked to the ground, where he was run over by several other vehicles. He was pronounced dead at the scene. No charges were filed.

Born in Cumberland, Mr. Paugh was a son of the late Ira Paugh and Ethel (Paugh) Paugh. He was a Vietnam veteran.

He is survived by one daughter, Ethel Paugh, Rockville; one sister, Mrs. Sadie C. Fike, Oakland; and three brothers, Calvin (Buck) Paugh, Tionesta, Pa.; Claude Paugh, Wheatland, Pa. and Franklin Paugh, Richmond, Va.

Graveside services and interment took place Tuesday in Mount Zion Cemetery by the Rev. George Tichinel and the Rev. James Tichinel.

The David A. Burdock Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Sachs Files Suit Against Former Local Car Dealer

Maryland Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs has filed suit against a Garrett County car dealer, accusing him of covering up a major structural defect in a used car that later broke in half while the people he sold it to were driving it.

In a seven-page suit filed in Garrett County Circuit Court, Sachs charges that Christopher Karl David Pritts, one of the owners of the now-closed Ralph Pritts and Sons car dealership on Route 219 north of Oakland, knew that the frame of a 1975 Ford LTD he bought in May, 1982 was rusted through, but covered up the defect by having tin plating and undercoating applied to the frame. He then sold the car to Michael and Connie Madigan, a Deer Park couple, in December, 1983.

The Madigans paid $900 for the car, but when Madigan later drove it Ohio, he noticed that it "seemed to wobble," the suit says. "When Mr. Madigan applied the brakes, the rear end of the car separated from the front end," according to the suit, which also was signed by Assistant Attorney General Carolyn J. Rodis.

The suit charges that Pritts and his employees violated Maryland's Consumer Protection Act by covering up the serious defect in the car; by saying it had passed the state's inspection procedure even though they knew it was unsafe, and by failing to disclose the known defect to the buyers.

The Consumer Protection Division of Sachs' office is seeking full restitution for the Madigans, as well as fines and investigation costs from the Pritts firm. In addition, the suit seeks an injunction barring Pritts from any further unfair or deceptive trade practices.

No Bloodmobile Visit To Oakland

Because of a scheduling mix-up, there will be no Oakland visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile unitl January, according to Norma Hesen, chairman. The Bloodmobile usually visits Oakland during August or September.

Mrs. Hesen encourages Oakland area donors to travel to Grantsville this Friday, August 31, for the regular visit there. The Bloodmobile will be accepting blood at the Grantsville fire hall from noon unitl 5 p.m.

Hospital Census Attributed To Top Quality Care

Garrett County Memorial Hospital has reported a substantial increase in patient volumes over the past four months, and for the past few weeks has had nearly 100% occupancy in medical/surgical patients.

Contrary to national and even statewide trends, Garrett Memorial has experienced a 12% increase in occupancy since May of this year.

Lawrence M. Beck, hospital administrator, indicated that, although some of the increased volumes are seasonal, one of the major reasons for the hospital being so busy is a direct result of increased patient satisfaction with the facilities and services available at the local hospital. He stated that there are no particular epidemics or widespread illnesses in the area right now which would also cause the hospital census to increase.

"Our employees and medical staff deserve much of the credit," Beck said. "They have been working extremely hard at providing faster, more efficient patient care services."

At the meeting of the hospital's Board of Governors Wednesday night, Beck praised the entire hospital staff, particularly the nursing staff, for keeping things running smoothly during such a busy time.

Beck said that feedback from patients and former patients has been "overwhelmingly positive." In recent months the hospital has received numerous thank-you cards, letters and phone calls from former patients praising the hospital and its staff "for top quality care."

"I've never seen anything like it," Beck commented.

One out-of-state emergency room patient was so impressed with the care she received that she decided to have some long-needed surgery done in Oakland rather than in her own home town several hundred miles

Whitewater Race Proposal To Get Final Polishing

The Board of County Commissioners approved the spending of $1,000 of the county's special promotion fund Tuesday to refine the county's proposal to host the 1989 International Whitewater World Championships.

The board met with Cindy Kutchman, county promotion council director Tuesday to discuss the status of the proposal. Kutchman requested the funding to hire a whitewater racer who is also experienced in marketing and public relations to polish the proposal for presentation to the International Whitewater Racing Association at the organization's meeting in Spain in October.

"Holding the Whitewater World Championships here would give a lot of recognition to Garrett County. This is a fine opportunity to promote Garrett County through its tourism," Commissioner John Braskey commented at press conference Tuesday.

The championships will be nationally televised and attract entries from around the world, according to Kutchman.

DNR Assessing Suggestions From Sunday's Lake Regulation Meeting

The Department of Natural Resources Forest, Parks and Wildlife Service staff began work Monday morning on the difficult task of assessing the numerous concerns expressed during Sunday's four-hour public information hearing on the Deep Creek Lake regulations.

At least 300 persons filled the auditorium at Garrett Community College Sunday afternoon to hear what the proposed regulations would provide and to give any input they wished. Among the items receiving the most negative comment were the proposed speed limit of 40 m.p.h., restrictions to one engine per boat, boat length, and the inadequate grandfathering of dock privileges and deeded access.

Donald MacLauchlan, director of the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service, conducted Sunday's meeting and later outlined the procedure which will be followed for the regulations.

Once the DNR staff has evaluated the suggestions and incorporated what they feel is necessary into the regulations, the state's Attorney General's office will review the document for legality and for clarity of language before returning the regulations to the lake advisory committee, MacLauchlan said.

After the advisory committee has had time for review and final input, the first formal public hearing will be held. This is expected to take place in early fall. After the document is printed in The Maryland Register, then citizens have 30 days to respond before the final public hearing will be held.

Robert Watson, chairman of the Deep Creek Lake Advisory and Review Committee, said Wednesday his committee will be meeting with various special interest groups once they have the revised regulations in hand before completing their final comments on the regulations.

In the meantime, the DNR will be accepting comments and suggestions until the final public hearing. Written suggestions may be sent to Michael Gregory, lake management office for DNR, at Route 2, Box 89C, Swanton.

MacLauchlan started the meeting by introducing lake manager Gregory and Dave Hathway, a staffer from his office. He said that the regulations in their present form are a compilation of effort by four groups: Penelec, DNR, the state law department and the lake advisory committee. He also reiterated that this was an informal meeting and is not to be construed as a "We're here from the government to help you" show.

Gregory told the group that the advisory committee was created by DNR law to oversee lake policy. Members are the president of the Property Owners Association of Deep Creek Lake, who is now Ed King; Del. George Edwards or his appointee, County Commissioner Ernie Gregg, Jr., a representative of the Deep Creek Businessmen's Association and three representatives appointed by the commissioners, Helmuth Heise, Del Carpenter and Bob Railey; and the lake manager, who is now Michael Gregory.

Boating safety and the speed limit were two of the most often mentioned subjects. John Hottenstein of Marsh Hill said the proposed 40 m.p.h. speed limit is entirely too low, particularly for those who wish to enjoy barefoot or slalom skiing.

Another citizen said state police have a category for operating too fast for conditions and suggested a similar law for the lake. John Watt, Sang Run, said that speedometers are inaccurate if they work at all, and pointed out that the major problem on the lake is reckless driving, usually by people in the process of drinking while operating a boat.

Roads Concerns Heard By Board Of Commissioners

Several county residents met with the Board of County Commissioners Tuesday to discuss concerns about county roads.

Miss Wall, a resident along Foster Road near Oakland, told the commissioners that the road is too narrow, is plagued with potholes, and has not been adequately mowed. The commissioners, who inspected the road earlier Tuesday, told Miss Wall that roads slated for major work this year have already been selected, and that they will discuss the road with officials from the roads department regarding plans for next year.

A delegation of residents from the Walnut Bottom Crosscut area met with the commissioners regarding plans for upgrading Walnut Bottom and Mt. Zion Crosscut Roads. The citizens told the commissioners that problems with obtaining right-of-way necessary for the upgrading can be worked out, and urged the commissioners to pursue plans to improve the two roads as part of the county's upgrading program, as the roads are seeing increased use due to their proximity to the new Bloomington Dam. The commissioners assured them that the work is in the roads department's plans, pending the resolution of the right-of-way problems.

Mrs. Ellen Haley, Friendsville, met with the commissioners about an ongoing problem regarding rights-of-way in the Blooming Rose area.

Garrett's 18th Rabies Case Is At Gravelly Run

Garrett County's 18th confirmed rabies case has cropped up in a new area of the county - this time on Gravelly Run Road.

About 7 a.m. Monday, Margo Ashley noticed a raccoon in her yard. The raccoon, which was advancing on the family dog tied in the yard, was shot and submitted by the health department officials to the state lab in Baltimore. Confirmation of rabies was received Wednesday by Rodney Glotfelty, rabies prevention coordinator for the department.

The dog had been vaccinated against rabies but will be revaccinated as a precaution, Glotfelty said.

There were 18 confirmed rabies cases in Garrett County in 1983.

Rabies clinics for cats and dogs will be held in September with the schedule to be announced in two weeks.

FINISH FOURTH — Triple Threat, an aerobic dance team sponsored by Brenda's Body Shop, Oakland, captured fourth place in the National Aerobic Regional Championship, held in New York on August 26. The team scored 212 points out of a possible 240, which left them just two points shy of third place and the opportunity to appear in Shape magazine. Twenty-four teams from all over the eastern United States and Canada participated. Each performed a three minute routine, which was judged on showmanship, creativity, originality, synchronized movements, degree of difficulty, form and execution. Compulsory moves included push-ups, sit-ups, jogging in place, and high leg kicks. The first place team from New York will compete in the national finals, to be held in Los Angeles in late October. In the photo, left to right, are Tami Tressler, Triple Threat member; Bess Motta, star of television's 20-Minute Workout; Brenda Brosnihan and Carol Gregg, Triple Threat members.

RESPIRATORY THERAPY WEEK was recognized by the Board of County Commissioners Tuesday, who urged all citizens "to take cognizance of the contributions made by the members of this profession for health care services to our citizens." Pictured standing, left to right, are Fred Callis, Ann Heselbach, and Linda Bosley, cardio pulmonary technicians; and Eric Tribbey, director of the Respiratory Therapy Department at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Seated, left to right, are Commissioners Ernest Gregg, Elwood Groves, and John Braskey. Respiratory therapy professionals, numbering more than 20,000 nationwide, specialize in the treatment of disorders such as emphysema, asthma, chronic bronchitis, drowning, heart attack, cystic fibrosis, and croup through the use of oxygen therapy, respiratory drugs, pulmonary hygiene, sophisticated life support systems, and cardiopulmonary resuscitation techniques.

Among Graduates Of Banking School

Courtney R. Tusing, chairman of the Board and president of First United National Bank & Trust pictured above, recently announced the graduation of Linda S. Sanders, auditor, from the School of Bank Administration, at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

The three-year school sponsored, by Bank Administration Institute, provides five banking curriculums taught by bankers, consultants, and university professors. Students also have the opportunity to expand their banking knowledge by sharing professional strategies with fellow students through case studies, peer group exchanges, and a bank simulation model. Admission to the second and third years of the school was contingent upon the successful completion of extension problems between each resident session.

The 512 graduating seniors represented 46 states, Puerto Rico, England, Brazil, Panama and Hong Kong. Of the graduating class, 109 were audit majors.

Courses presented in the audit curriculum included: the use of computers as audit tools; EDP auditing; consumer compliance; planning and managing the audit function; risk analysis; asset and liability management; and the bank simulation model.

Sanders, a graduate of Northern High School and Garrett Community College with an AA degree in business administration, joined the bank staff in 1967. She has received the American Institute of Banking Basic and Standard certificates. An active member of the Bear Creek Church of the Brethren and the Garrett County Business & Professional Women's Club, she and her husband, Dennis, reside on Broadford Road, Mt. Lake Park, with their daughter, Jennifer.

Hospital Among Grant Recipients

Grants totaling $126,000 for the prevention of child abuse have been awarded to nine public and private agencies, including Garrett County Memorial Hospital, by the Social Services Administration of the Maryland Department of Human Resources.

Funded through the federal Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act, the awards will enable the sponsoring agencies to initiate new, or strengthen existing, community-based child abuse prevention programs, most of them focusing on the increasing problem of sexual exploitation of children.

The grant awarded to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital will be used for a positive parenting program aimed at the parents of infants and young children.

"With child abuse reports increasing dramatically across the state, we are pleased to be able to fund programs which aim at preventing abuse," commented Frank Farrow, executive director of the Social Services Administration. "In the years ahead, prevention must become a primary goal of our programs. The creative efforts that will be supported with these funds can help lay the foundation for a more comprehensive network of preventive services."

The grants ranged from $11,000 to $14,000.

The awards mark the first time that Maryland has qualified for a federal financial assistance grant for the prevention of child abuse. Over 45 proposals were reviewed by the H.E.L.P. Resource Project, a special child abuse prevention unit of the Social Services Administration.

JUST HAPPY TO BE THERE in the first grade at Dennett Road School is Erika Durst, daughter of Mark and Donna Durst, Oakland. Not all students were as thrilled as the first graders this week, since the return to school marked an end to various types of summer fun. County students were required to report for school on Wednesday to begin another year of 180-plus days of learning, until the summer of 1985 provides the next three-month break.

Commissioners To Hold Series Of Meetings

The Board of County Commissioners will begin a series of community meetings in September, focusing on the non-municipal areas of the county, according to an announcement at the commissioners' press conference Tuesday.

Commissioner Ernest Gregg said that the meetings are a continuation of last year's meetings with citizens from municipalities. He said that the meetings, which will be held mainly in fire halls throughout the county, are being planned to give county residents the chance to discuss county issues with the commissioners.

"This is something we want to do to make ourselves more available to the people of the county, and we didn't want to leave out those who are not in municipalities," commissioner Elwood Groves commented.

Dates, times and locations of the meetings will be announced next week, according to the commissioners.

Work Begins On Kitzmiller Water

Work has begun on the Kitzmiller water system by the two contractors involved, but new state guidelines already call for some changes, the Sanitary Commission was told by Sanitary District Administrator Wendell Beitzel at the August 21 meeting.

Frank Arnold Construction began work just this week, while H.J. Schneider started approximately two weeks ago.

The new state guidelines on chlorine discharge limits will affect the permit obtained for backwash water for the project. The engineering firm of Greenhorne and O'Mara has told the commission that they expect no major problem with compliance.

Gorman Water, Sewer

Work is underway now to correct problems found with water lines in the Gorman area which were not buried as deep as specified. The commission has sent a letter to Thomas Bourne, the inspection engineering firm, telling of its intention to present that firm with invoices for the costs of correction.

Bourne's firm was responsible for inspecting the lines and certifying that the work was done according to the plans and specifications.

The sanitary commission is still awaiting word from the Chessie System on rights of way needed for the sewage treatment plant. The commission has submitted preliminary plans to railroad engineers, who have already indicated they want railroad construction requirements included in the specifications.

Two rights-of-way are needed. One site is along the tracks at the edge of Gorman for a pumping station and installation of a large septic tank. The other site is one-half mile down Steyer Road where sand filters and the disinfection unit will be.

Upper Yough

The Upper Youghiogheny Facilities Plan has at long last been submitted to the state health department for approval, with copies to the Environmental Protection Agency.

Beitzel said he is hopeful that the plan is complete in every detail, with the possible exception of a few maps and minor details. If no problems are encountered, the plan should be approved this fall.

Commission Chairman Harry Filemyr recalled that at his first meeting as a sanitary commission member, plans were underway for the final hearing on the facilities plan which was begun in 1976. That hearing had not materialized because of all the delays encountered, chief of which was the state's tardiness in setting discharge parameters.

The sanitary commission acted August 21 to adopt a resolution approving the facilities plan, which incorporated some of the comments suggested by the mayor and council of Mt. Lake Park before they would endorse the plan.

Both Deer Park and Loch Lynn included statements saying the plan is not inconsistent with the goals and objectives of the towns.

Shady Acres Water

The commission has received engineering proposals to design and provide engineering services for the Shady Acres water line. The commission selected Potomac Engineering which bid $2,046.63 for design and $2,398.31 for overseeing construction.

The line will serve the Southern Garrett Industrial site and include installation of fire hydrants. The line will be an extension of the Oakland line, and will be turned over to that town when completed.

The next meeting of the sanitary commission will be September 4 in the Courthouse.

Officials To Make Sediment Decision

County officials have until April 1985 to decide whether they wish to give up the responsibility for enforcement of sediment and erosion control to the state.

John Reckner, local director for the Agricultural Stablization and Conservation Service (ASCS), told the county commissioners Tuesday during the staff meeting that the sediment and erosion control program and the stormwater management program are so closely interrelated that the two should remain under county control.

If the county commissioners decide to continue to direct the sediment and erosion control program, they must be prepared to prove to the state that they have an effective and legitimate plan and that they can enforce the regulations.

The commissioners are encouraged by Reckner and other officials such as members of the Stormwater Management committee to give the newly-appointed stormwater manager the responsiblity for the sediment and erosion control. Justin Thorne has accepted the stormwater management position.

The state has agreed to provide funds to local jurisdictions so that they can meet their obligation to establish a stormwater management program. The Maryland General Assembly has funded a $1.7 million grant-in-aid program, to be administered by the Water Resources Administration, to provide the assistance which can take the form of salaries for stormwater managers who must inspect and enforce projects and enforce the regulations. It is uncertain how much this county may quailfy for.

Environmental goals of both the state and local stormwater mangement programs are to reduce stream channel erosion, pollution carried by runoff, local flooding and the adverse impacts resulting from development.

In order for a county or municipality to be eligible for the grant-in-aid funds, the local jurisdictions must have a Water Resources-approved stormwater management program and ordinance. Such programs were mandated by the General Assembly in 1983, to become effective this past July.

The state sediment control law provides that prior to any grading, clearing, transporting or other earth disturbance, an erosion and sediment control plan must be approved by the appropriate soil conservation district of the Department of Natural Resources.

Bambacus Says Unit System May Cure Deer Problem

As a follow-up to the recent meeting to discuss the deer control problem in Garrett County, State Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Allegany, Garrett) has contacted state officials to propose a possible means of resolving that problem.

"During the course of the meeting, it was brought to my attention that the State of Wyoming issues deer hunting licenses by districts which are called management units," Bambacus stated in his letter to Donald MacLauchlan, Director of the Maryland Forest, Parks and Wildlife Services. "As I understand it, the management units are determined by the density of the deer population itself, rather than by county or other jurisdictional line. Where the deer population is high, more permits can be issued. Conversely, in those districts where the population is low, fewer permits are issued."

Bambacus commented that in an area such as Garrett County, where the deer problem is more acute in some locations than in others, the Wyoming system may be an appropriate solution. He asked that MacLauchlan look into the Wyoming plan and report back on the possibility of adapting it for use in the State of Maryland.

Nearly 100 interested persons attended the August 1 meeting, held at Garrett Community College in McHenry.

We're So Lucky . . .

He could hardly contain his excitement. He was up by 6:15, pulling on his set of new school clothes which had been carefully laid out the night before. After a breakfast of toast and juice (he was a little too nervous to eat any more) he collected all of the traditional gear for his first day in kindergarten. With a knapsack on his back, loaded with his pencil box, tablet and beach towel for rest period, his lunch box in hand and his enormous name tag, complete with bus number and his teacher's name, pinned to his shirt, he paused for some quick picture-taking. Then he climbed into the car with his mother and waved goodbye to Dad.

Such was the experience in this writer's house this morning as the eldest of three little ones in the family embarked on his educational career.

Besides the usual thoughts of "He's growing up so fast" and that little lump-in-the-throat feeling, another realization crossed the mind of his father this morning as he searched for an editorial topic; that being, how we take for granted our free system of education in this country.

How fortunate we are to have our school system, where every child can receive an education. Awaiting this little boy, and all of his classmates, at the school this morning are a modern building, a library, colorful bulletin boards, text books, film strips, movies, desks, a nutritious meal, and most importantly, enthusiastic teachers and school administrators who are there for one purpose (certainly not for the money): to teach our children.

There is no question that our schools have their share of problems, just as any system operated by human beings. There are incompetent teachers and administrators. There is a need for more money. There is the existence of drug and alcohol abuse by students. These negative aspects are, unfortunately, what draw the most attention and outcry. It is high time to praise those educators who do the outstanding work with our children. It is high time to adopt a merit pay system for teachers and to develop a system that can more easily remove incompetent teachers.

We and our children are so lucky to have our school system. So many of the world's people cannot make this statement. This father hopes that his son will someday realize and appreciate this golden opportunity which was placed in his hands a few hours ago.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The many people who feel that the vagabonds on our streets are not bums, have obviously not had a close encounter of the worst kind with them.

Speaking from experience, it is not a pleasant situation to have one of these falling down drunks falling down on you. Have you ever tried to eat your lunch with one sitting across from you with a wad of tobacco hanging out of his mouth or spitting in the ashtrays? Maybe you feel that these people can be helped, but I've always found that you can't help someone who doesn't want to or won't help themselves.

Would you like one of them coming across the counter at your place of employment or following you to your car after work one night? I don't particularly care for the crude comments and obscene gestures directed at me by these persons.

Take them into your home and show them love and see what they show you.

Now that the 28th Annual Garrett County Fair is passed, we'd like to convey our many thanks to all those who helped make the fair a success.

Inclement weather caused attendance to be low the first couple of days, however attendance was high the balance of the week. Thanks for coming to the fair.

Our many thanks to Joan Sussman and Craig Phillips for their wonderful coverage of the fair activities, as well as The Citizen Record. Mr. Editor, the editorial was appreciated also in the August 16th issue of The Republican.

Broadcasting the fair activities on the air was another job well done by our local radio station. Our hats go off to Paul and Jim and the staff we did not see. You are fantastic.

A number of Fair Stock and Bonds were purchased during fair week. A big thanks to these folks for helping get the grounds purchased. We have more stock and bonds to sell: stock, $10 each; bonds $100 each. Become a part of the Garrett County Fair.

There were many hours of volunteer labor put into the fair, which goes without saying it was needed and greatly appreciated. Without the help of each one the fair could not progress. Let us all work together and keep the fair growing and make it the best fair in Maryland.

I appreciated Dawn Ashby's letter last week. Thanks, Dawn, for the encouragement and telling us how you feel. We would like comments from all our fair goers.

Our fair next year will be August 12 through 17. We need to plan and make some decisions now. Get involved.

All the fair directors, along with me say "Thanks" to all of you wonderful folks.

Dear Sir:

I agreed with your Drunken Driving editorial. The letter by Harlan Miller was excellent concerning Tichnell's criminal coddling for years, (and now at taxpayers expense) for the brutal murder of officer Livengood. I wonder had he not been a rich person's son. if he would have been treated thusly? Imagine a poor person's being coddled like this for after three convictions for murder and as Mr. Miller writes where, when, and how will it end? The law bends for and by (whom)?

The movement locally by the DNR is very welcome on Deep Creek Lake Regulations, where we have suffered immeasurably for years by lack of action and concern by those in authority! It was a bit ironic, the Property Owners' Association president supporting The Republican newspaper, and encouraging our buying it when the Citizen Record's general manager was the reporter caring enough to be present to enable us to have full, accurate reporting.

I wonder if such antics and thinking is why there have been so many resignations on the Property Owners Association Board in recent months, the like of which I have never seen in the existence of the POA; one wonders if the left hand knows what the right is doing now, and who really is speaking for the POA? It's time to get your act together! Many excellent, loyal, dedicated Board Members have bit the dust; spare us more of the same, please!

Where were the elected officials, and the department heads, who should have been required to answer the unanswered POA questions? At the very least concerning the many years of pollution of Deep Creek Lake by the coal companies run-off. What about the Zoning Appeals Board case and the Sanitary Commission inaction?

Oh, for a Wayne Hamilton who answered questions!

This is my opinion.

Louise V. Harvey

Editor's note:

We checked on the recent resignations in the POA. One man resigned due to a change of residence to California, another because of parish duties, a third because of an increasingly busy business schedule and the fourth was due to death.

Please see our news coverage of the property owners' meeting on page one before you judge our reporting.

As we have increasing needs in our personal lives, so is there an ever-growing need for Hospice care in Garrett County.

Hospice is providing care for the terminally ill and their family members. The care takes place in the patient's home, hospital, nursing home or wherever it is needed.

Within the past few weeks this need in our county was shared by many Hospice volunteers, family members, hospital staff, friends, clergy and church members. One family member stated, "Our family has always been small, now look how it has grown." What a good feeling, having someone consider you a member of their family!

As fall is approaching, so is the new class to be given at Garrett Community College for Hospice volunteers. The need is definitely there. Whether it is working actively with a patient or being a member of the auxiliary, we need your help.

Please learn more about Hospice care and its volunteer work. Call 334-8111 or 895-5050 if you have any questions about the program.

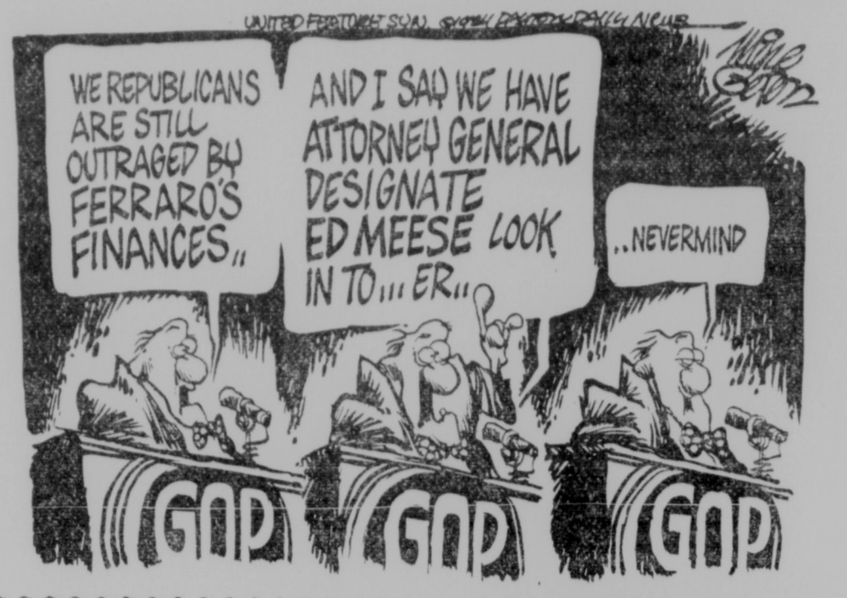
To the Editor:



As the founder of a domestic violence center in Pennsylvania I was appalled by the presence in the August 23rd Republican of a cartoon depicting a railroader tying his wife to the train track while his boss casually looked on.

In this day and age of increased public awareness of the extent of domestic violence as well as the immorality and illegality of it, it is completely out of line to see jokes about such behavior. I object to such a cartoon on two counts in particular: first is the implication that the husband has the right to tie his wife to the railroad track and gag her; second is the implication that the boss and the other railroad workers would stand idly by while the husband tortures his wife in front of them and perhaps causes her death.

Sad to say, there are many real-life examples of both kinds of behavior. Some men do feel they have the right to torture or kill their wives. Some bosses, neighbors and relatives do witness acts of torture and brutality against a woman by her husband and neither intervene or report such actions. These are not attitudes or behaviors society should encourage.

I'm sure you would not publish a cartoon joking about the lynching of a black man or joking about the gassing of a Jew in a German concentration camp. Please realize that the same issue is involved here.

Sincerely,
Carol Nill

Ultraviolet Unit, Bridge Replacement Are Sanitary Commission Topics

The Deep Creek sewer project was again the main topic of the Garrett County Sanitary Commission at last Tuesday's meeting. Engineers' reports, the ultraviolet light disinfection system, and replacement of the Deep Creek bridge were all discussed by the commission.

As reported by Jeff Gilbert and Henry Doyle of Greenhorne and O'Mara, the only problem which may affect start up of the system next month is the ultraviolet light disinfection unit, which is still in the planning stage.

Rummel, Klepper and Kahl, design engineers, have not received the approved shop drawings from the manufacturer for the unit. The commission is now working to get submittals approved.

Electrical service is expected to be provided early in September, with transformers set the first week of that month. Once underwriters' approval is given, Potomac Edison is expected to make connections to the pumping stations.

The commission had requested some time ago that the State Highway Administration pay the costs of placing the suspended sewer line on Deep Creek bridge when the new bridge is constructed. SHA officials first declined to pay any of the relocation costs, but the latest letter from T. W. Beaulieu, district six engineer, is asking the cost of relocating the line and the impact on user costs if the users have to bear the brunt of the relocation cost. The SHA says it does not have the funds for the relocation but officials are now investigating the possibility of obtaining a grant.

Wendell Beitzel, sanitary district administrator, was authorized by the commission to provide user rate information, user charges and information on the county's inability to fund the line move.

Ask More Funds

Engineers from Greenhorne and O'Mara have asked for a $53,062 increase in the contract fee ceiling, with Henry Doyle explaining the factors which led to the request.

Doyle cited the five-month delay in beginning construction as the main reason, since this caused additional engineering time. The firm also had to work through the winter, as some contractors continued to work whenever weather permitted. The company had also anticipated an overlap between the basic and expanded systems, but the basic system is now nearly 95 percent complete, while work has just begun on the expanded system.

The engineers have also been requested by the sanitary commission to do extra work, such as test pumps to make sure they are functioning properly. A Greenhorne and O'Mara representative must also be available when the property owners begin to make connections to the system to inspect the work.

The sanitary commission approved the request, subject to approval from the grant agencies.

Before moving on to other topics (see separate story) the commission took action to authorize Dale Allen, treatment plant operator, to attend a workshop on biological nutrient removal from wastewater treatment plants. The workshop will be held at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute September 10 through 13.

Bambacus Urges Action On Lake Fishing Regulation

In an effort to resolve the legal confusion surrounding the fishing regulations at Bloomington Lake, Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Allegany, Garrett) has written to Attorney General Stephen Sachs to request final action on the matter.

Bloomington Lake has shoreline in two states, Maryland and West Virginia, where bass fishing regulations differ. Licensed sportsmen from both States currently enjoy the recreational use of the impoundment; however, there is considerable doubt about which State's regulations apply to the catch from the Lake's waters.

"While both States seem to be enforcing their own regulations at the present time," Bambacus said, "I have been informed that overall enforcement has been lax because of the conflicting legal situation. In view of the fact that it has been over two years since this problem emerged early in 1982, I feel that it is time to expedite a resolution now, by means of an interstate agreement with the State of West Virginia."

Bambacus continued by noting that a proposal from West Virginia officials has been sent to Maryland for review. The District I Senator urged that appropriate regulations be promulgated and implemented as soon as possible and offered the assistance of his office in facilitating the process.

Thayer Resigns From GCC Board

Diane Thayer has informed William Goldsborough, chairman of the Garrett Community College Board of Trustees, of her intention to resign from that board, Goldsborough said Tuesday.

Chairman Goldsborough said he received a copy of a letter from Mrs. Thayer to the governor indicating that she wished to resign, but gave no definite reasons for her decision. He described the letter as "gracious", and said that he has not talked to Mrs. Thayer since receiving the letter about two weeks ago.

Mrs. Thayer could not be reached by telephone to comment on her resignation.

Our Turn

HUMANAE EXHAUSTUS
by Susan Alvarez

Alas, there is a malady most common to young mothers this time of year—"Humanae Exhaustus," otherwise known of "End-of-Summeritis." One should be ever wary of its overt symptoms:

1. Whiplash—This is from jerking the head rapidly from side to side trying to watch two or more children in the water simultaneously while they are in two or more different areas of the pool, lake, etc.

2. Stooped shoulders—The result of having to carry sand toys, beach chairs, towels, coolers full of snacks, thermoses, etc., approximately 153 times back and forth from the parking lot to the beach area.

3. Over-stretched lungs—This symptom coincides with a blue face and is a result of lack of oxygen from continuously blowing up rafts, inner tubes, "swimmies," and beach balls.

4. Raw fingertips—This is from digging in the bottom of your purse or pocket in search of change for Coke machines, ice cream, and treats that all of the concession stands (they seem to breed and multiply during the warm months) advertise.

5. Singed nostrils—Caused by weeks of standing over charcoal grills roasting hamburgers, hot dogs, and retrieving marshmallows that have fallen into the coals.

6. Tone deafness—Resulting from three months of listening to "Watch me, Mom!"

7. Blistered feet—This is caused by running all over town trying to buy clothes, lunchboxes, pencils, crayons, etc., to outfit children for school.

Take heart, though, there is a cure for "End-Of-Summeritis." It's watching children walking to the bus stop on the first morning of school. (One note of caution, however. One must keep a tissue close at hand as relief is usually always accompanied by watering of the eyes).

away. Following the surgery, she sent a letter of commendation regarding "the fine care" she received. Along with the letter, she mailed a substantial donation to the hospital.

Another patient came back several days after treatment to personally thank the hospital staff for the care he received, Beck said.

The administrator stated that the positive patient responses have not been limited to one or two areas. Similar responses have been received by the hospital's Cardio-Pulmonary, Obstetrical, Physical Therapy and other service departments, as well as on medical/surgical floors.

Beck went on to state that he was pleased that patients recognize the value in having a modern, well-equipped hospital facility, staffed with the best medical and technical personnel available.

"Our community can be proud of Garrett County Memorial Hospital," Beck said, "but more importantly, we all can be assured of the best possible care in a time of need. As I mentioned before, the credit must go to our employees and medical staff, who make it all possible."

DNR Assessing

and applause when he decried the proposed speed limit and went on to say "I do not feel the state of Maryland should tell me what the hell I can own unless they are going to buy them all back." Campbell was referring to the regulation that no more than three boats may be kept at any one private dock, and only two of those can have motors.

Another idea which drew applause was the suggestion that the DNR do a study to tabulate the accidents resulting from excessive speed before implementing a speed limit. Many foresee enormous problems determining speed since speedometers are not standard equipment and speedguns are being criticized as unreliable.

The lake advisory board had recommended a 30-foot buffer limit to keep boats away from docks, which the DNR upped to 100 feet. Z. Shapiro suggested a 50-foot buffer zone.

Boat Length Limit Opposed

Although many property, boat and marina owners are adamantly opposed to a 25-foot length for power boats (except pontoons which may be 30 feet long) none put it as succintly as William Wolf who said "I can assure you the only difference between a 25-foot boat and 30-foot is that one is five feet longer.

Grandfather Desired

For many of the citizens present, it seemed as though the regulations say that after five years the DNR could drop dock permits and other current privileges at will. The DNR officials took steps to reassure the citizens that their concerns about deeded access, condominiums and other nonconforming uses will be given consideration in the completed regulations.

Education Required

A number of citizens voiced concern over the boat operation by inexperienced drivers. One county resident, Joyce Bishoff, said she had never heard this topic addressed before and spoke out on the number of very young drivers, some as young as seven, behind the steering wheels.

Other comments ranged from offering courses in boating the same as for hunting, to having drivers obtain licenses after completing a training course. Paul Murphy, a small craft safety instructor, said he does not think the state fulfills its responsibility to the people. He pointed out that many boat drivers do not know they are responsible for their wake and suggested that the state require courses in boat operation. His remarks also drew applause from an appreciative audience.

Ed Roszell, Turkey Neck, agreed with a licensing or mandatory training course, a sentiment echoed by many other participants.

Dennis Tompkins, representing the Allegany-Garrett Sportsman's organization, suggested having no wake zones in the smaller coves, and that a responsible adult be in a boat with any operator under age 16. He also questioned whether a speed limit is needed but said his group has no formal position on the regulations as yet.

Dick Peake, speaking as both a property owner with deeded access and as a member of the Deep Creek Sailing Association, said he could find nothing in the regs to address the sailing facilities on the lake.

Leo O'Neill, a member of Sky Valley Association, said that group does not fall into any of the classifications listed in the proposal.

Other concerns were that boats will be required to have only one engine, and the current level of noise pollution from boats. Several said it's like living beside an unmonitored playground and said if all boats are on the lake at once, the saturation point has already been reached.

MacLauchlan commented Wednesday on the "great" conduct of the citizens attending the meeting. After 20 years of attending such meetings, he said Sunday's crowd was a credit to the people and cited their conduct as gentlemanly throughout. He pointed out that some things suggested by the lake advisory board, particularly regarding the lake board as the appeal authority, were technically against Maryland law. These proceedings are already designated by law to be handled in the circuit courts.

Ed King, new president of the Property Owners Association of Deep Creek Lake, said after the meeting he feels the advisory committee has done a very good job to get the process started. "Of course there is always gnashing of teeth in this type of issue but it looks like we're coming along with a good set of regulations."

Robert Watson said Wednesday that the advisory committee has voted to meet with the property owners and other special interest groups such as marina operators after the final changes are made by DNR. He was not totally happy with the speed limit, elimination of the advisory board as the appeal entity, and insertion of a 100-foot buffer zone to keep boats away from the docks—all DNR changes—but had no other comment at this time.

When questioned about the rumors of resignations from the advisory board following Sunday's meeting, he said he knew of no one who was resigning. When questioned, another board member said changes made in Annapolis had obliterated about 25 percent of the committee's ideas and work during the past two years and although admittedly discouraged, he had not yet offered his resignation.

In another window breaking incident, Michael Roger Allison, Mt. Lake Park, reported that someone either shot or threw a projectile through the windshield of his 1978 Ford Pinto while he was traveling east on Route 135 on August 21.

Merchants Seeking More Food Booths For Autumn Glory

More food booths in downtown Oakland during Saturday of Autumn Glory are needed and being sought, according to the Oakland Merchants Association.

Jack Jones, president of the Association, stated that there is an excellent opportunity for non-profit organizations to operate food booths because in the past there has been a limited variety of food for sale. Items such as hamburgers, hot dogs, turkey sandwiches and homemade cakes and pies were suggested since they have not been available in previous years.

Jones also suggested that the booths continue to operate during and particularly after the Grand Feature Parade since there are so many people in Oakland at that time.

Organizations desiring to operate a food booth, or another type of booth, may obtain permits from the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park Lions Club. Persons are asked to contact James R. (Smokey) Stanton, coordinator, at 20 S. Eighth Street, Oakland, There is a small fee for the permits.

Stanton stated that the Lions Club has a limited number of booths which may be used by other organizations, or persons may elect to use their own booths.

Goldstein Proposes Tax Exemption On Social Security

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein has urged Governor Harry Hughes and the leadership of the General Assembly to endorse emergency legislation that would exempt from Maryland Income taxes any Social Security income which became taxable under legislation enacted by the U.S. Congress and signed by President Reagan in 1983. Under that legislation, some Social Security benefits became taxable on January 1, 1984.

"Without this exemption, we estimate that approximately 50,000 Maryland individuals will pay $7.4 million in state income tax and $3.7 million in local income tax on Social Security benefits during Fiscal Year 1985," Goldstein said.

The comptroller noted that a specific exemption is needed because the taxable Social Security benefits will be included in the taxpayer's Federal adjusted gross income, the starting point for computing Maryland income tax liability. "Without a specific exemption, that income automatically becomes taxable under Maryland law," Goldstein stated.

Approximately 38 states have chosen not to tax the newly taxable Social Security income. Maryland's neighboring states of Delaware and Virginia have exempted those benefits and Pennsylvania does not tax any retirement income. "These exemptions are well justified because the purpose of taxing the benefits at the federal level is to beef up the Social Security and Railroad Retirement Trust Funds. The same justification does not exist at the State level," the comptriller said.

While two bills creating the specific exemption were introduced in the 1984 session of the Maryland General Assembly, neither was enacted because there was no revenue source to replace the revenue which would be lost.

"There will be additional revenue coming to the State of Maryland as a result of the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984, recently signed by President Reagan," Goldstein said. "While we are still analyzing the legislation's fiscal impact, it is apparent that it will produce enough revenue to allow the General Assembly to enact this exemption for Social Security income without any adverse effect on state revenue."

The comptroller said that, if it appeared emergency legislation would be introduced in the 1985 Session of the Maryland General Assembly, he would include a special advisory to taxpayers in the Maryland Tax packet they will receive in January, 1985.

Auto Accidents Send Four To Local Hospital

Two separate automobile accidents sent four people to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad Tuesday, according to the Maryland State Police Detachment in McHenry.

Mary Edna Golightly, Davis W. Va., was treated and released at the hospital following a three-car accident at the intersection of The Big Tee Shopping Center and U.S. Route 219, just north of Oakland.

Golightly was traveling south on Route 219 when a 17-year-old youth from Terra Alta, W. Va., who was traveling north, attempted to make a left-hand turn into the shopping center. The young man struck the Golightly vehicle pushing it into a vehicle waiting to exit the shopping center occupied by Maria R. Gonder, Oakland.

Tfc. Larry Rosage investigated the 1:20 p.m. accident and charged the youth with failure to grant right-of-way and failure to have a driver's license in his possession.

In another accident, Suesann Crossland, 27, Oakland, and her two children, Kimberly and Tara, were treated and released at the hospital following a 1 p.m. mishap which occurred on the Oakland-Sang Run Road.

Crossland was following a Garrett County Roads Department truck which was equipped with a large broom sweeping the roadway. The broom truck, driven by Joseph Daniel Tichinel, was making so much dust it obstructed the view of Crossland, causing her to run into the broom.

Tichinel was cited by Tfc. Larry Rosage for failure to have a driver's license in his possession.

School Buses To Use Off-Road Loading Procedure

Beginning Monday, September 10, school buses providing services along U.S. Rt. 219 North from U.S. Rt. 40 (Hill Top) to the Pennsylvania State line, and along State Rt. 135 from the intersection of Rt. 38 to Bloomington, will be using an off-road loading zone procedure at student bus stops, according to a release from the Garrett County Board of Education.

The off-road procedure was utilized during the last school year and proved "very successful" the release stated. With these additions, loading zones will be used on Rt. 219 North from the Pennsylvania State line to Rt. 219 South at Gortner, and on Rt. 135 (Oakland) to the intersection of Route 495 (Swanton), Route 135 at the intersection of Rt. 38 to Bloomington.

Where loading zones are used, school vehicles do not stop on the roadway nor do they use flashing red lights. At school bus stops where students must cross the highway to board or leave, the bus will remain on the highway and traffic is required to stop.

Motorists are reminded that when a school bus has activated its flashing red lights, traffic must stop at least ten feet from the front and rear of the school bus. In order to avoid confusion in the areas designated to utilize the off-road precedures, the following rule applies: if red warning lights are flashing, stop; if no lights are on, continue past the bus with caution.

Bees

It is common this time of the year to have unprovoked stinging by honey bees in the fields. While most people react normally to bee stings with some swelling and itching, 1% of the population is allergic to bee stings and experience dizziness, difficulty in breathing, and in extreme untreated cases, death. It is highly unlikely that these bee attacks are caused by the Africa bees which are steadily moving northward from South America. Instead, the aggressive tendency of honey bees at this time of the season can be attributed to the following: There is a lack of nectar from July through the fall and honey bees become irritable because they are not making honey. Many bees are flying aimlessly searching for nectar sources and returning empty. Colonies put out for pollination are usually in a long row in the middle of a field with few distinguishing land marks that allow bees to orient back to their own hive. Bees that attempt to enter a hive that is not theirs are run away by the bees that occupy the hive. These bees become even more irritable and are likely to sting people or animals as much as 150 yards from where the hives are located.

There are several things you can do to help this situation: 1) Provide a nearby water source for the bees. Almost any kind of container will do. Put sticks in the water so the bees won't drown. 2) Place the colonies in different patterns with some entrances at 90° angles to one another. Break up the long lines of hives anyway you can so bees will find their own hives more easily. 3) Take care not to bump the hives with any farm equipment and don't let anyone throw things at the hives. This makes the bees extremely aggressive. 4) Have an Epi-pen® available in case someone has difficulty breathing after being stung. The Epi-pen® is simply pressed to the skin and a dose of epiphenerin is injected into the person. Administering this requires no skill, but read the instructions before hand and make sure everyone knows where it is kept. Then take the victim to a doctor or hospital in case further treatment is needed. The Epi-Pen® is available by prescription only.

Bookshop Will Reprint Browning's "Forty-Four Years"

The Appalachian Bookshop announced this week there will be a second commemorative printing of Meshach Browning's "Forty-Four Years of the Life of a Hunter."

The reprint of the early nineteenth century autobiography commemorates the 200th anniversary of Browning's birth in 1781 and is a faithful reproduction of the original text of the 1859 edition. Browning wrote his reminiscences during the last two years of his life. The book was first published in the year of Browning's death.

The book reproduces not only the prose but the hunting scene engravings by Edward Stabler, the table of contents and the list of illustrations. The more than 400 page edition, "Roughly Written Down by Himself," was originally published by J.B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia, after being edited by Stabler.

This special edition is 1,000 numbered copies bearing a commemorative imprint, according to Ivan Rowe, proprietor of the Appalachian Bookshop. Anyone interested in obtaining a copy, which will cost approximately $25, is requested to contact the bookshop at 334-4334 or write to Rowe, Second and Oak Streets, Oakland.

Browning, who is buried in the Catholic cemetery at Hoyes, settled at Sang Run, where he and his wife, Mary McMullen, reared ten children. In the course of raising their family, Browning hunted to keep meat on the table and to add to his income by selling meat and pelts. Browning estimated he had killed 1,800 deer, 300 to 400 bears, and 50 panthers in addition to uncounted turkeys, wolves and wildcats, and rattlesnakes.

Creek pollution, and boating safety.

Robert Blasingame explained the rural residential zoning category, and outlined development of the south end of Marsh Mountain and the McCann properties near Deep Creek Lodge.

William Foster presented comments and information on the Penn Point Marriott proposal, explaining plans for development of the motel site and amenities.

Michael Gregory, Deep Creek Lake manager, explained preparations for the public information meeting scheduled for August 26. Questions from the audience were noted and answers deferred until the meeting the following day.

Harry Filemyr, chairman of the Garrett County Sanitary Commission, gave a status report on the lake sewer construction project.

Rodney Glotfelty, of the Garrett County Health Department, informed the group of the health department's monitoring of acid drainage pollution in Cherry Creek Cove. It appears the levels fluctuate according to the time of the year, but health officials are unsure at present for the reason behind this.

The health department is seeking assistance from a state agency which has access to a boat to keep better tabs on the situation.

The property owners' organization agreed to form a committee to look into the problem and to send a letter to the Bureau of Mines regarding mine spillage into the lake. That letter is also to take into consideration results of the Garrett Community College study of lake pollutions.

Robert Blasingame gave a report on the recent boat inspections, followed by a talk by Sgt. Robert Buckley of the DNR police on various activities on the lake this summer, such as arrests, warning, the status of police boat equipment, and the increase in thefts from boats and lake properties.

TRIATHLON WINNERS — The champions of the first Western Maryland Triathlon last year came back to successfully defend their titles in the second annual Triathlon, held Saturday at Deep Creek Lake in the McHenry area. Diane Miller, Pittsburgh, and Steve Ruckert, Westminster, seated, crossed the finish line first in their respective divisions (female and male) to defeat over 80 other athletes from a several-hundred-mile radius of Garrett County. The event consists of a one-half mile swim, followed by a 13-mile bicycle ride and a three-mile run up and back down Marsh Mountain at the Wisp Ski Area. Placing second in the same divisions were Rebecca Jones, Cumberland, and Kyle Norris, LaVale, pictured left, and in third place were Glynn Loeb and Kenny Gray, pictured right. Ruckert and Miller are seated in their trophy Foxtown Hickory Rockers.

KICKING FURIOUSLY, as if being chased by Deep Creek Lake "sharks", were the nearly 90 athletes who competed in the second annual Western Maryland Triathlon Saturday. The contestants were all quite fresh when this shot was taken, just moments into the three-event competition. Such was not the case over one hour later following a 13-mile bike ride and a three-mile run up and down Marsh Mountain.

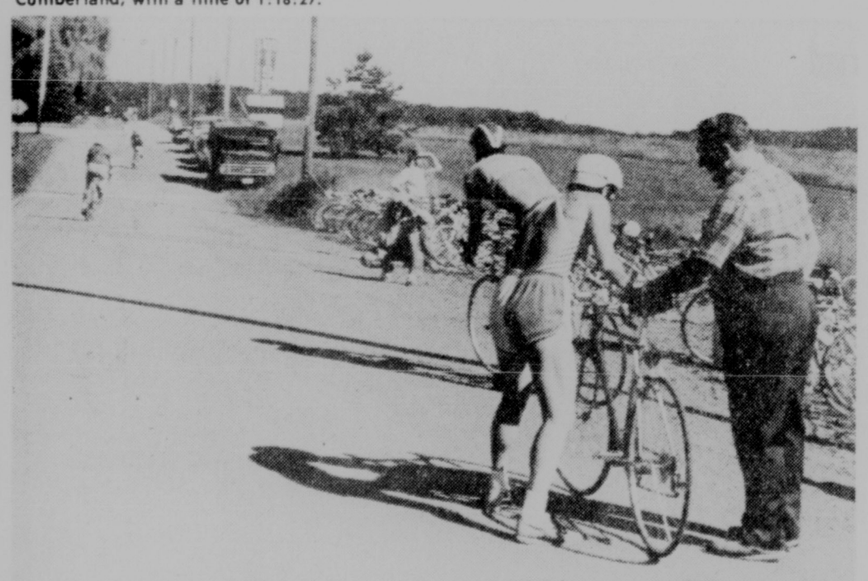
Oakland Sweeps Savage; However Out Of Finals

Mark Rodeheaver picked up his fifth and sixth wins of the season against no losses, as Oakland swept Mt. Savage in Pen-Mar Baseball League action Sunday afternoon on the Southern High School diamond.

The 8-5 and 12-5 victories gave Oakland an 18-12 overall record, but the local team was nonetheless eliminated from the top four teams which will compete for the league championship. Oakland was edged out of the top four by Moorefield, which split in a doubleheader on Saturday. The other teams gaining the finals were Tri-Towns, Hyndman, and Everett.

In the first game against Mt. Savage, Francis Mouse rapped three hits, while Lawrence Nesselrodt and Tim Mouse each finished with two. Both of Nesselrodt's hits were doubles and Tim Mouse smacked a home run, as did Dave Bender. Tim Mouse also scored three runs.

George Dom, Dennis Shipe and Rick Stevens paced the losers with two hits each. Bob Uhl and Shipe hit home runs.



Nesselrodt and Tim Mouse also led the offense in the second contest as each recorded three hits. Stan Fitzwater added a pair of doubles and Bender also finished with two hits. Rich Stiffey socked a three-run blast for Oakland.

Dom and Ken Winebrenner each collected two hits for Mt. Savage.

Oakland will complete its regular season either on Saturday or Monday against visiting Hyndman.

THE FASTEST FINISHER in the second annual Western Maryland Triathlon, held Saturday in McHenry, was defending champion Steve Ruckert, Westminster, who completed the three-event competition in a time of one hour, four minutes, 58 seconds. Below, female winner Diane Miller, Pittsburgh, begins the second leg of the race, a 13-mile bike ride. Miller finished with a time of one hour, 16 minutes, 47 seconds to also defend her championship. Ruckert was followed across the finish by Kyle Norris, LaVale, who recorded a 1:10:55, and the second female finisher was Rebecca Jones, Cumberland, with a time of 1:18:27.

Mt. Top Paving Tops Women's Volleyball League

The Mountain Top Women's Volleyball League brought its fifth season to a close with Mt. Top Paving in first place, Youman's Excavating in second, Brenda's Body Shop third, and Pizza Pub fourth.

Mt. Top Paving, the first team to complete a season with a undefeated record, scored 39 wins and no losses. The Mt. Top Pavers and Youman's Excavating both received a team trophy, with t-shirts awarded to individual team members.

Brenda's Body Shop and the Pizza Pub received a team trophy for third and fourth, respectively.

The end-of-season tournament involved 12 teams from the league. Mt. Top Paving made a final rally and defeated Youman's Excavating for the championship title. Members of the Mt. Top Paving team received a t-shirt, and a team trophy to their sponsor. Youman's Excavating, second and Brenda's Body Shop, third, received a team trophy for their efforts.

The teams placed as follows in the 1984-85 volleyball season: Mt. Top Paving, Youman's Excavating, Brenda's Body Shop, Pizza Pub, Garrett Auto, Bernard Realty, Beitzel Welding, Eisentrout's Used Cars, Bandag, Holzshu-Moffatt-Welch Agency, Sugar Bears, Friend Realty and My-O-Tire.

Pen-Mar League To Raise Monies For Hyndman, Pa.

In an effort to aid fellow league members, the Pen-Mar Baseball League voted unanimously at a recent meeting to create a fund to help the merchants and residents of Hyndman, Pa., which was ravaged by a flood August 13.

One of the nine teams in the league is from Hyndman.

The principal fund-raising activity will be the raffle of a 1984 Chevette from Campbell Chevrolet. The winning ticket will be drawn at the annual Pen-Mar League dinner Saturday, November 3, at Clarysville Inn.

The automobile will be on display in a number of areas in the meantime, including downtown Oakland during the Autumn Glory Festival.

League president Fred (Tack) Clark stated the 1984 league yearbook will be dedicated to the people of Hyndman.

"We also wish to dedicate the league in this coming year to helping the merchants who have supported us through the years and the team members who have given us their time and enthusiasm in team competition," he said.

"We hope to not just give these courageous people our moral support, but also much needed financial support they need to get back on their feet. This is just one small way we have of showing our gratitude for the many years that Hyndman has supported the league."

The regular season games in the league will be completed this weekend and the championship playoffs among the top four teams will be played September 8-9.

Bridge Slated

Dr. Pope said that the health department is attempting to form a user group with other county agencies that are utilizing similar computer systems, so information can be shared. He said that the hospital, the county roads department, Garrett Community College, and others are utilizing the IBM System 34 or 36 computers, in addition to the health department.

Development

Tom Jones, county economic development department director, said that the Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development's 800 number, established to allow businesses throughout the state to get immediate answers to their questions about available financial assistance programs from the state, has not worked out as well as anticipated. He said that most of the businesses that have used the number have been private retail and service businesses that are ineligible for the kinds of funding available.

Soil Conservation

John Reckner, director of the county soil conservation office, told the board that some counties throughout the state want to keep control of enforcement of stormwater control measures, while relinquishing the right to sediment management control. Reckner said he did not see how the two could be separated, since many practices serve both programs, and separate enforcement would require a dual review process that would be unwieldy and more costly.

Zoning

Zoning administrator John Nelson updated the board on the progress in the trial of Blaine Frantz and Interstate Lumber in District Court for failure to obtain necessary county permits and violating the regulations of the Youghiogheny River scenic corridor. Nelson said that the judge accepted a motion of not guilty on the charge of violation of the Yough regulations on the basis that the corridor has not been clearly defined and marked. The judge requested memoranda from both attorneys regarding the county permit issue before making a decision on that charge.

Environmental Health

Edgar Harman, director of environmental health, said that his department has received a number of calls about the possibility of invoking the Oakland sewage moratorium to block the rehabilitation of housing for rental to lower income families through a program funded by the Department of Housing and Urban Development and administered by Community Action. Harman said he told the callers that the moratorium is not applicable to their concerns.

Harman called the recent meeting between the State Highway Administration and concerned citizens of the Grantsville area regarding salt contamination in that area, "a good exchange of information," and said that such exchanges are necessary so the SHA "knows what is going on." He said that his department is still doing samplings to see how far the problem area extends.

Western Md. Consortium

Sue Shockey, director of the county Western Maryland Consortium office, reported that summer programs, including the Older Youth, Maryland Youth Conservation Corps, and Board of Education programs, are winding down for the summer, with fall and winter programming to focus on adults rather than youth.

Summer Older Youth Employment Program Focuses On Personal Growth

Twenty-one 18-21-year-old county youth, mostly high school dropouts, recently ended a two-month program designed to improve their employability through on-the-job work experience and workshops that focused on personal growth and development, as well as career preparedness, job-hunting, and career exploration.

The Jobs Training Partnership Act's Older Summer Youth Program was administered by the local Western Maryland Consortium office, with Patricia Yoder serving as coordinator and director.

The program culminated Tuesday with a final workshop that featured several private-sector employers who explained their criteria for hiring and firing employees, including jobs skills and requirements necessary for employment in their firms.

The special emphasis on personal growth and development, including work on self-concept, self-discipline, goal-setting, and appropriate behavior, was intended to provide the participants with the opportunity to improve themselves and discover their own strengths as an aid in job placement, Yoder said.

Participants were placed at newly-developed worksites with public-sector employers. The worksites, supervisors, and participants were monitored several times weekly. On these visits the monitor evaluated participants' attitude, work habits and employee-supervisor relationships. As problems arose, they were handled on the spot or through individual counseling.

Yoder commended the cooperating worksites for the excellent supervision and guidance that they provided, and said that the time taken to train and encourage participants will have a lasting impact on the lives of the youth.

She said that the success of the Older Summer Youth Program could be measured by the observable changes in attitude, appearance, and feeling of self-worth which were seen by the staff and supervisors, including participants' pride in their work and themselves. "Without this 'equipment' they may get a job only to lose it. By feeling and knowing that they have strength from within, they will be able to cope with failure as well as success in the work world," Yoder explained.

Sue Shockey, director of the Western Maryland Consortium Office said that the program was the first of its kind offered to older youth through the office. "It was such a success we will want to continue it in the future. It accomplished its purpose, getting the participants into the job market rather than returning to the program next year."

Yoder said that at least two of the participants have gotten permanent jobs as a result of the program, and that she will continue to work with others in the areas of resume preparation, recommendations, and goal attainment even though the program is formally over.

Job-site participants included the Maryland Salem Children's Home, the State Highway Administration, the Garrett Community College Computer Lab, the Department of Environmental Health, the Courthouse maintenance department, the county animal shelter, and the Commission on Aging, including the agency's office and the Finzel, Jennings, and Oakland Senior Citizen Centers.

Peggy Cannon, administrative assistant at the Commission on Aging, was very complimentary about the participants, saying, "They were great. They fell right in and did exactly what they were told. They were a very big asset to the program, especially in the area of meal preparation at the centers. It's a very worthwhile program that I hope will continue."

THE SUMMER OLDER YOUTH EMPLOYMENT PROGRAM ended this week with a workshop by area private sector employers about the criteria they use in hiring and firing employees. Pictured above addressing the group of 21 youth aged 17-21 is Atlee Snyder, owner of Custom Services Ltd., Accident, a manufacturer of custom vans. Other local employers participating in the final workshop were Jack King, representing Bausch and Lomb, Joyce Bishoff from Mountaineer Log and Siding, and Eleanor Ann Collins, representing IBMI.

Report Announces Garrett Free Of Hazardous Waste

Garrett County is one of only three jurisdictions in the state which does not contain possible hazardous waste sites, according to a report published last week by the State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

The master list contains 160 sites and the names of the first 32 sites which will be assessed within the next six months.

Adele Wilzack, Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene, made the announcement but assured citizens that these sites do not represent an imminent threat to health or the environment.

She also said, "The development of these lists is an integral part in a systematic program to identify and remove hazardous wastes which could become a threat in the future." She noted the lists are the first step toward fulfilling requirements passed by the 1984 General Assembly which establish a state Superfund Program.

The master list is organized alphabetically since a priority order has not yet been assigned to the sites. Ranking will take place after a process has been adopted and the sites fully investigated, Wilzack continued. The sites were identified by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Emergency and Remedial Response Information System (ERRIS List) for the state. The list was developed through consolidation of other EPA lists, notification about industrial dumping practices, and requests by the states and citizens.

The 32 sites identified to receive preliminary site assessments by January 1, 1985 were taken from the ERRIS list to learn more about the current status of these locations since little is known about past waste disposal practices. The Office of Environmental Programs' Waste Management Administration has received a contract from EPA to conduct the preliminary assessments at these sites.

In January 1986 the final disposal site registry, a prioritized list of sites, will be published. Maryland's program is to be consistent with the federal Superfund Program and is designed to fund assessment and cleanup of projects which are not eligible for federal funding. Copies of the information are available at the main branch of each county library.

Sites at Midland and Hagerstown are among the 32 to be given preliminary site assessments by January 1. The Midland Sunoco Station on that town's Main Street and the Mack Truck plant in Hagerstown are the only two western Maryland sites scheduled for preliminary assessment.

On the master list for assessment are Cabin Run Landfill, Vale Summit Landfill, Hoffman Landfill, all at Frostburg; and the Celanese Fibers Company, Koppers Co., Limestone Road site, Old Cumberland City-/County dump, near Cumberland.

Washington County has six sites, including Chevron Chemical Co. and W.D. Byron and Sons, both Williamsport; and Fairchild Republic, Koopers Co., Mack Trucks, Magnus Co., in Hagerstown.

The health department in anticipating that at least some sites included on the list may be free of controlled hazardous substances or other potential problems, no further action will be recommended. A site investigation with sampling and monitoring will be initiated if the investigation determines that controlled hazardous substances are suspected or known to be present. If at any time during the investigation it is determined that an emergency situation exists, immediate emergency measures will be implemented.

Questions about the sites and preliminary site assessments should be directed to John W. Koontz, Program Administrator, Enforcement Program, Waste Management Administration, Maryland State Office of Environmental Programs, 201 W. Preston Street, Baltimore 21201.

State Police Make Preparations For Labor Day

Sobriety Checkpoint, Aerial Speed Enforcement, Operation C.A.R.E., and Cooperative Enforcement Programs—these are just some of the additional programs that State Police will be using this Labor Day weekend to help reduce the number of persons killed on Maryland's highways.

Last year, nine persons died on Maryland highways during the three-day Labor Day holiday.

The Sobriety Checkpoint Program is being expanded over the holiday weekend and will include checkpoints on the Eastern Shore, Northern Maryland and Western Maryland. The program is designed to detect a driver who might have too much to drink. In addition to the sobriety checkpoints, the Cooperative Enforcement Program involves 15 police agencies and is designed to maximize police patrols on roads that show a high rate of alcohol-related accidents.

Operation C.A.R.E. is a Combined Accident Reduction Effort that includes State Police and highway patrols from Maine to Florida. The program includes high visibility patrols on the interstate highway system reminding motorists of their responsibility to drive carefully, obey the speed limit and not drive drunk. The C.A.R.E. program will be used in conjunction with the State Police 55 MPH Enforcement Program that not only targets the interstate system, but also takes in other 55 mile per hour highways.

The Aerial Speed Enforcement Program utilizes a single engine airplane and ground stopping team. Speeds are monitored from the air and speeders are stopped by troopers on the ground. The airplane is equipped with VASCAR that clocks a vehicle's speed over a measured distance.

Special Traffic Enforcement Unit personnel will be used to supplement routine patrols in selected areas this holiday weekend.

According to Colonel W.T. Travers, Jr., Superintendent of the State Police, "Working together we can reduce the number of lives that are lost in highway accidents. If everyone used their safety belts, obeyed the speed limit and didn't drive drunk, our highways would be safer for everyone."

GETTING READY FOR LABOR DAY — State Troopers William J. Updegraff, left, and Edward R. Luers, Jr., attach "Operation CARE" decals to their patrols cars in preparation for the Labor Day weekend. All marked State Police cars working on the interstate highway systems in Maryland will display these stickers as a reminder to motorists to drive with care. State Police throughout the country have assigned additional patrols for this holiday weekend and are urging drivers to stay within the speed limit, use their safety belts, and not drive if they have had too much alcohol to drink. DNR Police Note Arrests, Warnings

Officer Walter May of the Deep Creek State Park Office of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Police reported that eight arrests and nine warnings were issued to persons operating boats on Deep Creek Lake this past week.

The arrests included three fishing license violations, two lights violations, one fire extinguisher violation, one skiing violation and one personal flotation device violation.

Warnings were issued for three skiing violations, two lights violations, two fishing license violations, one negligent operation violation and one fire extinguisher violation.

Cpl. Joe Stein of the DNR Police recovered a stolen boat on August 19 in the vicinity of Alpine Village. The 1971 Century boat, belonging to Jolyan McCamic, Wheeling, W. Va., had been reported stolen on August 8.

Happy Birthday, Joey

Little Joey DiSimone appeared in The Republican newspaper two years ago. He was shown waiting four hours and not to be denied his seat at the Autumn Glory parade. On August 24, he celebrated his 6th birthday at a party held at the home of his parents, Rick & Barbara DiSimone.

A rocket cake was baked to honor Joey. Guests attending included Mrs. Tom Panther & children, Jenny & Brian; Mrs. Joe DiSimone & son, Justin; Mrs. Randy DiSimone, Jamie Leigh Bowser, Angela & Erick Crosco, Mr. & Mrs. Mick Warnick & children, Jessica & David; Mr. & Mrs. Willard Paugh, Joey's grandparents, Mr. & Mrs. Joseph DiSimone, and brother & sisters of the honored guest, Melissa, Carrie & Nathan. Joey's great-grandfather, Burlin Holler, was among those who presented gifts.

Boating Violations Bring Big Fines To Swanton Man

A Swanton man was found guilty and fined over $1,000 on four boating violation charges in Garrett County District Court proceedings by Judge Jack Turney on August 27.

Kenneth Wayne Kyle, 23, Sky Valley, was fined $500 plus court costs on a charge of operating a motorboat while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs, $500 plus court costs for failure to render assistance at the scene of a boat accident, $50 plus court costs for reckless driving and $50 plus court costs for operating a motorboat without running lights.

In another boating violation case, Michael A. Green, Mt. Lake Park, was found guilty of operating a motorboat while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs and fined $500 plus court costs. Judge Turney suspended $200 of the fine and ordered Green to attend DWI school.

Loar Auxiliary To Meet; Seeks New Members

The Loar Auxiliary of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital will hold its first meeting of the year on Tuesday, September 11, in the Board Room at the hospital.

The Executive Committee will meet at 12:30 p.m., with a general meeting at 1:30 p.m. The Auxiliary will then tour the emergency room of the hospital. All present members are requested to bring their crafts for the Autumn Glory Booth.

Anyone interested in becoming a member of the Auxiliary is invited to attend the meeting to learn more about its activities. The Auxiliary is an integral part of the volunteer program at the hospital and offers many opportunities to serve, according to a spokesman for the organization.

The Gift Shop located in the hospital lobby is operated by the Auxiliary. They also circulate the Gift Cart to the patients' rooms on a daily basis. Other Auxiliary activities include the May Flea Market and the October Autumn Glory Craft Booth.

At seven-forty in our town you could always find a dozen families down by the depot. It made the evening — just seeing the Queen roar by. That's what we called her, although the timetable with proper formality announced her as the "Queen of the Valley." And that she was! Every living soul thrilled to her whistle as she flashed by the grade crossings.

Why has train-watching become a forgotten fun? Did the trains change too much? Or did the people?

If there were a Queen due at seven-forty tonight, would we all be too busy to care?

There are several places in our town where sophistication and indifference haven't taken their toll . . . where simplicity is appreciated . . . where truth is treasured. Our churches!

They are serving the spiritual needs of modern society. And keeping a lot of old-fashioned values from becoming forgotten.

WHAT IS DIFFERENT ABOUT OUR PHARMACY?

Every pharmacy has its own personality. It is based upon appearance, service, dependability, completeness of stock, the attitude of the people who work in that pharmacy. We feel that our pharmacy scores highly in all these personality factors but still we are always striving to improve upon them.

This extra effort to project a friendly and professional public image is what we feel makes us different. When someone comes into our pharmacy for the first time or the thousandth time, we want them to feel that they are receiving the best possible service that we can provide.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE SAME, BUT DIFFERENT
September 2, 1984

Background Scripture:
Acts 7:54 through 8:3; 9:1-19; Galations 1

Devotional Reading:
Acts 9:20-31.

Before the Damascus Road experience, Saul was clearly an enemy to Christ and the Gospel. At the martyrdom of Stephen, Acts tells us, "Saul was consenting to his death" (8:1). And when, on the heels of that, persecution broke out against the Christians, Acts tells us, "Saul laid waste the church, and entering house after house, he dragged off men and women and committed them to prison" (8:3). It was still in this mood that Saul later set off for Damascus: "breathing threats and murder against the disciples of the Lord..." (9:1).

SAUL TO PAUL

After the Damascus Road experience, Saul became an ardent disciple of Jesus Christ. Even before he left Damascus, Saul appeared in the synagogues proclaiming Jesus, "saying, 'He is the Son of God' " (9:20). From this day forward, Saul had a new vocation: an apostle of Jesus Christ.

Not only did Saul have a new vocation, but a new reputation as well. In fact, people didn't know what to make of this man. In Damascus they were amazed and asked, "Is not this the man who made havoc in Jerusalem of those who called on this name?" (9:21). And, later in Jerusalem, when he "attempted to join the disciples," Acts tells us "they were all afraid of him, for they did not believe that he was a disciple" (9:26). Later, they would start referring to him by his Roman name, Paul, instead of the Hebrew name, Saul.

Was this the same man, or someone different?

Actually, Saul the persecutor of Christ and Paul the Apostle for Christ were both the same and different persons. Paul was still as intense, ardent and zealous as he had always been. He was still a man of deep dedication and commitment. He was still a rugged individualist and even perhaps a bit eccentric. He still was a well-educated and talented man who knew both Jewish and Roman worlds. He was still a doer, a man who made things happen.

A NEW DIRECTION

But Paul was also different, too. The difference was not so much in his personality, but in the use to which he put that personality. Whereas once his intensity, ardor, and zeal had been for Pharasaism, now all of this single-mindedness was harnessed for Christ. His dedication and commitment were focused upon the Gospel and his fine education and remarkable talents were now dedicated to the church.

There may be people who, when confronted with their own Damascus Road encounters, become completely different people. Most of us, however, need only to change the course of our lives. What talents and gifts we give to lesser pursuits need to be dedicated to Christ. Christ does not ask us to be someone else, but rather to use who we really are — as we were created to be — for him and the Good News of the Christian message and mission.

Fun Tax Revenue Down Slightly

State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced this week that Marylanders spent $327,945,135 on taxable entertainment during Fiscal Year 1984, slightly less than the $328,097,289 spent during the previous fiscal year.

Maryland's counties, cities, and towns benefited to the tune of $19,935,972 in admissions and amusement tax revenues during Fiscal Year 1984, up nearly 7% over the $18,668,844 distributed to the subdivisions for Fiscal Year 1983. Garrett County received $90,069 in Fiscal '84, compared to $76,157 for Fiscal '83.

Spending for entertainment included $53,331,983 for movies, producing $3,129,289 in tax revenue. The declining popularity of coin-operated amusement devices was reflected by the $51,422,095 spent in that category during Fiscal Year 1984, a steep drop of nearly 31% compared to the $74,383,264 spent during the previous fiscal year. Tax revenue generated by the devices totaled $3,766,103, a decrease of more than 11% compared to the $4,224,294 generated in that category in Fiscal Year 1983.

Sports fans spent $35,470,013 for admission to athletic events, up 46% from similar spending during the previous fiscal year. The $2,945,847 in tax revenue produced in that category was an increase of nearly 55% above the tax revenue generated in Fiscal Year 1983. Spending for golf activities amounted to $15,766,192, accounting for $858,721 in admissions and amusement tax revenues. Live theatre and concert-goers spent $10,534,120, yielding $738,997 in tax revenue.

Patrons spent $10,153,440 for admission to night clubs and $80,348,002 for refreshments and other merchandise in night clubs and other locations to which an admission is charged.

Admissions and amusement tax rates are set by local elected officials, while the tax receipts are collected by the State Comptroller's Office and distributed to the local subdivisions.

"Final payments covering the fourth quarter of Fiscal Year 1984 (April, May and June) totaling $4,941,113 have been mailed to the local subdivisions," Goldstein said, noting that the quarterly distribution marked an increase of more than 7% above the amount distributed during the same quarter in the previous fiscal year.

POW Outreach Increases VA Claims 30 Percent

A new Veterans Administration study shows that more than one-third of the nation's living former prisoners of war are now receiving VA disability compensation payments. The VA says claims have increased by more than 30 percent since the agency began intensive POW outreach in October 1981.

The study, presented to a recent meeting of the VA's Advisory Committee on Former Prisoners of War, summarizes the results of physical examinations conducted among some 12,000 POWs who sought disability ratings or increases since enactment of special POW legislation in 1981. The vast majority of the claims—nearly 8,000—were filed by World War II veterans with European Theater Service.

The Committee, formed in 1982, provides the VA Administrator with recommendations concerning the delivery of health care and other benefits to the nation's 88,000 living POWs. The 12-member committee is chaired by retired Air Force Lt. Gen. John P. Flynn, a prisoner of North Vietnam for 5½ years. Membership includes physicians and other individuals who have personal knowledge of the POW experience.

Outreach activities by VA have been directed toward informing POWs of priority access to medical care and the claims review process. Among several steps taken to make information more readily available was the installation of a toll-free POW Hotline (800-821-8139). VA is also developing a computer system for analyzing POW claims and health data.

While the VA study reflected increased claims activity, it also showed that 63 percent of the POWs already assigned disability ratings did not request reviews. The VA continues to urge all POWs to participate in a special protocol examination designed to gather in-depth information about these veterans and their current health.

Former POWs can schedule examinations by contacting any VA medical center, clinic or regional office.

Goldstein Reports Fuel Tax Revenue

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced that motor fuel tax collections for the first month of Fiscal Year 1985 totalled $22,796,725, slightly less than the $22,942,537 collected during the same period a year ago.

"These revenues, collected for July, 1984, are based on consumption during June, 1984," Goldstein said.

He noted that motor fuel consumption during June, 1984 amounted to 183,842,271 gallons, slightly less than the 184,460,571 gallons used during June, 1983.

"The decline in revenue is primarily attributable to the fact that the motor fuel tax rate did not increase this year, as it did on June 1, 1983. On that date, the motor fuel tax rate increased from 11¢ per gallon to 13.5¢ per gallon, requiring the comptroller to collect a 'floor tax' on fuel in storage tanks," Goldstein said.

The "floor tax" provided a one time only windfall not present in Fiscal Year 1985 revenue.

West Virginia Wanting Heirs Of Civil War Soldiers To Claim Medals

In 1866, the West Virginia Legislature struck 26,099 medals for distribution to Union soldiers who fought in West Virginia regiments. Today, approximately 5,200 medals remain in filing cabinets in the Cultural Center under the jurisdiction of the West Virginia Department of Culture and History waiting to be claimed by the heirs of the soldiers, many of whom came from neighboring states, as well as several from Garrett County, to be mustered into West Virginia regiments. Lists of soldiers from states adjacent to West Virginia's borders have been arranged according to the hometown given by the soldier at the time of his muster. Heirs who can document their descent from the Civil War soldier may make a claim for the medal through the Department's Archives and History Division.

"In many cases soldiers came to West Virginia regiments to enlist because the local regiments in their own states had reached their quotas," said Fredrick Armstrong, Associate Director, Archives and History Division. "Of course, the proximity of the West Virginia regiment just across the state line from their home was conducive to this type of enlistment."

Armstrong explains that the unclaimed medals are still stored in the small cardboard boxes in which they arrived from A. Demarest of New York in 1866-67. Written in longhand on the outside of each box is the soldier's name. and his unit. The medals were struck in three separate classes: Class I medals for officers and soldiers in the volunteer army who were honorably discharged from the service; Class II medals for officers and soldiers who were killed in battle; and Class III medals for officers and soldiers who died of wounds or diseases contracted in the service. Early records show that the largest portion of medals ordered were Class I.

Soldiers from Oakland for whom there are medals in storage include: William T. Bosley, Enoch Louran, Isaiah Markley, Samuel A. McCroby Lemual J. McGloflin, Thomas Nee, Alfred Richards, Ernest Richards, Abraham Thomas and Daniel Thomas, all of Company O, 6th Infantry; and Samuel S. Ambrose, Francis A.R. Nethkin, Henry G. Sanders and William S. Simpson, all of Company B, 3rd Cavalry.

Also listed, from Barton, are Solomon C. Brooks and August Feevay; and from Westernport, James P. Kight and William H. Kight, all of Company C, 2nd Vet. Infantry.

The Department of Culture and History will award the medals to heirs who can provide documentation establishing a line of descent from the Union army veteran. Armstrong specified that such documentation might be drawn from military, census, birth, death, marriage records, and other generally accepted genealogical research records. The applicant for the Civil War medal must present copies of the necessary records, many of which are available in the Cultural Center's Archives and History Library. Personal family documents-letters, diaries, Bible records - may also prove useful in establishing sufficient documentation.

He states that the person documenting the most direct line of descent from the Civil War veteran will receive the medal at the end of a six-month period following submission of the claim. "The six-month period will enable verification of the claim and ample time for any secondary claimants to come forward," Armstrong explained. "In the case of equal claims, the person who submitted the earliest postmarked document claim to the Department will be awarded the medal." The Archives and History Division will accept researched and documented claims until April 12, 1985.

A list of all unclaimed medals is available in the current West Virginia History, Volume 45, a journal of historical articles, which is available at a cost of $8.00 by writing the Department of Culture and History, Cultural Center, Capitol Complex, Charleston, West Virginia, 25305. Identification and information on Union soldiers for whom unclaimed medals remain may be obtained by writing the same address.

DECD Hotline Results Said "Disappointing"

The majority of businesses calling the state Department of Economic and Community Development's (DECD) new toll-free hotline about financial assistance are ineligible for state aid, according to a statement made at Tuesday's county staff meeting by Tom Jones, director of the county's Economic Development department.

Effective August 1, the DECD established a hotline so businessmen can get immediate answers to financing questions. So far, the state has qualified the response as "disappointing" because so few of the firms are eligible for aid. The hotline number is 1-800-OKGREEN (1-800-654-7336.

Jones told the commissoners during the meeting Tuesday results have been especially disappointing to the callers, since the state had not previously published the guidelines for eligible firms. Assistance is available to only two basic types of businesses - those who make something and those who sell 50 percent or more of their product out of the county. The tourism-recreation industry falls into the latter classification.

Most of the calls coming in through the toll-free number have been from "mom and pop" groceries or other retail stores which are in direct competition with another similar store nearby.

Jones had several critical remarks about the program, which he feels is raising many business owners' expectations when none of their problems can be addressed through the available aid.

"There are a lot of businesses that do not qualify for any financial help - local, state or federal. The ground rules preclude certain types of businesses and unfortunately the state does not come up front and say that."

The state is rationalizing that its goal is to "encourage new dollars to flow into the county, rather than just chase the dollars circulating here now," Jones said.

Jones then registered the types of public financing available to local businesses. For short-term equity investments there is the Garrett County Venture Development fund. For operating capital the Tri-County offers revolving loan funds which must be matched by the same amount from a commercial lender. The revolving loan fund offers below-market interest rates.

There are also available Industrial Revneue Bonds and the Small Business Administration's Program 503, as well as the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority (MIDFA). These have available fixed, long-term mortgage loans for purchase of land, construction of buildings or expansion of present facilities, purchases of equipment, furniture, machinery or any depreciable asset of the business.

This week Jones received his first referral from the hotline for a local business, but he declined to reveal the name of the firm to the press.

Carl James Davis was handed a fine of $500 plus court costs.

Judge Turney ordered Robert Leonard Glaze, Jr. to spend thirty days in the Garrett County Jail with 20 days suspended. He was also fined $200 plus court costs.

Farming in Maryland

Goal Of Demonstration Project To Increase Diarymen's Incomes

Forty Maryland dairy farms are being selected to participate in a two-year demonstration project to show producers how they can increase annual income as much as $200 per cow.

The dairy management pilot program is another part of a Profitable and Efficient Production (PEP) three-year educational endeavor of the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

Phase II of the PEP program was begun early this year with a statewide educational campaign which concentrated on milk quality and mastitis control in dairy cows. That effort used closed-circuit television and conference telephone hookups to reach 650 persons from 350 dairy farms gathered at 22 locations in a series of one-day meetings.

The dairy management demonstration project will get underway about October 1, according to Dr. Robert R. Peters, an Extension dairy science specialist at the University of Maryland in College Park.

First item on the agenda will be a complete herd survey of all participating farms. Management practices in mastitis control, nutrition, reproduction, herd health, cropping, and record-keeping will be investigated.

As information for each farm is compiled, a team of Extension specialists at College Park will prepare a set of written recommendations. This team will include expertise in the areas of animal science, veterinary medicine, agricultural engineering and agronomy (crop production). Copies of the recommendations will be sent to appropriate county Extension agents, veterinarians, dairy co-op fieldmen and milking equipment dealers.

At least one member of the Extension specialists team will visit each participating farm, along with a county Extension agent, to discuss the recommendations.

After the recommended changes are made, farm visits will occur every one to three months to fine-tune the changes. Progress in milk production will be monitored via computer print-outs from Dairy Herd Improvement records. Milk will be sampled from individual cows every six months in all participating herds to check progress on mastitis control.

Participating farmers will be asked to visit their county Extension office once a year to review the interpretation of DHI records.

Dr. Peters reports that start-up money for the project has been provided by four regional milk marketing cooperative organizations serving Maryland. Remaining costs will come from a direct charge to each participating dairy farmer and through contributions of staff time by the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

In addition to a financial obligation, each participating dairy producer must agree to the following stipulations:

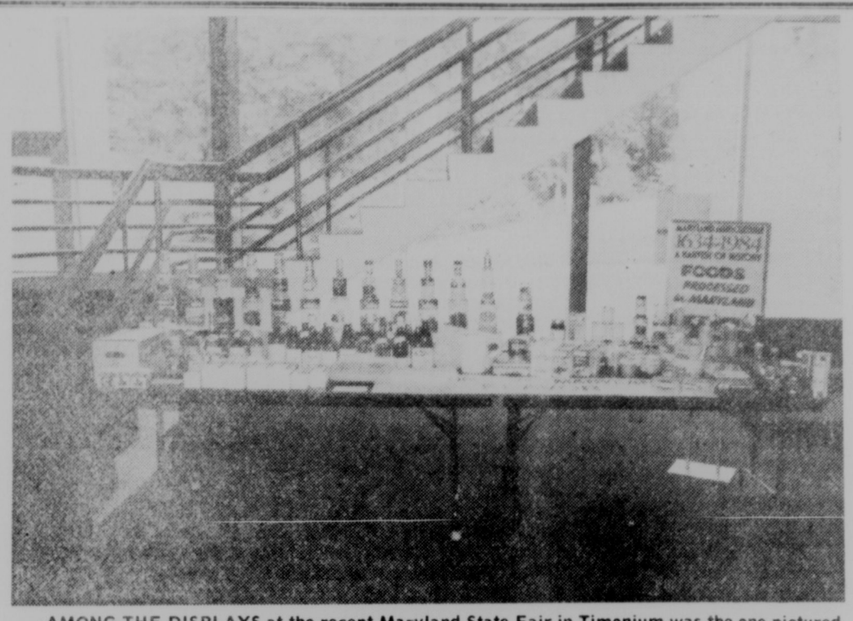
—Obtain signatures of your co-op fieldman, veterinarian and equipment dealer pledging their support in carrying out practices recommended by the University of Maryland Extension team;

—Be a member of the Dairy Herd Improvement milk-testing program and enroll in the DHI somatic cell count program.

For more information, interested farmers should contact their county office of the Cooperative Extension Service or they may make direct inquiry to Dr. Robert R. Peters, 1119 Animal Sciences Building, University of Maryland, College Park, Md. 20742; phone: (301) 454-7830. Deadline for initial inquiry has been extended to September 10, 1984.

Farm Women Participating In Fund Raiser

The Garrett County Farm Bureau's Women's Committee is participating in a fund raising campaign being conducted by the Country Women's Council to promote clean water for rural women in many countries of the world.



Donna Glotfelty, Women's Committee chairman, stated that the "Clean Water Coins" project involves asking citizens to drop a penny in a container for each turn of the water spigot for one day, a week or whatever time span desired. These collecions may then be handed to any Farm Bureau member, officer or director, or taken to the annual Farm Bureau dinner at the Grantsville fire hall on October 24. The Farm Bureau will then send a check for the total amount to the Maryland International Relations chairman to help unfortunate people in many countries of the world.

The Country Women's Council is a subsidiary of the Associated Country Women of the World, one of several agencies working in communities overseas to share the gift of running water.

"Water is the natural resource that people in other countries preserve so preciously and work so hard to get," Mrs. Glotfelty stated. "In India, for instance, water is often carried five miles each way, several times a day in thousands of villages. And in the Upper Volta, women set out to collect water at dawn and don't return until noon . . . this in addition to cutting and carrying firewood, doing field work from nine to ten hours a day, watching children, cooking, cleaning, washing and so on. In many places, the water is not suitable for human consumption and many of the inhabitants become ill, and even die, from drinking unclean water."

A Pennies for Friendship container was placed at the Garrett County Fair this year and last year, and Mrs. Glotfelty noted her appreciation to all who donated.

Doris Wildesen is the International Relations committee chairman for Garrett County.

AMONG THE DISPLAYS at the recent Maryland State Fair in Timonium was the one pictured above, prepared by the Marketing Services section of the Maryland Department of Agriculture. The exhibit, entitled "Favor the Maryland Flavor," is intended to alert the consumers of Maryland to the many foods available to them that are processed or manufactured in the state of Maryland. Several of them are brand name products. According to Helen M. Huber, marketing specialist with the Maryland Department of Agriculture, a printed list of all the firms which sell these products is being prepared and will be available to brokers, wholesalers, retailers, consumer buying groups and individuals. Local farmers who desire to have their products to become part of this exhibit may send labels and empty containers to Tony Evans, Product Promotion Coordinator, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, Md. 21401. His phone number is (301) 841-5770.

Farm Bureau Urges Members To Register, Vote

"Election Campaign '84" is a major effort for Mayland Farm Bureau, according to President Henry Holloway.

The Maryland Farm Bureau Women's Committee, spearheading the project, held training sessions in April and May. Local Women's Committee members are launching activities aimed at "getting out the vote." Campaign '84 projects will center around voter registration, issues awareness, and providing transportation to the polls for those members who will contact the local Farm Bureau organization. Literature will also be distributed, and informative placemats will be provided to local restaurants between now and election time, by the Garrett County Women's Committee, according to Donna Glotfelty, chairman.

County groups throughout the State are busy comparing voter lists with membership rolls. Unregistered Farm Bureau members will be approached to register. Forms were made available by distribution from the Farm Bureau booth at the local fair, and can still be obtained from the local Women's Committee. Many groups have found 25-35% of their members are not registered to vote. Any member who desires help in registering should contact the local Farm Bureau officers or directors as soon as possible, Mrs. Glotfelty said.

The American Farm Bureau Federation estimates Farm Bureau familes and associates could total 18 million votes nationwide.

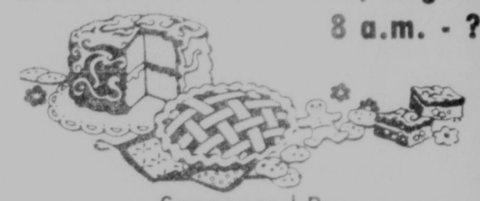
ASCS Compiling Info On Hay Buying, Selling

To help livestock producers who need hay to locate sellers, and assist those with excess hay in locating buyers, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will collect information concerning the need for or the availability of hay and other roughage in the area.

"We began collecting this information in response to last year's drought," said Olin S. Davis, Jr., chairman of the Maryland State ASC Committee. "Since disaster conditions in some areas have created continued shortages, while other areas have a surplus of hay or other roughage, we will continue the service," he said.

"We are contacting other federal agencies, State departments of agriculture, hay dealer associations and all other available private sources for the names of producers with hay or other roughage for sale," he said. The listing will be maintained in the county ASCS office for interested persons to review.

The list of available hay and other roughages will include the producer's name, address and telephone number, the type of roughage, and the amount and approximate price. The ASCS official said hay availability also will be monitored in surrounding States and counties.



Livestock producers who are in need of hay, and those who have hay or other roughage for sale, should contact the county ASCS office as soon as possible. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., weekdays.

Thanks . . .

A sincere "thank you" is extended to Hawkinson Tread Service, Doerr Construction, Inc., and Yoder's Locker Plant for purchasing our steers at the Garrett County Beef Sale.

ZUCCHINI

Zucchini is currently plentiful in Garrett County, so I thought I would share some facts about this squash with you. It is a vegetable that is low in calories and provides fair quantities of Vitamin A and C and small amounts of other vitamins. 3½ ounces of cooked zucchini has only 12 calories. So, if you are watching your weight, try adding zucchini to your diet!

When freezing, use young zucchini. Wash and cut into ½ inch slices. Blanch in boiling water for 3 minutes. Chill in cold water for 5 minutes. Drain. Pack in plastic bags or other freezer containers to freeze.

To maintain the sweet delicate flavor of the zucchini, it should be steamed. Flavor is lost when cooked in large amounts of water. To steam zucchini, wash well and wipe dry. Cut into convenient pieces, removing the stem attachment. Do not peel, unless the squash is old and tough. Place in a saucepan with just enough boiling water to prevent scorching. Cover the pan tightly and let squash cook in its own steam for about 15 minutes. It should then be tender enough to mash. It need only be seasoned with salt and pepper and a little butter. It may also be creamed by stirring in a little hot milk or cream just before serving. Summer squash may also be fried or baked in many variations.

Here are some recipes you will enjoy trying:

POOR MAN'S CRABCAKES

2 cups grated zucchini squash
1 cup bread crumbs (plain or Italian flavored)
1 tablespoon mayonnaise
1 tablespoon old bay seasoning (some like only ½ teaspoon)
2 eggs

Mix all ingredients together. Shape into small cakes and fry in shortening until brown. Serve hot or cold.

ZUCCHINI BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES

1 quart distilled white vinegar
2 cups sugar
3 tablespoons salt
2 teaspoons celery seed
2 teaspoons tumeric or dill seed
1 teaspoon dry mustard
4 quarts sliced zucchini
1 quart sliced onions

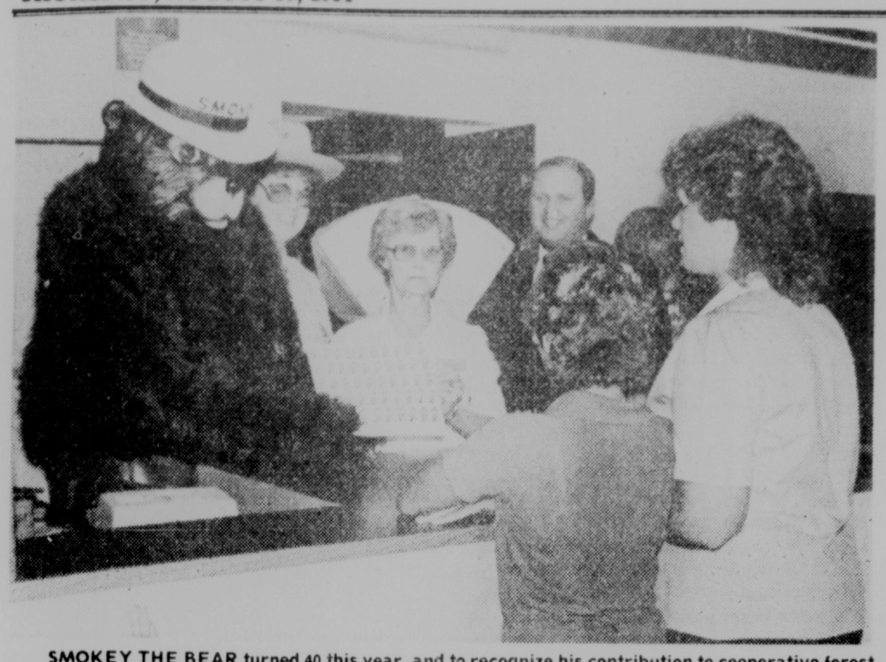
HOME LOAN SOURCES

Where do you go in the quest for mortgage money? For years, Savings and Loan Associations have provided mortgage funds for the majority of single family home sales. However, you still have alternative sources for financing a home.

Some commercial banks offer home mortgages. This is especially true of larger commercial banks who handle trust accounts for wealthy clients. Mortgages are good, safe investments.



The regulations for credit unions have been relaxed in the last few years, allowing them to play a more active role in mortgage lending.

Mortgage companies have assumed an increasing role in the field of mortgage finance origination and servicing. Individuals, both sellers and private investors, continue to make first and second mortgage loans on single family home purchases.

If you put yourself in the hands of an experienced, professional Realtor, you can be assured that all appropriate financing options will be explored.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone one of our offices.

Hooks, Tomblins Attend Annual Twin Days Fest

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hook and sons, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Tomblin and family, Accident, who have three sets of twin boys between them, attended the Ninth Annual Twins Days Festival in Twinsburg, Ohio, August 4 and 5. This event, held annually in the only city in the world named to honor twins, hosted some 994 sets of twins (plus triplets, quadruplets and quintuplets) from across the United States and around the world. This year's event was the largest known gathering of twins in this country.

Twinsburg (located between Cleveland and Akron on S.R. 91) was named in honor of Moses and Aaron Wilcox, early settlers (and identical twins) from Kellingworth, Conn. The town's name was changed from Millsville to Twinsburg in 1817 at the request of the twins. In exchange for this honor, they donated six acres of land that became the town square and $20 toward starting the first school.

The Wilcox twins were so identical, only their oldest friends could tell them apart. They married sisters; held all their property in common; they were stricken with the same ailment; died on the same day and are buried in the same grave in the Twinsburg Locust Grove Cemetery.

The Twins Days Festival features numerous Twins Contests. David and Kenneth Hook, age 9, Keith and Kevin Tomblin, age 9, competed in the Most Identical, ages 6-9 yrs. category. Robbie and Jamie Hook, age 2½, competed in the Most Identical, ages 1-3 yrs. The festival also includes a parade, games, food booths, a flea market and two days of entertainment.

Next year's festival will be held August 3 and 4, 1985.

Stinson Pleads Guilty; Remanded To County Jail

A 25-year-old Mt. Lake Park man was remanded to the custody of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department after pleading guilty to four charges in Garrett County Circuit Court last Thursday.

Kenneth Lee Stinson was found guilty of driving while intoxicated, reckless driving, driving while suspended or revoked, and traveling at a speed greater than reasonable. The charges stemmed from an incident which occurred in downtown Oakland on February 16.

Judge Fred A. Thayer sentenced Stinson to one year in jail and a $500 fine for driving while intoxicated, one year in jail to run consecutively with the first year for driving while suspended, a $50 fine for reckless driving, and a $50 fine for speeding.

Judge Thayer suspended all the jail sentence but 90 days and also suspended the two $50 fines. Stinson was also ordered to pay court costs and attend DWI school. In addition to the jail sentence and fines, Stinson has been placed on two years supervised probation.

Logging Company Not Guilty Of DNR Violation

In Garrett County District Court proceedings August 23, Judge Jack R. Turney found Blaine Frantz, Inc., Blooming Rose, not guilty on a charge of conducting a logging operation without first obtaining permission from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

Leonard Eiswert, attorney for the defense, filed a motion that the defendant be found not guilty of the state regulation because the timber operation cannot be seen from the river because of a cliff, and because land owners do not know exactly where on their property the corridor line falls. The wild and scenic regulations in effect on the Youghiogheny prohibit commercial activities, such as timbering or mining within sight of the river.

The Maryland Attorney's General's Office had filed two charges against Blaine Frantz, Inc. The second charge was for failing to obtain the necessary county sediment and erosion control permit. Judge Turney has asked the prosecution and defense for memoranda in two weeks on the second charge, at which time he will make a ruling.

The Attorney's General office contends that the charges were brought against Blaine Frantz, Inc. due to direct violations of the Youghiogheny River Corridor regulations by that company.

Among the witnesses, summoned by the state, were Keith Roberts, project coordinator for the Youghiogheny Scenic and Wild River Corridor, and John Nelson, Garrett County zoning administrator.

During proceedings, Judge Turney declared a similar case against Interstate Lumber Company nolle prosequi.

DECD Offers Loans For Home Improvement

Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD) Secretary Frank J. De Francis announced Monday the funding of two home improvement programs totaling $11 million to provide homeowners with reduced-interest loans for energy conservation and general home improvements.

The programs are the Home and Energy Loan Program (HELP) which is funded by $10 million made available through the sale of mortgage revenue bonds, and the Energy Bank, which is funded by a $1 million grant from the Solar Energy and Energy Conservation Bank Program of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

HELP will provide qualified applicants with home and energy conservation loans at the fixed-interest rate of 10 percent plus a one-half percent insurance premium. As a companion to HELP, the Energy Bank will assist lower income families eligible for improvement loans by providing an interest subsidy that may result in a loan with an interest rate as low as zero, depending on the income of the homeowner and the type of energy improvements they wish to make.

HELP loans are made by five participating lenders and DECD. Baltimore Gas and Electric will provide information on financing energy improvements to customers in monthly billing statements, during home energy audits and in advertising.

Among the home improvements eligible for HELP financing are: home additions; repair or replacement of plumbing, heating and electrical systems; installations of new bathrooms, kitchens and closets; repair or replacements of roofs, floors, ceilings and stairways; and handicapped modifications.

Energy improvements eligible in the program are: caulking and weatherstripping, insulation and siding, furnace efficiency modifications, repair or replacement of furnace and water heaters, storm and thermal doors and windows, clock thermostats, and solar space heating systems.

Loans through HELP will be insured by DECD's mortgage insurance program, the Maryland Housing Fund.

In the Energy Bank program, loans from HELP and the Maryland Housing Rehabilitation Program (MHRP) will be eligible for an interest subsidy. The interest rate can be reduced to zero for energy improvements only; however, energy improvements combined with home improvements are eligible for a partial interest subsidy. Both of these DECD programs are administered by the Community Development Administration (CDA), the state's housing finance agency.

"The combination of DECD, five lenders and Baltimore Gas and Electric will assure an efficient promotion of the loans to the widest possible audience," said DECD Secretary Frank J. De Francis.

"This partnership marries an excellent financing program with knowledge of energy conservation technology from BG & E. These programs will allow DECD to serve an extremely broad spectrum of homeowners," he added.

To qualify for HELP financing, a single applicant must have a maximum income no higher than $23,000 and families of two or more may not have a combined income exceeding $33,000. Loans limited to energy conservation improvements have no income limits.

To be eligible for the Energy Bank program, applicants must have an annual income of $15,000 or less and qualify for a loan to finance the energy improvements either through MHRP or HELP. The amount of the interest subsidy will be determined when the loan application is approved. All properties must be located in Maryland and be owner-occupied with four units or less. Loans under the Energy Bank have a term of 5-15 years.

Eligible Energy Bank conservation improvements include: caulking and weatherstripping, attic, pipe and duct insulation, water heater insulation, electrical or mechanical furnace ignition systems to replace gas pilot lights, clock thermostats or timers, and water flow controllers.

Other improvements can be eligible if the applicant submits an energy audit which shows that the measures are cost effective. These improvements include: replacement burners, furnaces and boilers which increase energy efficiency by 20 percent, ceiling, wall and floor insulation, storm windows and doors, multi-glazed windows and doors, heat absorbing/reflecting door and window materials, and heat pumps which replace existing or a combination of existing heating/air conditioning systems.

For additional information on the Energy Bank and HELP, persons may contact DECD's Home Improvement Programs office at 1-800-492-7127, toll-free.

Westvaco Continues With Record Sales

Westvaco Corporation, a major producer of paper, packaging and chemicals, reported record sales and net income for the third quarter and first nine months of its fiscal year, and said that progress has been made during the third quarter in its new growth program.

Sales for the third quarter, which ended on July 31, advanced to a new high of $446 million, an increase of 20.8% over the same period in 1983. For the first nine months of the year, sales amounted to a record $1.307 billion, surpassing nine-month sales of last year by 21.9%.

Net income for the quarter, also a record, totaled $40.9 million, equal to $1.45 a share. This compares with earnings of $14.9 million, equal to 55 cents a share, for the third quarter of 1983. For the first nine months, the company's net income amounted to a record $88.8 million, or $3.15 a share, compared with $33.8 million, or $1.25 a share, earned in the same period in 1983.

Net income for the third quarter included two special items which produced a net increase of 25 cents a share in the income for the quarter. The 25-cents-a-share increase reflects a release of $12 million from tax reserves which amounted to 43 cents a share due to a change in federal tax legislation in July, and a write-off of certain assets which totaled $10 million, or 18 cents a share. Even without the net effect of the special items, the company's net income for the third quarter was considerably higher than in any other third quarter in its history, including the previous record set in 1981.

Westvaco announced that capital expenditures in 1984 will increase from the record level of $187 million to approximately $300 million. These expenditures are anticipated to increase still further to about $350 million in both 1985 and 1986.

Health Department Pregnancy Classes Include Fitness, Emphasize Relaxing

THE MOST IMPORTANT thing to remember about labor and delivery is to relax, prospective parents are told during classes at the Garrett County Health Department. Above, Ellinor Hamilton and Becky Friend explain some of the finer points such as Lamaze breathing techniques, instruments used, and terminology to prospective moms and their coaches. Below, Becky shows proper position of the baby during delivery, and explains anatomy and its functions to her audience. The preparation for labor and delivery class is part of the health department's continuing effort to educate parents before birth so they are better prepared, less anxious and tense, and informed about infant needs and behavior. The department is also instigating a class for breast-feeding. For more information, call 334-8111 or 895-5050.

by Carol Canan

"You've come a long way, baby" is a well-known advertising slogan emphasizing women's progress as equals in society. It could also be most appropriate for classes to enhance a safe, happy pregnancy for mothers and babies through a program at the Garrett County Health Department.

The newest program is designed to provide even more prenatal help and information to expectant mothers - a far cry from the ignorance of the birth process and labor room techniques of several years ago.

This new program is called Positive Pregnancy Fitness and is offered to women in early and mid-pregnancy. These new classes first began in July, under the instruction of Sara Fredlock Donley, B.S.N., director of adult health for the department.

The new course joins the infant care classes that have been offered for the last eight years and which are still available for couples. Preparation for labor and delivery classes have also been offered for the past eight years, since 1976.

The fitness program for the early months emphasizes pregnancy weight training that strengthens the arms, shoulders and back. The stretching-based exercises help keep the pregnant body comfortable and eliminate many common complaints such as lower back ache.

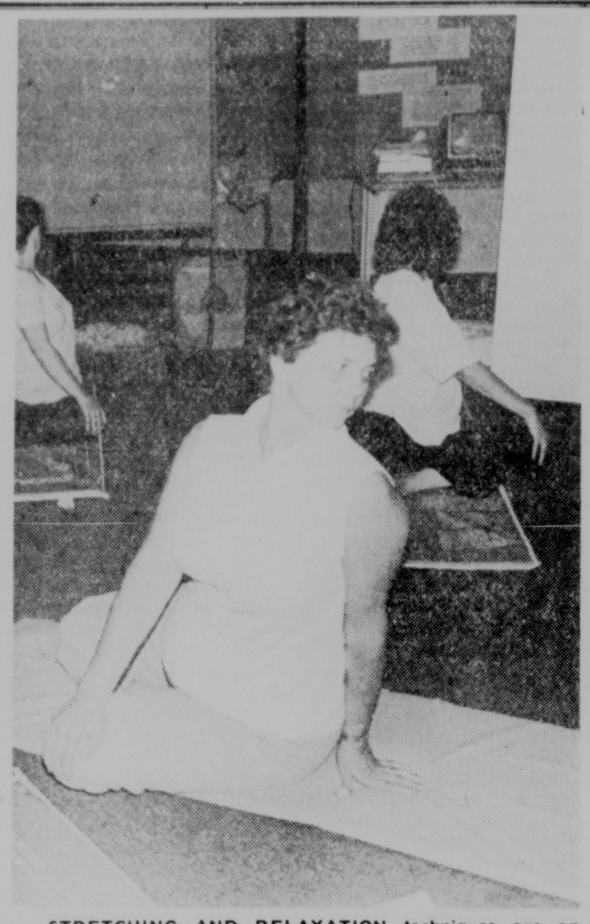
In addition, proper nutrition, relaxation techniques, emotions of pregnancy and prenatal development are explained. Relaxation is an essential part of the course and is being taught earlier in pregnancy.

Mrs. Donley, who came here from Piedmont, has been certified by the Red Cross as an instruction specialist for health services.

As Mrs. Donley explains the classes available, expectant mothers may now start with the positive pregnancy fitness in mid-pregnancy, then continue into the infant care classes and end with the preparation for labor and delivery.

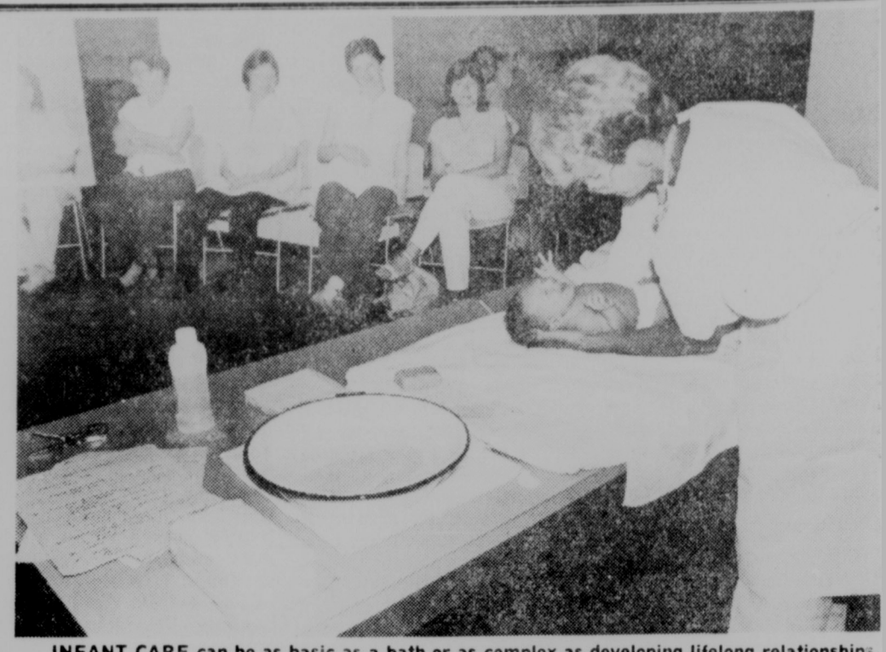
Infant care classes provide information on characteristics of the newborn, developing natural "mothering instincts" or "parenting instincts" physical care, infant feeding and nutrition, and child safety. These classes are best to attend between the sixth and seventh months of pregnancy.

Preparation for labor and delivery dispels fears and myths that surround the birth of a baby by explaining the physiology and psychology of labor and delivery and how to avoid the fear-tension-pain cycle. This course offers relaxation techniques found in a combination of Lamaze and Kitzinger techniques, as well as breathing and comfort tools and information on medications used during labor and delivery, and emphasizes the role of a labor coach.



A coach can be any relative or friend of the expectant mother, but fathers are encouraged to participate if at all possible. Many grandmothers-to-be have participated as coaches. These classes are best taken in the eighth and ninth month.

Altogether, there are 14 classes available, from fitness through the preparation for labor and delivery. Parents are welcome to take one series, all of the classes or a combination. Positive fitness classes and infant care are held on Tuesdays and preparation for labor on Mondays and Thursdays.



With new classes starting September 4, early registration is encouraged. All classes are held in the assembly room of the Health Department complex located in Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

For registration and more information, contact the health department at 334-8111 or 895-5050.

Instructors are Mrs. Donley, for the positive pregnancy fitness and Roxanne Reed, P.N.P., Rebecca Parks, R.N. and Lois Ford, B.S.N., for infant care. Lay educators for the labor and childbirth classes are Rebecca Friend, Ellinor Hamilton and Madeleine Collins.

STRETCHING AND RELAXATION techniques are an important part of positive pregnancy fitness classes now being offered by the Garrett County Health Department. The positive pregnancy fitness course is the latest offering for expectant mothers and blends right into a class on infant care, which in turn meshes with a class on preparation for labor and childbirth. In the foreground, demonstrating a stretching technique expectant mothers are to practice at home, is Sara Donley, director of adult health for the department and certified Red Cross instruction specialist.

INFANT CARE can be as basic as a bath or as complex as developing lifelong relationships. Above, Roxanne Reed demonstrates techniques for soothing a slippery infant who dislikes strange surroundings while being given a bath. Andria, daughter of Susan and Randy Cavallier, Terra Alta, W.Va., was born July 24 and at the time the photograph was taken, had decided bath time was not the highlight of her day.

Classes are offered free of charge in cooperation with Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the American Red Cross.

The health department philosophy is that parenting is one of the toughest jobs anyone can undertake, and personnel say they find it extremely gratifying to teach expectant parents who want to learn as much as possible about their infant. They also believe an important key to parenting is to be able to seek help as problems arise, and the more preparation for the task, the more knowledge can be applied by the individual parents.

"You're not expected to know everything", is a comforting truism stated by Roxanne Reed and agreed upon by the health department staff. Mrs. Reed also feels that each couple should be allowed to develop their own style after being presented with the information they need.

Clinton Englander, Oakland pharmacist, will be the instructor of the course. Registration may be completed at the Oakland Center or at the Mc Henry Campus.

Course On Health Needs Of Elderly Slated By GCC

A new course concerned with the health and needs of the elderly will be offered by Garrett Community College this semester. The one-credit course, Medication Usage Among the Elderly, will introduce the student to the medications most commonly prescribed to the elderly, their use, abuse, side-effects and long-term implications.

This course will be offered at the Oakland Center of Garrett Community College on Tuesdays, from 3 to 5 p.m., September 11 through October 23.

Sachs Issues Alert Concerning "Gypsy" Sellers

Maryland Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs issued an alert Monday to consumers to avoid purchasing recreational vehicles from so-called "gypsy" sellers, warning that the campers and travel trailers sold by such individuals often are shoddily built, counterfeit models requiring extensive repairs.

"The traveling bands of professional con artists who specialize in bilking consumers with bogus home improvement deals and sub-standard merchandise apparently have added a new twist to their scams and now sell cheap RVs at supposedly bargain prices," Sachs warned.

The Consumer Protection Division of Sachs' office has received at least one complaint from Western Maryland involving a consumer who bought a recreational vehicle that turned out to be a collection of spare parts from numerous different vehicles, all stuck together with inferior materials, according to Assistant Attorney General Steven J. Cole, chief of the Division.

"The consumer thought she was getting a real 'deal,'" Cole said. "The RV she bought had a list price of about $10,300, and the model she got only cost her $6,500. But after it was found to be counterfeit, we investigated and discovered that it originally belonged to a woman in Pennsylvania who had bought it for just one dollar."

"There is no free lunch and there are few bargains in RVs," Sachs said.

The Attorney General said that the "gypsy" sellers advertise their recreational vehicles at bargain prices and often operate out of motels, campgrounds or service stations. "Usually they tell the buyer a phony hard-luck story, saying they are forced to sell the vehicle because of some family illness or because they have to move out of state," Sachs explained.

"They'll also offer to save you money by reducing the price even more on the sales receipt, so you can cut your Maryland sales tax. In fact, they're just trying to make sure you'll be reluctant to complain to the authorities when your bargain RV starts to fall apart," Sachs added.

Cole advises consumers to buy recreational vehicles from licensed dealers who are readily available for warranty and service work. If you buy an RV from someone other than a dealer, make sure that the manufacturer of the vehicle has an authorized service facility in Maryland and that local dealers will honor any warranties the vehicle may have. Reputable dealers may refuse to service sub-standard vehicles, he warned. In addition, make sure you obtain a title and warranty from any RV you buy, and don't be tempted to break Maryland's sales tax law, Cole said.

Officials in Indiana, where "gypsy" sellers of counterfeit RVs have been especially active, warn that among the brand names alleged to be common on sub-standard RVs are: LaSalle, Royal Traveler Marauder, Impala, Spartan, Ledgewood, Sportsman, Majestic, Companion, Shenandoah, Lariet, Regal, Carefree, Curtis, Americana, International, Sunvilla, Safari, Rouge, Monte Carlo, Tropicana, Buckaneer and Royal Knight, Cole said. The sub-standard RV sold in Western Maryland was a "Spartan," he added.

"Not only should consumers be wary of these brand names being advertised for bargain prices in Maryland, reputable RV dealers should be cautious if they consider taking these brands in on trade," Cole advised. "The consumer naturally thinks his unit is worth a lot more than it is and the dealer could get stuck with a real piece of junk."

As the pretty colored leaves fall for us it is the sadest season of all, we shall never forget that day when our dear husband and father passed away. We did not know the pain or hear your last sigh, we only know you left us without a last goodbye. Gone is the face we loved to see but you left us with sweet memories, of the one we loved so well and in heaven we'll never say farewell.

1) Docket VR-95: An application made by Mr. Jonathan P. Kessler for a Variance from the terms of the Zoning Ordinance as it affects the maximum number of "back lots" using access to a common use area and a Variance from the requirement that a lot not be divided by a street right-of-way. This case is being continued from the August 2, 1984 hearing and the Board will welcome any new testimony on this case. The property is located along the Paradise Gardens Subdivision Road (Zoned LR).

2) Docket VR-98: An application made by Mr. Jonathan J. Eckhart for a Variance from the terms of the Zoning Ordinance as it affects the rear yard set-back requirement for a single family residence. 3) Docket VR-99: An application made by James L. Regional 4-H Leaders Forum Set In Maryland

More than 200 volunteer 4-H leaders from 12 Northeast states and the District of Columbia are expected to attend the seventh annual Northeast Regional 4-H Leaders Forum, set for Oct. 18-21 at the Columbia Inn in Columbia. (Howard County).

This marks the first time that the event has been held in Maryland since its inception in 1978.

The stated purpose of this year's meeting is to provide a training opportunity for volunteer 4-H leaders to share ideas, develop leadership skills and help prepare 4-H youth for life in the Twenty-first century.

Dr. Maurice J. Spencer, a state 4-H program leader at the University of Maryland in College Park, is the workshop coordinator. Spencer noted that a conference highlight will be a series of three one-hour symposiums on Friday morning, Oct. 19, by nationally known futurists. The symposiums will permit 4-H leaders to share their thoughts with the experts on what the future will be like.

With this regional forum being close to home, Spencer urges all Maryland volunteer 4-H leaders to attend. Registration information is available from 4-H agents in every Maryland county and in Baltimore city. Or, persons may call the state 4-H office in College Park at (301) 454-4997. Registration deadline is Sept. 1.

County Project Forester Attends Annual Meeting

Garrett County Project Forester Ernie Metz recently attended the annual meeting of the cooperative forest management program at St. Mary's City. Each year project foresters from the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service meet for an update on current forestry information and to exchange ideas. The theme of this year's session was watershed protection.

Approximately one third of the land in Maryland's portion of the Bay Basin is currently forested, Metz said. Some portions of this forest cover are strategically located adjacent to watercourses affording maximum water quality protection because surface runoff is non-existent in undisturbed forest land. Retaining forest land along water-courses could be instrumental in controlling non-point pollution in the Chesapeake Bay.

"It's not a new idea to foresters to manage forests with an eye to protecting watershed values," Metz said. "For years, the value of trees to hold soil and filter water has been recognized and practiced by foresters. The recent interest in helping to clean up the Chesapeake Bay by planting forest buffers along the shoreline is one of the many Chesapeake Bay initiatives underway. The forest land buffer program will intercept surface runoff and infiltrate it through forest soil prior to reaching Bay drainage watercourses to provide high quality water and low peak flows to the Bay."

Other topics covered during the three-day meeting included: the aesthetic consideration of forest buffers, the scenic and wild rivers program, logging buffer strips, soil loss and hazard reduction burning.

Metz said he will assist Garrett County landowners with management plans for their woodlands. For more information, persons may call or write to the MD Forest, Park and Wildlife Service, Route 1, Box 305-A, Oakland, MD 21550. The telephone number is 301-334-3296.

Post Offices To Close Labor Day

All post offices, stations and branches will be closed on Monday, September 3, in observance of Labor Day.

On that day, there will be no window service; however, post office box service will be provided on a holiday schedule. Delivery services will be limited to Special Delivery and Express Mail at offices having receipt of mail.

One collection will be made from boxes located at main offices, stations and branches, self-service postal centers (where necessary in business areas) and on main thoroughfares.

Library Corner

The Ruth Enlow Library and its branches will be closed Monday, September 3, for Labor Day.

In an effort to get materials back to the library more quickly, the library has decided to raise its fines on overdue materials. Beginning Tuesday, September 4, fines will be as follows: Easy Books (E)—no charge; Juvenile Books (J)—2¢ per day; Recent Adult Books—10¢ per day; and all other books and magazines—5¢ per day. The maximum fine for any single overdue book remains at $2.00.

The bookmobile will be finishing its summer schedule of community stops on August 27. It will make no stops during the week of September 3 and will begin its fall schedule on September 10. The new schedule will be published in next week's Library Corner.

This Saturday's movies at 1:30 will be Strawberry Shortcake in "Big Apple City," "Tit for Tat," and "Pretty Kettle of Fish." Admission is free.
